WIND PILES UP DRIFTS

Massive Snow Storm Fouls Eastern Canada

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Strong winds added force to the blows, disrupting life even in some areas where no snow was falling. These localities—mostly in Ontario—were buried by a massive snowfall a week ago and today's heavy winds were blowing the product of that storm back over highways and roads.

Winds of up to 80 miles an hour drove heavy rain over the southern sections of the Maritimes Sunday and snow over the northern areas. A storm which began Thursday had covered some areas with 21 inches of snow, clogging most secondary roads and stifling transportation.

In southern Nova Scotia Sunday trees and overhead wires were felled. Air Canada officials said several flights in the Maritimes were cancelled by high winds.

CLOSE OTTAWA SCHOOLS

All schools were closed today in Ottawa, which suffered its heaviest 24-hour snowfall in history. By this morning 16.4 inches had fallen and another two inches were expected. The previous record was 12.5 inches Dec. 31, 1942.

The capital's problems were complicated by winds of 30 to 35 miles an hour, gusting to 45, which piled the snow into huge drifts. Side streets were clogged but main thoroughfares were passable.

Many schools were also closed in the Montreal area. That city had a snowfall of 11 inches between Sunday morning and today. The snow tapered off today but drifting continued behind strong winds.

Quebec City, where it was still snowing today, has recorded a fall of 25 inches of snow and rain since Friday. All secondary roads were blocked and many schools were closed.

Quebec and Ontario had winds of 25 to 35 miles an hour, gusting to 50.

SNOW STILL FALLING

Snow was still falling in eastern Ontario and Brockville reported about 20 inches. All schools were closed.

All schools were closed in the communities and townships in the Kingston area where 14 inches of snow had fallen.

Train schedules were disrupted in Toronto and driving conditions were treacherous. Drifting snow covered an icy base and visibility was poor.

Anglers stranded overnight in small ice-fishing huts on storm-swept Lake Simcoe, 50 miles north of Toronto, may have to wait several hours more before returning to shore.

100 STRANDED

Winds, which caused heavy drifting in the area and forced an estimated 100 persons on the lake to seek overnight shelter in their huts, had not abated by daybreak and visibility on the lake was still near zero.

A few men were reported to have walked back earlier. The provincial lands and forest department was seeking snowmobiles equipped with compasses

73 DEAD IN U.S.

NEW YORK (UPI)—A wild winter storm thrashed the eastern U.S. seaboard for the second straight day today. The south lay frozen under the deepest snows of the century, gale winds lashed coastal communities and heavy snow fell through the night in New England.

The number of storm-connected deaths since Thursday climbed to at least 73.

A state of emergency existed in Delaware and Virginia, where icy winds stirred the snow into 15-foot drifts. Prince Georges County in Maryland was under an emergency weather alert and New York City declared a snow emergency for the second time in eight days.

TOTAL BAN ON TRADE ORDERED

U.K. Draws Rhodesia Knot Tight

By JAMES BROWN

SALISBURY (Reuters)—Rhodesians tightened their belts even further today after Britain's latest move to topple the regime of Prime Minister Ian Smith—a total trade ban.

Smith's breakaway regime refused comment on the British action, which came 2½ months after this colony of white-minority rule seized independence from Britain.

The move, announced early today and scheduled to go into effect Wednesday, extended Britain's ban on export of arms and oil to Rhodesia to cover all other exports. These totalled £31,000,000 ($93,000,000) in 1965.

The new import control affects only about five per cent of British imports from Rhodesia.

A trade embargo on about 95 per cent of British imports, including tobacco and sugar, was imposed soon after the seizure of independence.

SEEK OTHERS' SUPPORT

Britain now will instruct its envoys in various countries to ask other governments to back the new sanctions.

Prime Minister Wilson's government also gave a formal warning to people within Rhodesia — and to other governments—that it would not be responsible for any money lent to the Smith regime since it declared independence Nov. 11.

The warning, aimed at South Africa and some other nations, was intended mainly to cover "independence bonds" which the Smith government has said it will issue and also any attempts by the regime to raise credit outside Rhodesia.

All the latest moves were described in London as "a further tightening of the screw" following the oil ban announced just before Christmas, which the British government believes will be the decisive factor in bringing down the Smith regime.

Supply Routes Blasted

The raids ended a 37-day pause in the air war against the Hanoi regime during which the United States launched a worldwide peace offensive designed to get the North Vietnamese Communists to the negotiating table. The peace effort was rebuffed.

Navy A4 Skyhawks from the 7th Fleet carriers Ranger and Kitty Hawk joined air force F105 Thunderchiefs and F4C Phantom jets in attacking targets in the Dong Hoi and Vinh areas, staging areas in the Communist north for movement of men and supplies into South Viet Nam.

GROUND FIGHTING

American and Vietnamese troops also pushed offensives against the Communists on scattered fronts in the south. "Flying Horsemen" of the 1st Cavalry Division reported heavy fighting in a joint operation 300 miles northeast of Saigon.

Dong Hoi is about 50 miles north of the 17th Parallel. Vinh is about 180 miles north of the dividing line on the Tonkin Gulf.

A U.S. military spokesman in Saigon said the armada encountered heavy anti-aircraft fire over the targets — bridges, barges, warehouse facilities and an approach to a ferry landing.

Poor weather prevented an accurate assessment of damage. A navy Skyhawk went down in the South China Sea while returning from the morning raid, but it was not known what caused the crash. Its pilot was rescued by an air force Albatross after 40 minutes in the water. All other planes landed safely.

NO ENEMY PLANES

No enemy planes were sighted and pilots said they encountered no Soviet-supplies surface-to-air (Sam) missiles.

In other action, the Viet Cong late Sunday unleashed a mortar attack against a U.S. artillery area, and helicopter base about 15 miles north of Saigon. A number of helicopters were damaged, a spokesman said. Light casualties were reported among the 1st Cavalry Division troops at the installation.

A U.S. helicopter was shot down near Bon Song today but its four-man crew was rescued. American troops in the area took prisoner a North Vietnamese soldier who said he was from the 7th Battalion, 18th Regiment of the 325th Division. U.S. military officials had said earler this regiment was in the area.

188 KILLED

ROK military spokesmen claimed 188 guerrillas were killed in five hours of fighting. They said an estimated battalion of about 600 troops hit a similar-sized ROK element from three directions, each from about a mile apart. The Koreans reported "light" casualties.

UN SECRETARY General U Thant, left, met with U.S. Amabassador Arthur Goldberg after the U.S. representative asked for an urgent meeting of the UN Security Council to discuss the Viet Nam war.

SHIFT IN POLICY

UN 'Surprised' By LBJ Request

Times News Services

Johnson's request was seen as a shift of U.S. policy on the method of seeking a Viet Nam settlement, which has never before been directly put before the United Nations.

Shortly after the president spoke, U.S. Ambassador Arthur J. Goldberg submitted a formal request for a meeting of the Security Council.

Goldberg hurried across the street from the U.S. mission headquarters to carry the request for the meeting to Ambassador Roger Seydoux of France, this month's president of the council.

It was up to Seydoux to announce the time of the meeting. The United States served notice it would be willing to meet at any time.

ADD FOUR MEMBERS

The council meeting would be the first for the UN body since Jan. 1 when it added four new members to bring total membership to 15.

The council members will decide whether to invite non-members, such as representatives of North or South Viet Nam or other interested parties, to attend the debate.

The U.S. call for a Security Council meeting was a surprise because only last Tuesday Goldberg reportedly told a group of Democratic congressmen that the time was not right for President Johnson to go before the world body to seek a settlement of the war.

OBSTACLES

In a letter to the council president, Goldberg said:

"My government has concluded that it should now bring this problem with all its implications for peace formally before the Security Council."

He said the United States is aware that it may not be easy for the council itself, "in view of all the obstacles, to take con-

CANADA 'REGRETS ACTION'

OTTAWA (CP)—The government regrets the United States decision to resume bombing North Viet Nam, Prime Minister Pearson said in the Commons today.

The government hoped the 37-day pause in bombing might be continued until all possible approaches had been exhausted in efforts to bring the dispute from the battlefield to the conference table.

While North Viet Nam might be intransigent, Mr. Pearson said, there is still a possibility of some softening in its position.

Replying to questions from Opposition Leader Diefenbaker, Mr. Pearson said he was informed Sunday morning by the United States that it intended to resume bombing.

This morning, he added, he received a message from Ho Chi Minh, president of North Viet Nam, saying there could be no negotiated settlement as long as United States forces were in Viet Nam and the Viet Cong was not recognized as the sole government of South Viet Nam.

NEW PAUSE POSSIBLE

Mr. Pearson added that on the basis of his Dec. 29 talk here with McGeorge Bundy, President Johnson's special assistant, he believes the possibility of a further pause in bombings has not been closed.

Mr. Diefenbaker asked what basis there was for hoping the North Vietnamese position might be altered.

"There would not seem to be

Immediate Meeting Sought

WASHINGTON (UPI)—President Lyndon Johnson called today for an immediate meeting of the United Nations Security Council in a new effort to bring the Viet Nam war to the conference table.

The chief executive made the request during a brief, televised report to the nation on his decision to resume U.S. bombing raids on Communist North Viet Nam.

Johnson said resumption of the raids, which had been suspended since last Christmas eve, was necessary because of continued Communist aggression.

VIOLENCE

He said the United States and others working for peace had met only continued violence and continued aggression.

Speaking of the Hanoi government, Johnson said: "It is plain that there is no readiness to talk—no readiness for peace—in that regime today.

"The end of the pause does not mean the end of our own pursuit of peace. That pursuit will be as determined and unremitting as the pressure of our military strength on the field of battle."

GIVE FULL REPORT

"I have instructed Ambassador Goldberg to ask for an immediate meeting of the United Nations Security Council. He will present a full report on the situation in Viet Nam and a resolution which can open the way to the conference table.

"This report and this resolution will be responsive to the spirit of the renewed appeal of Pope Paul; that appeal has our full sympathy."

But the President said that in view of the continued Communist violence against South Vietnamese and American forces, any further extension of the U.S. bombing pause might have led to a greatly increased cost in lives.

MET ADIVSERS

He also said he ordered the resumption of bombing only after lengthy consultation with his chief advisers, including the military joint chiefs of staff.

"These advisers tell me that if continued immunity is given to all that support North Viet Nam aggression, the cost in lives — Vietnamese, American and Allied—will only be greatly increased," he said.

"In the light of the words and actions of the government in Hanoi, it is our clear duty to do what we can to limit these costs."

As for hopes for peace, Johnson said that both direct and indirect approaches by the United States, her allies and even the Vatican "have been in vain."

INSIST ON SURRENDER

"The answer of Hanoi to all is the answer that was published three days ago—they persist in aggression and they insist on the surrender of South Viet Nam to Communism," he said.

"So this morning, at my direc-

RUSK

U.S. Offered To Extend Bomb Pause

WASHINGTON (AP) — State Secretary Dean Rusk disclosed today the United States offered to extend the bombing pause over North Viet Nam if the Communist leaders there would make a peace gesture in response to the U.S. peace offensive.

He told a press conference, however, that Hanoi's response had been "negative, harsh and unyielding."

"Hanoi was informed at an early stage of the suspension of bombing," Rusk said. " . . . They were told that no decision had been made on the resumption of bombing.

"They were told that if Hanoi would reciprocate it would have a favorable effect on extending the suspension of the bombing. There was no ultimatum."

Rusk also said the United States made clear to Hanoi's leaders that it was prepared for a formal diplomatic conference, for informal discussions or for diplomatic contacts which would be kept secret.

Hanoi's response, he said, had been to denounce the whole effort as a fraud.

Raids Hike Debate Tempo

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The resumption of air strikes against North Viet Nam was expected to flash like a spark through the tinderbox of growing congressional debate over administration policies in Viet Nam.

Announcement of the resumption of the raids came as the debate reached a new level, with critics of United States policies in the war becoming more outspoken in their demands for a greater voice in decisions.

Sen. Wayne L. Morse (D—Ore.), the most vocal critic of the administration, was mapping a campaign to revoke the broad mandate congress gave Johnson to fight the war in August, 1964.

Morse also charged the administration with keeping facts about the war from the American people "as Hitler kept the facts from the German people" during his rise to power.

The tart-tongued senator's remarks provoked an instant reaction from House Democratic whip Hale Boggs, La., who said the comparison was an "outrageous" one that helped the Communists. Morse shot back that Boggs was making "a typical smear."

JOHNSON PEACE DRIVE STARTED LAST SPRING

By LEWIS GULICK

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States' 37-day peace offensive came to a shattering end today with President Johnson's order resuming the U.S. air strikes on North Viet Nam.

Here is a detailed look at the background to the president's order:

On April 7, 1965, Johnson set forth, in a speech at Johns Hopkins University, his offer of "unconditional discussions" for a peaceful settlement seeking independence and security for South Viet Nam. The Communists denounced his proposals as a cover-up for more U.S. "aggression."

In May he ordered a five-day halt in air strikes on North Viet Nam to test the Communist response. Hanoi refused to receive a U.S. diplomatic note.

Through the summer and into the fall critics of Johnson's Viet Nam policy contended the May pause had not been long enough to give Hanoi a reasonable chance to respond.

Nov. 11 the question of a longer pause was raised at a conference at the LBJ ranch in Texas attended by State Secretary Dean Rusk, Defence Secretary Robert S. McNamara and presidential assistants McGeorge Bundy and Jack Valenti.

TAKES ANOTHER LOOK

Dec. 7 Johnson again went into the question during another conference with key aides. One of the alternatives debated then was a bombing pause early in 1966, perhaps coinciding with the customary lunar new year ceasefire due around Jan. 21. The Viet Cong already had proposed a Christmas truce.

Johnson made no decision at the time but outlined his general purpose in a speech two days later to the AFL-CIO convention in San Francisco. Voicing U.S. determination "to turn back aggression" in Viet Nam, he added: "At the same time, we are equally determined that every prospect for peace be exhausted before other hard steps are taken."

The U.S. Yule ceasefire order issued Dec. 22 included instructions not to resume on-the-ground fighting in South Viet Nam after Christmas unless the Viet Cong fired first. This was quickly settled by Viet Cong attacks even before the 30-hour ceasefire period was over.

The Dec. 22 order also halted bombing of North Viet Nam targets with the start of the ceasefire Dec. 24. But it did not specify when to resume the air strikes. On that, Johnson reserved judgment from day to day.

NOTES REACTION

In pondering his future course Johnson was influenced by domestic reaction to the lull and by appeals from world figures. He was impressed by a peace appeal from Pope Paul. At home Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield of Montana was also calling for a lull well beyond Christmas.

Christmas fell on Saturday. Monday night Johnson held strategy talks by telephone with his advisers and decided to prolong the bombing pause for a while and put into motion the full-fledged diplomatic offensive.

An American met directly with a Hanoi representative in Rangoon for a few minutes and handed him the U.S. message.

Health Ministers Meeting in Ottawa

Times Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — Manitoba, Saskatchewan and British Columbia's ministers of health failed to put in an appearance for today's opening session of the federal-provincial conference of health ministers.

The Manitoba and Saskatchewan ministers were snow-bound by the severe storm that roared across the eastern seaboard at the weekend. British Columbia's minister, Eric Martin, was also absent but the B.C. deputy minister of health, Dr. J. A. Taylor, was at the meeting.

The conference was called to discuss the health resources fund of $500,000,000, over 15 years, that the federal government has offered to provide for the provinces to assist with the capital costs of building facilities for education and medical personnel.

Space Weather Observer Set for Launch Wednesday

CAPE KENNEDY (UPI) — U.S. weathermen, foreseeing the day when storms like the east's weekend blizzard will be forecast two weeks ahead, plan to orbit a tiros satellite Wednesday to open a full-time system of space-borne weather observers.

The 305-pound weather eye, scheduled for a 2:52 a.m. EST. blastoff on a sleek delta rocket, will be followed three weeks later by the launch of another camera-carrying tiros.

The two weather watchers will form the core of the world's first operational satellite system designed to keep forecasters supplied with pictures of earth's cloud cover on a routine, daily basis.

WEATHER SYNOPSIS

Temperatures continue mild over coastal B.C. and the southern interior with generally cloudy skies and isolated showers. An active weather disturbance moving eastward toward the north coast was to give rain to that area by noon today, spreading southeastward to the lower mainland by evening and to the southern interior as rain or rain and snow mixed tonight and Tuesday. The central interior will receive snow flurries tonight as the system crosses the province.

. . . JOHNSON

The North Vietnamese accepted it without comment.

The substance of Johnson's diplomatic communications was a 14-point sum-up of the American position as it had been put forward over the preceding months. This included the offer of unconditional discussions, affirmation of the Geneva agreements on Southeast Asia and a willingness to withdraw U.S. forces from South Viet Nam once that country is freed from "external interference."

REPORTS 'NO RESPONSE'

Jan. 12 the president reported on his peace drive in his state-of-the-union message: "So far we have received no response to prove either success or failure."

Jan. 21 Rusk, just back from a quick Asian trip, reported there had been no "encouraging" response, only "bitter invective" from Hanoi.

While some foreign governments indicated they hoped for a lengthy bombing halt, conflicting views at home were pressing on the president.

Jan. 22 senators made public testimony by Gen. Earle G. Wheeler, chairman of the joint chiefs of staff, that "if you stop bombing North Viet Nam, in effect you throw one of your blue chips for negotiation over your shoulder."

Johnson summed 20 congressional leaders to the White House Jan. 25 and gave them intelligence reports of a North Vietnamese buildup and infiltration during the bombing lull.

SENATORS DIVIDED

Of the 20, only Mansfield and the Senate foreign relations committee chairman, J. W. Fulbright (Dem. Ark.), were on the record for continuing the pause. An Associated Press poll of the Senate's 100 members found that of 50 willing to say, 25 senators favored renewing the bombings at this point and 25 were against.

Jan. 27 16 Democratic senators sent the president a letter supporting earlier calls by Mansfield, Fulbright and Senator George D. Aiken (Rep. Vt), for a continuation of the bombing pause.

Johnson dismissed the senators' appeal the next day. He cited the 1964 congressional resolution giving him broad powers to repel armed aggression on U.S. soldiers in Viet Nam.

Pope Paul again entered a plea for peace when he suggested Saturday that United Nations arbitration through neutral nations could bring an end to the war.

"But there have been indications that the dialogue has not been completely cut off, and as long as there is any possibility of a further pause leading to a negotiated settlement, I hope that all concerned will take advantage of that possibility. I can't go further than that."

New Democratic Leader Doouglas asked Mr. Pearson to make a direct appeal to President Johnson to discontinue the bombings. Mr. Pearson said Washington already knew Canada's views, but he would consider Mr. Douglas' proposal in the light of any further information the government receives.

U.S. Envoy Backs Order

SANTO DOMINGO (AP) — U.S. Ambassador Ellsworth Bunker said today the three military leaders of the Dominican armed forces must heed Provisional President Garcia-Godoy's orders and leave the country, as the top rebel leaders already have done.

Bunker, American member of the Organization of American States' political committee for the Dominican Republic, warned that if the military leaders refuse to follow Garcia-Godoy's orders they only will be helping "extremists" trying to discredit the armed forces.

Judge Named To End Strike

Mr. Justice V. L. Dryer of the B.C. Supreme Court was appointed today as an industrial inquiry commissioner to propose a settlement of the months-old strike at Craigmont Mines in Merritt.

The appointment was announced by Labor Minister Leslie Peterson, fulfilling an ultimatum he gave the striking Local 6523, United Steel Workers of America, and the company, to reach an agreement.

Newfoundland, meanwhile, was still reeling from the effects of a wind and rain storm which had battered coastal communities late Friday with 35-foot waves and 75-miles-an-hour winds.

All roads in Quebec were described as "very dangerous" by provincial police. Roads in the Eastern Townships were blocked by snowdrifts.

REPORT ROADS CLOSED

In southern Ontario provincial police reported highways between Chatham and London closed because of drifting snow.

Brockville kept about six streets clear. Three provincial police detachments in the area called all patrol cars in and were answering only emergency calls.

There were several multiple auto accidents. A 22-car pileup on the Laurentian auto route north of Montreal injured five persons and wrecked six cars.

The Prairies were getting some respite from a severe cold snap which has lasted, except for a few days, since Christmas.

But the higher temperatures —about zero in most places Sunday—were still 10 to 20 degrees colder than normal for this time of year.

tion — after consultation and agreement with the government of South Viet Nam—U.S. aircraft have resumed action in North Viet Nam.

"They struck lines of supply which support the continuing movement of men and arms against the people and the government of South Viet Nam."

As for the bombing, the president emphasized that the air strikes against North Viet Nam were aimed at military targets and controlled with care from the very onset.

"Those who direct and supply the aggression have no claim to immunity from military reply," he said.

AWAKE ALL NIGHT

Johnson said the peace efforts were well received throughout most of the world. And he said similar efforts by neutral natoins have come to nothing.

"We have sought without success to learn of any response to efforts made by the governments of eastern Europe," he said. "There has been no answer to the enlightened efforts of the Vatican. Our own direct private approaches have been in vain."

But the President said "we do not regret the pause in the bombing."

'YIELD TO NONE'

"We yield to none in our determination to seek peace," he said. "We have given a full and decent respect to the opinions of those who thought that such a pause might give new hope for peace.

"Some said 10 days might do it. Others said 20. Now we have paused for twice the time suggested by some who urged it. Now the world knows more clearly than ever who insists on aggression and who works for peace."

Tiny Tot Versus Jolly Jumper

The manufacturers of a baby exerciser known as the Jolly Jumper engaged in a legal wrangle in Victoria Law Courts Friday with the manufacturers of a baby exerciser called the Tiny Tot.

International Pediatric Priducts Ltd. of North Vancouver, makers of the Jolly Jumper, claimed that the Tiny Tot, produced by the Lambert Brothers of California was an infringement of its patent.

The case was heard by three judges of the B.C. Appeal Court, who reserved their decision.

It originated in B.C. Supreme Court, Vancouver, last July when the makers of the Jolly Jumper sought an injunction against the sale of the Tiny Tot in Canada.

INJUNCTION DENIED

Mr. Justice F. Craig Munroe refused to grant an injunction, and International Pediatrics Products asked the Appeal Court judges to reverse his decision.

For the appellants, Brian McLoughlin said their product, the Jolly Jumper, was patented in Canada in 1959 as "a device for safely supporting or exercising a baby while suspended in the air."

Subsequently the Tiny Tot exerciser was manufactured in California by the Lambert Brothers and for sale in the United States and Canada.

Mr. McLoughlin claimed that sale of the Tiny Tot in Canada infringed the Jolly Jumper patent.

V. R. Hill, for the Lambert Brothers, argued that Mr. Justice Munroe was right in refusing an injunction against the Tiny Tot.

The judge ruled that neither firm had invented a suspended baby exerciser. He said both inventions were "improved methods of obtaining an old object," and both methods were different.

'BOOKS DISTORT INDIAN FACTS'

KINGSTON, Ont. (CP)—Fashion model Kahn-Tineta Horn says if the federal government passes a law against hate literature, she'll use it to prosecute provincial premiers and education ministers.

Miss Horn, a Mohawk Indian from the Montreal area, said Saturday night she also would use such a law to take out warrants against book publishers and promoters.

"They are contributing to the public's hatred of the Indian by printing untrue and distorted facts in school history books," she told about 75 persons at a meeting at Queen's University.

Miss Horn said of Indian education in Quebec:

"Roman Catholic education for Indians is a disaster, calamity, horror and whatever other words I can think of to describe it. It is also a violation of the Indian Act and it ruins Indians. Other than that, there's nothing wrong with it."

'MOST FAIL FRENCH'

She said many Indians in Quebec are unable to get higher education because the government insists they learn French, a language which, she says, 90 per cent of them fail.

"They talk about bilingualism. We are bilingual. We speak Iroquois and English. We also know that no Frenchman is going to hire an Indian anyway. Most of our men work in structural steel in the United States."

Miss Horn said she is opposed to assimilation of the Indian into the white man's world and would prohibit inter-marriage if she could.

"I'm in favor of reserves. The Indian is not ready to move individually into the white man's world. It is pure disaster for us."

She said she advocates removal of mission schools from reserves. "Confused Indians have had religion stuffed down their throats . . . and after 100 years we are worse off than we ever were."

TRAIN ROBBER PAL ESCAPES U.K. PRISON

LONDON (UPI)—Two convicts—one of them a friend of Britain's famed "great train robbery" gang—used a grappling hook and a rope ladder to escape from Wandsworth Jail today.

They flung the hook, with the ladder attached, to the top of the 25-foot outer prison wall in their pre-dawn dash for freedom, police said.

Authorities identified the two as Ronald 'Dark Ronnie' Dark, 32, who made an appearance at the trial of the gang that hoisted $7.84 million from a train in Britain's most celebrated robbery of the century, and David V. Perridge, 28.

"Scalp tension, a sign of the times, is one cause of your hair loss," says trichologist M. D. Harrison to balding man. Harrison directs the famous Harrison Hair and Scalp Specialists, whose main office is in Vancouver. He is sending a specialist here to advise men how to correct hair troubles by home treatment.

How to save and improve your hair demonstrated by expert here Tuesday and Wednesday

New home treatment methods for preventing baldness — and growing thicker hair — will be demonstrated in Victoria this Tuesday and Wednesday, Feb. 1 and 2.

This news was released here today by M. D. Harrison, internationally famous director of Harrison Hair and Scalp Specialists.

In his announcement, Harrison named staff trichologist J. Arthur to conduct the Victoria clinic. Arthur will personally examine hair-worried men and women from 1 p.m. to 8 p.m. Tuesday and Wednesday at the Hotel Sussex.

EXAMINE YOU FREE

"I want to make it clear that you incur no charge or obligation by seeing Mr. Arthur", director Harrison said.

"Your only obligation is to yourself — to free your mind of worries about hair loss, dandruff, itching, or other scalp disorders, by learning how to take care of your hair. If your trouble is beyond the scope of Harrison Home-treatment, we will frankly tell you so. But less than five per cent of the people we examine are 'hopeless'."

OFFERS NO CURE-ALL

"We always make a personal examination before suggesting any treatment," he pointed out. "There is no one cure-all that will correct every one of the 18 scalp disorders that cause most baldness."

Harrison said that sometimes your treatment must be changed after a few weeks to get best results. "For this reason, you mail regular reports of your hair progress to the Harrison headquarters in Vancouver.

"Also, your scalp condition is checked personally by a Harrison trichologist at regular intervals."

WHO CAN BE HELPED?

Will this new treatment cure baldness? "No", said Harrison sincerely. "We can not help men who are slick-bald after years of gradual hair loss. But where your scalp still grows hair, we can at least save and improve what you have. Usually, we can grow more hair even where you have only 'fuzz' now."

The important thing is: Don't wait until it's too late!

SATISFY 95%

"Our biggest problem is not in doing what we claim to do," declared Harrison. "We satisfy more than 95 per cent of our clients, and have records to prove it.

"But to overcome the average man's initial skepticism is sometimes difficult. He's usually quite desperate—and baldish — by the time he nerves himself to see a Harrison trichologist. He's 'tried everything.' So he starts consoling himself with one of the old superstitions about hair:

That baldness is hereditary; that men naturally lose hair as they get along in years; that nothing can be done to stop hair loss — and a lot of other notions that we know are not true today.

FREE SCALP EXAMINATION

See Mr. Arthur in person. Learn how baldness can be stopped, and new hair grown on your own scalp. The new Harrison method permits you to actually stop your baldness and regrow hair in the privacy of your own home.

For a free examination and discussion of your hair problems ask the desk clerk at the Hotel Sussex Tuesday and Wednesday between 1 p.m. and 8 p.m. for Mr. Arthur's suite number.

You don't need an appointment. You won't be embarrassed or obligated in any way. Examinations are given in private.

Curtis Raps Pageant Plan

"I think it's possible we will pull out of it," he said.

"I think it is entirely possible to pull out. I don't think we've signed a formal agreement that is irrevocable."

The reeve said Saanich is committed to spend money in 1966 and 1967 on Centennial celebrations but "I would think that even at this date we could say we're going to have our own celebrations."

He said it would be "a major blunder" for the Greater Victoria Centennial Society to proceed further with plans to hire the Rogers Producing Company of Ohio to take charge of Centennial events.

"It could very easily result in a deficit situation which would go back to the municipalities and leave a very bad taste at the end of 1967," he said.

EXAGGERATED

"Among other faults, it contains unrealistic and exaggerated estimates of revenues to be derived from several celebration events," he said.

"It can't help but result in a deficit operation for our two centennial years."

He said the American company specializes in producing pageants "and you can't build a two-year celebration around a pageant."

Reeve Curtis said he gauged public opinion locally to be opposed to a costly centennial party.

"They seek appropriate and modest events using local talent and abilities which will truly reflect our centennial theme," he said.

POLICY NOT BORROWED OR IMPOSED

OTTAWA (CP)—External Affairs Minister Martin said today that Canada's foreign policy is not borrowed or imposed. And he doubted whether critics "realize the extent and intensity of the work which is done to produce exactly that kind of policy."

Mr. Martin told a luncheon meeting of the Canadian Club the independence of Canada's foreign policy is well-established by available evidence.

"Where there are good reasons to take a stand different from that of allies or friends, we do so. This is the point which tends to be overlooked and which I accordingly stress."

Mr. Martin said it is senseless to argue that Canada could demonstrate its independence simply by critizing United States policy in Viet Nam. Such an argument could be based only on the premise that the U.S. is totally wrong and North Viet Nam totally right. This was not the case.

CITES RED TRADE

He said there have been other cases in which Canada had to take a stand that differed from allies. Trade with Communist countries was one example. "We have tried to develop contacts and exchanges provided the other side was prepared to deal with us on a basis of genuine reciprocity."

Canada had also made it clear that "we recognized the desirability" of having China in the United Nations, although its membership could not be supported by the Canadian government "on the terms it has so far set."

In reference to criticism concerning Canada's membership in military alliances, Mr. Martin asked: "I wonder how seriously these critics have considered the overwhelming limitations on our independence and on our fruitful participation in world affairs which isolation, neutrality and military weakness would create."

Destroyer Drydocked For Refit

Much of the ship's equipment will be overhauled and in some cases modernized.

There will also be some new equipment installed adding to the ship's general fighting efficiency.

At the height of the work, some 275 personnel will be kept busy.

This is the first major refit since the ship was built. She has meanwhile sailed some 100,000 miles.

Refit will be completed in mid-May.

Local MPs to Support Hospital Vote Change

Two local members of Parliament are going to sponsor a petition to change the Elections Act so that hospitalized voters can cast ballots in federal elections.

The petition, signed by more than 5,000 Victorians, was sent to Ottawa last week by Mrs. Judy Nyquist, 1848 Carnarvon, who is leading the drive to change the electoral law.

Mrs. Nyquist today urged anyone who has not signed the petition but is in favor of it to write their representative at Ottawa and indicate their support.

She said Victoria Liberal David Groos and Esquimalt-Saanich Conservative George Chatterton have both indicated they will raise and support the matter in the House.

Mrs. Nyquist is also trying to enlist the support of Nanaimo New Democrat Colin Cameron in an attempt to rally all-party support for her objective.

She wants the law changed so that persons in hospital on election day can cast a vote in the same way as absentee voters. At present if a person is hospitalized there is no means by which they can cast a ballot.

Mrs. Nyquist has written Secretary of State Judy LaMarsh that the petition is on its way to Ottawa. Said she, "I don't care who puts it before the House so long as its main purpose remains intact and it does not become a political issue."

INSECTS THREATEN 5 TOWNS

MANILLA (Reuters) — An army of gnats and spiders is threatening five towns in Laguna province in the Philippines, it was learned today.

President Ferdinand Marcos ordered government agencies to extend full assistance to the stricken towns, on the main island of Luzon.

During the last two weeks, swarms of the tiny winged insects have made it impossible for the townspeople to work, eat or sleep in peace.

Last week, spiders began covering acres of rice fields with thick cobwebs to entrap the gnats.

Anti-Semitic Daubs Said Nazi Revival

BERLIN (Reuters)—A prominent West German Protestant said Sunday West German authorities are trying to play down signs of re-emergent Nazism.

Provost Dr. Heinrich Grueber, who was imprisoned in two Nazi concentration camps for helping Jews hunted by the Gestapo, and appeared as a witness at the Eichmann trial in Jerusalem said at a meeting here:

"Is it not alarming that in today's Germany official authorities try to present in a harmless light all the things which only a generation ago meant the beginning of the bitter end?"

He added that recent swastika daubings and anti-Semitic incidents involving young Germans could not be blamed on today's youth.

"The root of the evil is that certain groups of adults, particularly teachers and educationists, are today still not willing to abandon the old Nazi ideas."

Nuclear Percentages

THE SPECTRE OF NUCLEAR warfare is never far from the Viet Nam scene. For many persons the fear of escalation into a war with Red China is the greatest danger of the Viet Nam campaign. And such a war, if the worst fears were realized, could conceivably—perhaps inevitably — involve the United States' major weapon.

Against such a background of potential catastrophe there is a chill warning in the words of a United States nuclear expert who said on Saturday that Communist China may perhaps be deterred from war only by maintenance of a very large nuclear bomber fleet or by missiles of a type much larger than those now in the American armament.

The expert, Dr. R. E. Lapp, took issue with the Pentagon view that nuclear missiles can provide all the force necessary to meet both Russian and Chinese opposition. The existing B52 bombers, he contends, are vitally necessary to any nuclear attack on Red China.

To the layman, however, the text of Dr. Lapp's statement takes on an air of "Dr. Strangelove" and similar spoofs of the nuclear military age, for the almost casual calculation of vast destruction exhibits a detachment which the man in the street can hardly attain.

U.S. Defence Secretary McNamara, for instance, reasons that it would take only a portion of the American force of Polaris and Minuteman missiles, exploded over 50 Chinese cities, to "destroy half of the urban population (more than 50 million people) and destroy more than half of their industry".

Dr. Lapp's reply is that China is only one-sixth urbanized and a loss of 50 million people would represent only 7 per cent of the Chinese population. In comparison, Russia suffered a loss of more than 10 per cent during the last world war.

Dr. Lapp gives his belief that the Red Chinese leaders do not yet properly understand nuclear war and may be unaware of the real consequences of the atom as a weapon. And from this he reasons that only a demonstration of obviously overwhelming power by the United States—i.e. the maintenance of an awesome strength of nuclear armaments—will impress the Chinese and deter them from military adventures on a large scale. This, he adds, is quite a different problem from that involving Russia, whose leaders fully understand the implications of nuclear war and share the United States' desire to avoid it.

The overwhelming force referred to by Dr. Lapp would be one that could deliver 400 super-bombs to Red China — enough to wipe out more than 50 per cent of the population. This, he calculates, would be an "unacceptable" loss to the Chinese leaders, and a prospect that would deter them from starting the chain of actions that would lead to war.

There may be much in what the Pentagon and other experts affirm. But the non-military mind is plagued by the side-effects of such reasoning. What, it may be wondered, will be the eventual effect on the philosophy or mental attitude of a country which has the constant knowledge that it can wipe out half of the most populous country on earth in a matter of hours? Can any nation hold such power and not be affected by it?

Secondly, what must be the eventual state of mind of other countries, knowing constantly that they could cease to exist at the pressure of a button or the placing of a phone call by the leaders of a powerful neighbor with whom they may not always be on the most friendly terms?

The deterrent effect of nuclear armaments has been widely agreed, where this involves two countries such as Russia and the United States, which have closely comparable nuclear strengths. This effect depends largely on the continuing cool and rational balancing of forces and potential results by persons who do not become excited. But for other countries, such as Red China—how long can this sort of existence persist? A position under the sword of Damocles is not conducive to calm nerves. How long can a large, unpredictable nation live under the bomb before something snaps?

He Looks Like an Ombudsman

THE "COMPENSATION CONSULTANT" proposed by Mr. Justice Tysoe "to represent workmen in some of the most contentious cases that go before the board of review" has been quickly dubbed an "ombudsman" following submission of the royal commissioner's report on operations of the provincial Workmen's Compensation Board.

This is a suggestion to overcome the difficulties of an applicant without specialized training who is frequently subjected to expert questioning by specialists on the board. By the appointment of a highly qualified and completely independent lawyer the workmen's case could be presented more adequately, the commissioner believes. He also feels that the composition of the board of review should be altered in the interests of impartiality.

A change seems in order both for the benefit of the workmen covered by the compensation act and for the agency which awards compensation. But if it is desirable to create what has been called an ombudsman for the operation of the Workmen's Compensation Act and its agency, why stop there? Many other government agencies have been subjected to adverse criticism that might have been avoided if an ombudsman had been available to take up contentious matters with the parties concerned and straighten out misunderstandings before they became serious disputes.

Mr. Bonner some time ago discounted the advantages of having an ombudsman, on the grounds that each member of the legislature should act in the capacity of public advocate for anyone who called upon his services. Apparently Mr. Justice Tysoe has doubts about the qualifications of all members to act as "compensation consultant" in Workmen's Compensation cases. Is there any reason to believe that all members of the legislature are competent to be ombudsmen in other specialized fields?

More Cars, More Hazards

WHETHER IT IS EVIDENCE of affluence in this province or a conviction by a high percentage of our residents that private transportation is essential, the report that British Columbia has the highest per capita automobile ownership in Canada has emphasized one of our problems.

There are 10 cars for every 30 residents in British Columbia, according to the records. Ontario stands next with 10 cars for every 33, and the Canadian ratio is 10 for every 38 people.

This obviously does not mean that in British Columbia we have more cars on our highways than do other more populous provinces. But it does suggest that a larger percentage of our people are car drivers and that we may be dipping deeper than most into the barrel of driver competency when they are issued licences.

Added to this is the fact that our provincial terrain is often precipitous and many of our roads more dangerous than the straight, flat highways of the prairies.

Accepting these indices of extra potential hazards, it becomes imperative that we in British Columbia drive that much more carefully to curtail the slaughter on the highway which, on a national basis, outpaces the casualties of many wars.

FROM SAIGON

By JOSEPH ALSOP

A Call-Up to Follow the Peace Pause?

AFTER the grim meeting in Vienna, President Kennedy came home to order an immediate call-up of the nation's reserves. This was his answer to Nikita Khrushchev's threat to take Berlin by naked force. Those were the days before the reform and modernization of the armed services; and in consequence the call-up was carried out rigidly and without proper selectivity. For a time, people in quite superfluous reserve units were hauled out of civilian life, only to cool their heels with nothing real to do.

Alsop

Perhaps this is the reason for President Johnson's reported habit of privately criticizing, even mocking his predecessor's call-up decision. The criticism is, of course, wholly unjustified. If President Kennedy had not had the wisdom and courage to call the reserves that summer, Khrushchev might well have acted on his Vienna threats.

Demonstration of Will

It was a time, in fact, when American will and resolution had to be demonstrated by deeds, not words. Khrushchev did not believe Kennedy's words, but he well understood Kennedy's deeds. And the lesson by deeds thereupon transmuted the Vienna threats into mere empty bluster.

It may be, of course, that President Johnson's reported criticism of the Kennedy call-up is in some sense defensive. The question of calling up the reserves, in order to gain a needed margin for the war in Viet Nam, was put before President Johnson last summer. And after a highly-publicized review of the matter, he refused to do what President Kennedy had so swiftly done four years earlier.

At that time, it must be added, the President's decision was justified by the military facts, if not by the political factors. The additional units required at that time by General Westmoreland could be provided, and were provided, without a call-up.

At that time, in fact, the main argument for calling up the reserves was the same old need to prove by deeds that the United States really meant business. In other words, the aim, then, was simply to convince the North Viatnamese Communists that it would be futile to raise the ante, when the chips on the table already included the entire armed might of the United States.

Ante Raised

No one can tell, now, whether or not a call-up in the summer of 1965 would have affected Hanoi as the call-up in the summer of 1961 affected Moscow. The opportunity, if it existed, was missed. Hanoi raised the ante.

How far Hanoi has raised the ante must be examined in detail in another report. For present purposes, it is enough to say that South Viet Nam has now been invaded by a considerable part of the regular North Vietnamese army. This has, in turn, changed the whole balance of the war, to the point where the force levels already authorized for General Westmoreland are wholly inadequate. Truly adequate force levels can no longer be attained in time, in fact, unless the reserves are quickly called up.

Such was the situation, it can be confidently stated, that confronted President Johnson more than a month ago when he decided to launch his famous peace offensive. He made this decision, it can be further stated, in the face of explicit and authoritative warnings that as far as the war was concerned, the peace offensive was likely to produce negative results in both North and South Viet Nam.

These warnings have all been too amply justified. Communist morale, which had been badly shaken, has been quite obviously bolstered by the seeming proof of American irresolution and weakness of will. South Vietnamese morale, and even in some degree the morale of of the Americans in Viet Nam, had been perceptibly depressed.

Nevertheless, the peace offensive will have served a very useful purpose, if it turns out to have been the planned prelude to doing what now needs to be done.

Grave Decision

The test is not that the pause in the northern bombing was terminated by the President. The test is whether the reserves are to be called up in the near future. This is a grave decision for the President to take, though not much graver, to be sure, than the decision his predecessor took with such happy results. There is no one of any consequence out here, however, who does not believe that the decision is not necessary and even urgent.

Unfortunately, there are all too many people here who fear that the President will try to get by with half measures and even quarter measures, "anyway, until after the election" as they always say. But surely these people will be proved wrong in the end. Surely Lyndon B. Johnson is not that kind of President.

I should like to commend Arthur Mayse on his article on the subject of U.S. policy and Communism.

Unfortunately Arthur Mayse missed a very salient point which, in my opinion, is the cause or roots of subversion commonly called Communism.

I lived abroad for some 30 years and have personal experience of this subject. If a man is subjected to live in a palm shack with a small corn patch and a few chickens and has no hope of changing his lot surely one cannot blame him for being discontented. However, if he shows his discontent in any form he is subjected to stern reprisals by the petty armies which are maintained in so many of the dictator countries of the world. This same man sees a very small minority living in utter splendor whereas he has no hope for the future. Surely if such conditions existed here in Canada many of us would rebel but under present circumstances these wretched masses have to accept their lot in life. If they rebel they are immediately called Communists by our southern neighbor. In actual fact very few of these people have ever heard of Karl Marx or Communism.—M. P. B. Wrixon, 2530 Lansdowne.

No Expert

There has been some recent correspondence by your readers concerning a public meeting of the Victoria Branch, United Nations Association in Canada, January 19. Lt.-Cmdr. Wiwcharuck spoke then on the subject of Viet Nam. He was invited as guest speaker because it was believed that as a member for one year of the International Control Commission, with service in both North and South Viet Nam, he would make a useful contribution to public appreciation in Victoria of the tragic problem of that country.

The speaker emphasized at the start of his talk that he was not an expert on the subject, that it was a most complex and difficult one and that the time available for its consideration was very inadequate. The viewpoints and information given were his own. Neither the Victoria branch nor the parent association supports any particular position on this subject.

The objective of the UN Association in Canada is to provide informed support for the United Nations in this country. We welcome the interest and assistance of all who believe in the UN and wish to help support it.—John A. Chapman, President, Victoria Branch, U.N. Association in Canada.

Viewed With Pride

As a visitor to Victoria who has just returned from the opening of the Legislature, would you please permit me to express my appreciation for the band and guard of honor of the Queen's Own Rifles of Canada?

This detachment, comprised mainly of fine young Canadian soldiers proudly wearing their United Nations' Cyprus Medal, were a great credit to themselves. Their discipline and steadiness through their long wait outside the Legislature was exemplary.

Their forefathers who served in the First and Second World Wars would have been proud of their Old Regiment if they could have seen them this day.—War-Amp.

DEPARTMENT'S PROGRAM

DEFINITE PROPOSALS

Five Objectives to Help Indians

Extract from an address by Mr. R. F. Battle, assistant deputy minister, Indian Affairs Branch, to the Trinity College Conference on the Canadian Indian, at Trinity College, Toronto.

AS WE enter a new year, with a new set-up in departmental organization, I would like to point out the five main objectives which we in the Indian Affairs Branch consider must be pursued vigorously if real and lasting results are to be achieved:

First, an accelerated program in education. Increasing emphasis must be placed on vocational training, and retraining for employment, with assistance in job placement, adult education courses, kindergartens, and an even greater use of provincial schools.

Industrial Development

Second, an expanded program of industrial and resource development in economically viable communities, with more attention to the relocation of families and groups to areas with employment opportunities. Our development programs have been based mainly on such traditional resources as fur, fish, forests and farmland. They have been carried out in some instances through joint agreements with the provinces. We need new dimensions in programming to provide for loans and other incentives as a means of fostering both industrial development on reserves where feasible and the movement of families to places where full-time employment is available. Any industrial or relocation project would of course require working closely with the Indians concerned.

Third, a reserve improvement program. A housing survey last year indicated a serious shortage of adequate houses and the necessary facilities and community services. We know that many Indians feel that more attention must be given to this. They must have the opportunity of attaining standards of living that are accepted and enjoyed by Canadians generally. This is of real concern to my Minister. Financial assistance must be provided in much greater measure to overcome the backlog of housing needs and meet the need for electrical, water, sewage and other community services.

Fourth, and this is a major objective, is the development of local self-government. We would like to see Indian bands where possible operating in much the same way as municipalities. A start has been made in this direction, and it is hoped that it will be given impetus in the next five years. Provision is made for grants to bands, where required, which will help them to establish their own band civil service.

Provincial Services

Fifth, the extension of provincial services to Indians. Some provincial services are now provided. Where bands so desire and arrangements can be made with a province, additional services will be made available. This does not mean that the federal government, in making such arrangements, has any intention of avoiding or delegating its constitutional responsibilities.

These are the broad objectives. They will require constant review—by the Indian people, by government, and by an informed public. Of particular importance will be the critical examination by specialists from the universities and research agencies. . . .

We have a difficult assignment: there are many voices being heard today from all directions, concerning the Indian people and the place they must have in our society. These voices are not speaking in unison, but rather cover a very wide range of views, even among the Indians themselves.

Afraid of Change

For instance some Indians, particularly the older ones, are afraid of change. They cling tenaciously to old customs and traditions and understandably so. They know what they have and though at times it may not seem as much as they truly deserve, by some standards, it is nonetheless their own. At the other extreme are those, usually much younger, who want to see sweeping changes made and made quickly. They would discard the old ways, even sweeping aside all special distinctions. At times, some of them may really not know what they want, so long as there is a change.

Then there are the moderates or middle-of-the-roaders. They want to retain their cherished lands, but still develop them; to maintain their traditional relationship with the federal government, but still share in some of the services available to other Canadians; to assume increasing responsibility for the administration of their own affairs, but not sever abruptly their ties with our local administrations. They would like their young people to be assisted, through education and training to move with pride and confidence into Canadian society, without feeling that they need on this account to give up their connection with their reserves.

Want Better Conditions

They want to improve substantially the living conditions so that their children may enjoy a healthy environment that will encourage the development of mind and body and prepare them for the challenges and the responsibilities of the complex society of today and tomorrow.

In summary, we must move forward on a broad front. I have cited five principal objectives:

1. More and better education;
2. Resource development and employment opportunities;
3. A reserve improvement program—better homes and other community services;
4. Local self government; and
5. Further extension of provincial services.

These are the directions in which we are going. They may not to you seem to be so new or different, but what to us is different is the new emphasis now being given to them. There is determination among Indian leaders and the department that the next five years will see real progress and achievement in these important fields.

As we move together in these directions the department must concentrate its attention upon them and not be sidetracked into endeavors of far less importance. We must be flexible enough to meet changing conditions but resolute enough to remain on course. Only in this way do I feel we can carry out our duty to the Indian people and to other Canadians; and indeed that and that alone is our responsibility and our purpose.

Looking Back

From The Times of Jan. 31, 1906:

Victorians should awaken to the fact that negotiations are now being carried on between McGill University and the citizens of Vancouver tending toward the establishment, in that city, of a university.

We should at this time warn the Minister of Education that no steps should be taken to make Vancouver a seat of learning for the adolescent mind without giving Victoria equal opportunity.

Victoria, with its favored climate, scenery, historic interest, moral, social and economic atmosphere, is better suited to a university site.

TRAPPED BY FEAR

The peoples of the world are trapped in a vicious circle composed of notions of superiority and inferiority, of suspicion, misconceptions, preconceptions, frustrations and insecurity. Above all there is fear. It is fear that sets the racial moods, and if we are to break the vicious circle we must concentrate our assault upon these racial fears in all their forms. Hatred and intolerance are not innate in peoples; they are the children of fear, as fear is the child of ignorance.

S. Africa's Immorality Act Tries to Keep Races 'Pure'

By STANLEY UYS

CAPE TOWN—A detective climbed through a window of the house of a prominent white resident of De Aar, a small sheep-farming town in the Cape Province, and found the man's 40-year-old unmarried daughter in bed with a colored Anglican priest.

He arrested them. The magistrate sentenced each to nine months' imprisonment, suspended for three years because of "mitigating circumstances."

Under the Immorality Act, enacted by the Nationalist Government in 1950, five thousand people have been convicted. This was one of the more poignant tragedies.

The detective told the court that he and two other detectives saw the couple, Gisela Emile Becker, a librarian, and Noel Albert Edward Kow, 30, kissing and watched them go into a bedroom the next day.

The detectives clearly ignored an earlier warning by a supreme court judge that it was the duty of the police to prevent the commission of Immorality Act offences, and not to wait until the offence had been committed and then pounce triumphantly on the offenders.

An Extension

The Immorality Act of 1950 extended a 1927 prohibition on sexual intercourse between whites and Africans to include Coloreds (of mixed race descent); and then in a 1957 amendment, the prohibition was extended further to make it an offence, "to commit or attempt to commit an immoral or indecent act."

This amendment widened the scope of the Immorality Act so much that, for example, in the four years between 1957 (when the amendment was passed) and 1960, almost as many people were prosecuted as were prosecuted in the seven years between 1950 and 1957.

When the detectives entered the room they photographed the couple lying in bed, covered by a blanket. Kow's priest's frock was hanging behind the door and his collar was on a chair.

In evidence, Miss Becker said she had a BA degree and had also completed a course in social science. She had done welfare work in South Africa and later in London at a hospital. When she returned to South Africa she had joined the Cape Provincial Library Service at De Aar.

She met Kow at a church gathering in 1964 and they had discussed the resuscitation of the non-white library which had fallen into disuse. They found they had mutual interests and she visited Kow at the mission, where she gave him what assistance she could.

Parents Away

He had not visited her at her home until her parents went away on a holiday. Then she had invited him for the "odd meal and a talk." On the night they were arrested, they had not planned anything. Then she had succumbed to temptation.

A senior member of the Library Service told the court that Miss Becker would be dismissed. She had been recommended for the post of senior librarian for the Northern Cape Province, but now this would fall away.

The Bishop of Kimberley and Kuruman, the Right Reverend Clarence Crowther, who gave evidence in mitigation, said Kow had been in charge of the St. Thomas Mission Church in De Aar location (a location in a non-white segregated township).

Bishop Crowther said he had found Kow a sensitive, intelligent and charming person with intellectual interests. He was a priest of great potential, and because of this arrangements were made to send him to America as a chaplain to a university there.

Bishop Crowther added that, after his arrest, Kow had been suspended as a priest and would no longer be sent to America. He would be sent instead to a monastery in the Transkei (an African reserve area in the Eastern Cape Province) for rehabilitation for an indefinite period. He would lead a life of very strict discipline there. Kow probably would never be able to work as a priest again in South Africa.

In the 14 years in which the Immorality Act tragedies have been unfolded in the courts, churchmen have joined with politicians and the press to condemn the Act. The government, however, has refused to repeal or even to modify the Act's provisions, which it claims are essential to prevent racial "mixing" and to help to keep the boundaries line between the white and non-white groups clearly drawn.

Conviction under the Immorality Act, in a race-conscious country like South Africa, is a career-ruining misfortune. Several white men have committed suicide rather than face trial. One, a 52-year-old farmer, shot himself. Another, a 45-year-old father of two children, hanged himself from a tree. A third, a 46-year-old father of four children, gassed himself in his car.

No Fine Option

The usual penalty for an Immorality Act offence is imprisonment without the option of a fine (the customary period is six or nine months). The maximum penalty is seven years' imprisonment, and the courts may impose up to 10 lashes on male offenders.

If the number of prosecutions is any guide, however, the Immorality Act has failed as a deterrent. A police officer has estimated in court that for every offender brought to trial, a hundred remain undiscovered. Among the persons charged during the Act's operation are policemen, ministers of religion, prominent business men, farmers, public servants, and a former prime minister's private secretary.

Most Immorality Act offences are commited by white men and African women, but Colored, and occasionally Asian women, too, are involved. Less frequently, white women are charged with having committed the offence with non-white men.

Among white women charged was the Swedish journalist, Sara Lidman, who was arrested with a well-known African politician, Peter Nthite. (Later the charge against Miss. Lidman was withdrawn and she left the country.)

Police Watch

Blonde, German-born Ilsa Seip, who has since married a Colored jazz pianist from Cape Town, Cecil Barnett, and is living in London, has told how she was once watched by police after she and Barnett had been involved in a car accident. A policeman noticed that they were wearing identical rings, and this was sufficient ground for suspicion. They were not arrested or charged, however, and they left for England.

A white bus conductor, though, who was fond of playing cards late at night with a Colored family, was less fortunate—he was charged. A member of the Colored family testified that they had helped the white man when he was down and out, giving him food and clothing.

The magistrate acquitted the white man, but advised him to break off his friendship with the Colored family. "For a white man to have social contact with non-whites," he said, "is to run a very grave risk."

Other magistrates have expressed themselves more emotionally. One warned against the "severe social consequences of the mongrelism of race groups."

THE SCIENTIFIC WAY TO BREW A 'CUPPA'

NEW SCIENTIST, LONDON

When pouring a cup of tea the question may be asked: should the milk be put in the cup first and the tea added to it, or vice versa?

Similarly, should the water used for making the infusion be only just boiled, or should the heating be continued until all the temporary hardness has been precipitated out of it?

These and other questions have recently been resolved as far as they can be by R. F. Smith and G. W. White, of Lyons Laboratories, London W.6, who have determined spectrophotometrically what effects the various approaches to tea-making have on color and brightness. Their results confirm the subjective assessments of professional tea tasters, whose extra knowledge of flavor and so on has been used to fill the gaps.

Infusions made with naturally soft water, they have found, are brighter, though less colored, than those made with hard water. Boiling the latter for about ten minutes or so to remove temporary hardness has the same effect, as when using soft water, but then the tea tastes flat. This is because not only are calcium and magnesium carbonates precipitated, but also carbon dioxide is prematurely released.

The time required for infusion naturally depends on how long it takes for the soluble constituents to be extracted from the leaf. Smith's earlier work has shown this to be about ten minutes, with an optimum for flavor at five minutes — so "brewing" for longer than this is unnecessary. On the other hand, brewing for less than five minutes will almost certainly result in loss of some brightness.

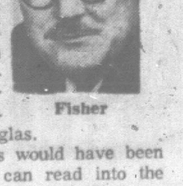
As to the order in which the milk should be added, the study has shown quite conclusively that, for a better color, the milk should be put in the cup first. Whether the taste this gives is preferred is a matter for the individual, but the effect is real and depends, it is believed, on the order in which phenolic constituents of the tea react with casein molecules of the milk.

If the milk is put in the cup first a somewhat different set of reactions takes place than if it is put in last. Scalding of the milk also affects taste, and this is likely to occur when cold milk is added to scalding-hot tea.

Same Faces, Same Script For This Parliament, Too

By DOUGLAS FISHER

OTTAWA—The House of Commons has partially solved its procedural difficulties by accepting most of the reforms introduced late in the last Parliament. Its delay in doing so, and the complications, is one augury of a future similar to the contentious past.



Fisher

Another was the attempt by the ginger group of Tories, symbolized by Erik Nielsen, to oust Real Caouette and Bob Thompson from the traditional courtesy of leading off major debates after Messrs. Diefenbaker, Pearson and Douglas.

What a boomerang this would have been if it had succeeded; one can read into the government's refusal to support the Tories a bid for minor party support. But something much more practical was involved.

If this attempt to downgrade Caouette and Thompson had succeeded, the Creditistes would have had the same weapon—a simple motion that someone else now be heard—to set the voting bells ringing every time a Tory rose to speak.

The fundamental difficulty of a multiple-party, minority Parliament remains. It was a feature of the speeches of all the party leaders. What is a "want of confidence" motion? Is there any way to break the circle of ingrained practice? Can there be either criticism of the government or new policy suggestions without endangering the collapse of this Parliament by a vote that brings down the government?

It is clear that the government has decided to take its chances without making any deals with one of the minority groups. In "risk" terms, this is fairly sound. It is even more clear that the Conservatives have chosen to be militant in opposition — and that is the tradition while goring the minor parties at every chance for any suggestions or actions which demonstrate co-operation with the government. This is cowardice; this is hypocrisy . . . or so they say.

The twofold object is to keep alive the prospect that at the next vote, the government may go down and to make the minor groups, especially the New Democrats, seem spineless parasites, clinging to the Liberal host.

So . . . it's more of the same. The first week could have been the first week last year or the year before. Each party left to fight a war on two or more fronts.

The question periods have been replicas of the past the only change being a bit surer touch by the new Speaker. The speeches of the mover and seconder, new Liberal MPs, were banal as usual, e.g., Robert Stanbury saying: "Of all York-Scarboro's wealth, the greatest is its children."

The party leaders recapitulated the election campaign, Mr. Diefenbaker with a helter-skelter verve, Mr. Pearson with haphazard, confident dignity, Mr. Douglas with his usual over-serious parade of statistics, and so on. So far the same. The denouement should be too, coming some time in 1968 with another dissolution on the initiative of the prime minister, probably the same one we have today.

By A. L. TODD

(Todd is the author of "Justice on Trial: The Case of Louis D. Brandeis.")

It is in the cards dealt in the continuing game of American politics that there may soon be again a controversy resembling that which broke out just 50 years ago, on the afternoon of Friday, Jan. 28, 1916.

The longest, dirtiest, most important pitched battle ever waged over a presidential appointment was precipitated on that day by a brief message sent to the United States Senate by President Woodrow Wilson. It read:

"I nominate Louis D. Brandeis of Massachusetts to be associate justice of the Supreme Court of the United States, vice Joseph Rucker Lamar, deceased."

In 1916 the bitter struggle over confirmation of the controversial Louis D. Brandeis of Boston, lasting more than four months, reached far beyond the senate judiciary committee, his judge and jury. For this symbolic contest aroused emotions and divided friends as no other presidential appointment in history.

Can the American people be so divided today, by any appointment to an important office that President Jonnson might conceivably make?

It is easily possible that a deep division similarly charged with political passions will follow the naming of the first Negro to the Supreme Court of the United States, whether by Lyndon B. Johnson or another president. Such a nomination, rumored ever since John F. Kennedy came to the White House in 1961, seems inevitable within a reasonably short time.

The Big Card

It is like the big card that everyone at the table knows is being held for just the right moment. It is no longer a question of whether — but of when, and who.

The issues in a controversy over the first Negro named to the Supreme Court might at first seem remote from those involved in the Brandeis nomination that occupied the press and dinner-table talk a half-century ago. But a second look reveals some marked similarities.

Brandeis, born in Louisville and a graduate of the Harvard Law School, was the first Jew named to the Supreme Court. This fact played a part in the controversy over his nomination, but it was by no means the principal element.

Brandeis, a highly successful corporation counsel in Boston, was nationally known as an articulate advocate of public regulation of private enterprise. He believed in competition and the profit system, because the chance for a profit induced men to think and to work for their own advancement as well as to produce goods and services for the public.

But he also believed in limiting the freedom of those with money and power to buy, sell, or discard the masses of people who worked for a living. He therefore fought for minimum wage and maximum hours legislation, advocated collective bargaining between union and employer, and helped frame the 1914 Clayton Antitrust Act, the Federal Trade Commission Act and other regulatory measures.

To the vested interests who lacked his social vision, Brandeis was a dangerous "radical," bent on upsetting the established order. But in denouncing him and his reforms they did not state frankly what really enraged them: that Brandeis was the most capable courtroom advocate, writer and speaker on the other side of the bitter economic warfare of the time. Brandeis and men like him, they believed, were wrecking their grand, old laissez-faire way of life. The fact that Brandeis was a Jew only added to their enmity.

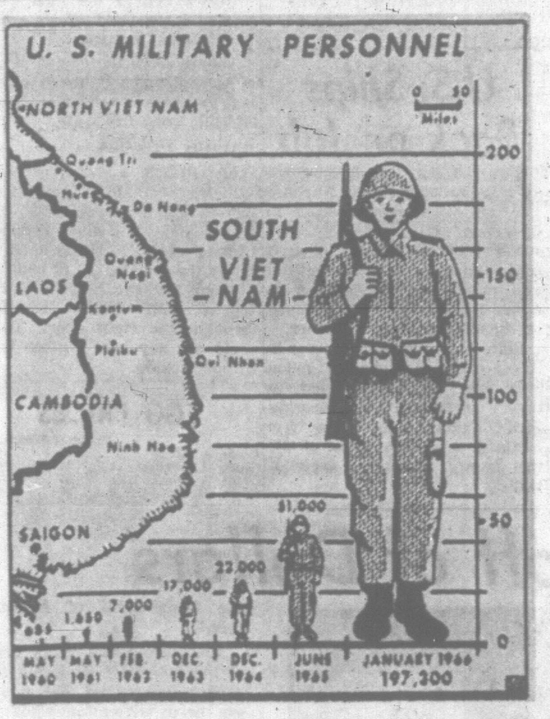
Ready Now?

What of the nomination of a Negro tomorrow? Is the country better prepared to accept a Negro as a member of the Supreme Court in the 1960s, than a Brandeis in Wilson's day? More to the point — would the senate judiciary committee, as long as James O. Eastland of Mississippi remains its chairman, approve the nomination of a Negro, no matter how distinguished?

It is a fact of life today that any Negro attorney of sufficient ability and prominence to be named to the Supreme Court will of necessity have a record of struggle for racial equality. This, in the eyes of separatists and racists, will make his nomination "controversial." Whoever he may be, he must have been involved as speaker, writer, or advocate in the compelling social struggle of recent years. He cannot have remained a completely neutral figure.

The nominee's words and deeds will be held up by the diehards of our era as evidence that he cannot judge fairly any of the many cases involving the race issue. His record will be scrutinized for every possible out-of-context wording, or petition signed, or committee joined, or emotional outburst later regretted, that can be used to smear him as "not a fit person to be a member of the Supreme Court of the United States."

The opposition will howl that the appointment is "purely political," that this man was chosen just because he is a Negro. They will claim the president is using the court seat as a bait to catch bloc votes. Those supporting the nomination will respond that he is fairly qualified to serve, and that the opposition is based purely on racial prejudice.



American forces ashore in Viet Nam are now set at 197,300 men and, according to U.S. military experts are expected to number as many as 350,000 by the end of this year.

In addition to the forces actually in Viet Nam, there are about another 115,000 in the Seventh Fleet, air bases adjacent to the country and in other areas giving support action.

Peak American strength in Korea toward the end of the war was about 472,000 men.

Pakistan's Ayub Khan Facing Stiff Challenge

By RALPH JOSEPH

KARACHI — While the Tashkent talks have helped to ease Indo-Pakistan relations, at least on the surface, they have proportionately increased the domestic problems of President Ayub Khan of Pakistan.

His popularity has taken a deep plunge for the first time since the undeclared war of last September.

This is mainly because his talks with the late Indian Prime Minister, Lal Bahadur Shastri, failed to produce any visible mechanism for a solution of the Kashmir issue — for which the war was fought.

Among other things, the nine-point Tashkent Declaration called on the armed forces of the two countries to withdraw by Feb. 25 to the positions they held Aug. 5, before fighting broke out. The antagonists agreed to settle their dispute through peaceful means and said full diplomatic relations would be restored.

Students demonstrating against what they consider as Ayub's failure at Tashkent fought pitched battles against well-trained riot police in various cities of Pakistan, including Lahore and Sialkot which bore the brunt of the fighting with India.

"What about our martyred fathers?" asked a banner carried by students in Lahore. This was a reference to those killed in the fighting with India and epitomises the emotionalism which the issue of Kashmir can arouse.

President Ayub has managed to take things in hand in his own way. He made a broadcast to the nation in an attempt to calm the emotions that had been stirred up. At the same time, six opposition leaders and some 100 students were arrested for defying a ban on gathering in public.

Calmer secions of the Pakistani public do seem to realize that there was not much more Ayub could have done in Tashkent anyhow. The talks were conducted with both hinself and Shastri handicapped by the fear that any concession either way would produce violent reactions at home.

Proves Point

If anything, the violence caused even by the relatively compromising tone of the Tashkent Declaration only goes to prove the point. There has been unfavorable reaction in India as well as in Pakistan.

Meanwhile talks for the withdrawal of Indian and Pakistani troops from their forward positions along the ceasefire line have been going on, apparently with some measure of success.

Though President Ayub's opponents are using his "failure at Tashkent" to make things difficult for him at home, there is paradoxically also a sense of relief that the chances of renewed hostilities are receding.

Shastri's death for a time did produce an element of uncertainty over whether the new Indian leadership would implement the declaration, but steps have already been taken to renew diplomatic relations. This would indicate that, for the time being at least, the desire for peace on both sides is genuine.

Meanwhile, the issue of Kashmir still hangs in the balance. The Pakistani president has shown that he is not unaware of the political danger this means for him personally. He had already made conciliatory moves towards the opposition parties at home, even before the Tashkent talks.

He has put forward feelers toward forming some sort of national government. These came some time after the ceasefire with India and could hardly have been prompted by a fear of renewed fighting, because the opposition parties had given him full support during the hostilities.

It was evident that he foresaw trouble from the opposition as soon as peace was established along the borders and hoped to pacify the more prominent opposition leaders by giving them positions in his cabinet.

Getting him for the first time in a somewhat tight spot, the opposition has not shown any excessive readiness to co-operate with him.

PRESIDENT AYUB
. . . political danger

One is that he make the constitution democratic, which would mean changing the system of franchise from indirect to direct. The other is that he give more power to the assemblies, which now are no more than rubber stamps to any ordinances the present administration wished to promulgate.

President Ayub has not yet shown any willingness to concede to these demands. He has been busy visiting abroad, first to the United States and then to Tashkent. The following months may see some interesting political manoeuvering at Rawalpindi and in East Pakistan.

Two Escape As Car Goes Down

CAMPBELL RIVER — A 27-year-old construction worker from Gold River drowned early Sunday when his car plunged from a trestle into 90 feet of water in Buttle Lake, 25 miles north of here.

Two other passengers escaped uninjured from the sinking vehicle.

Frogmen from the Naval Diving Establishment at Colwood were attempting today to recover the body of Garry Walker, a Grand Forks man employed by Tide Bay Construction Co. at Gold River.

His two companions, William Wilcox and Dale Efche, are also employed building the townsite at the logging community.

RCMP believe the men were returning to Gold River when the accident occurred.

They believe the car went out of control when it began crossing the trestle which is about 50 feet from the water.

RAISED PLANKS

An RCMP spokesman said vehicles normally travel along two raised planks to cross the trestle and if a wheel dropped from a plank it would tend to throw the vehicle out of control.

When the car hit the water Wilcox and Efche escaped through the right door. They could not say how Walker was trapped inside.

Gas Tank, Seats Found on Beach

CAMPBELL RIVER—A search was to continue today for logger Robert Edward McKay, 32, who has been missing in a small boat since Friday.

But hopes for his survival dimmed Sunday when a battered gasoline tank and seats believed from the 12-foot aluminum craft were found on Balmoral Beach near Comox.

U.S. Ships Back on Job

Two U.S. naval vessels which had to be towed into Nanoose Bay on Saturday are back in operation today.

Naval divers quickly cleared the trouble over the weekend and there was no damage to either the 175-foot New Bedford or the 72-foot Jaunty Brother.

Both ships were on torpedo firing exercises when a nylon tow rope became tangled in their propellers in Georgia Strait Friday night. The New Bedford carried a crew of 27, the Jaunty Brother a crew of six.

'Stop the Runoff of Dollars'

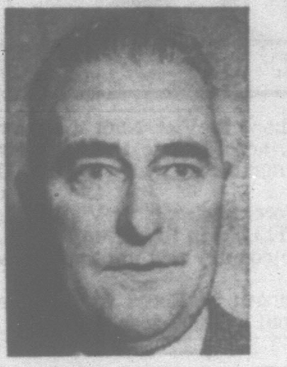
DUNCAN—Ald. Hamish Mutter, manager of Cowichan Co-Operative Society, called for action to stop a dollar drain to the United States.

He said last year 46,000 tons of alfalfa were imported from Washington to the lower mainland and Vancouver Island.

The cost to the farmers was $1,000 per 20-ton load.

Mr. Mutter told Cowichan Agricultural Society: "What we must do is produce more tons per acre ourselves to stop the runoff of dollars."

"Farmers must look to some authority for help, and the only authority I know of is the Department of Agriculture."



MUTTER

Mr. Mutter said every type of machinery is available for proper harvesting, but farmers need advice on what to grow.

"I'm trying to point out the seriousness of the whole situation.

"Inside 20 years our population on the Island will have doubled and farmers are going to be called upon to produce twice as much foodstuffs.

"We have to work out the answers now, not later."

Water Tests First Class Says Reeve

NORTH COWICHAN—"First class" results have been reported after an analysis of water from test wells in the Alexander subdivision area.

Reeve Don Morton said the next step is to designate water areas to be served and put a bylaw to the people.

The test wells were sunk in the hope of finding a supply for ratepayers in the Maple Bay, Somenos Lake and Drinkwater Road districts.

Herring Closure

The lower east coast of Vancouver Island is closed for herring fishing until Sept. 15 because most of the herring caught in this area recently have been immature.

Area director of fisheries, W. R. Hourston said the action was taken in the interests of protecting the supply of herring in this area.

CECILIA STARTS MOVE TO MILL BAY

The great animal shelter move from Metchosin to Mill Bay began Sunday.

An office building was moved to the new home fo the Good Shepherd Shelter and Mother Cecilia expects other buildings to be moved later this week.

By the end of next week she expects her half-dozen helpers and herself will be in the new home.

Several new buildings including a 90-foot kennel and barns have been built at the new site. Twenty dogs have already moved to their new home.

The remaining 150 cats, dogs and goats will move when new accommodation is ready at Mill Bay.

The new home is being looked after at the moment by three helpers from a non-denominational priory at White Rock which believes in universal friendship.

$57,000 TAG

The present 24-acre shelter property on Duke Road is still being offered for sale at $57,000.

The move to Mill Bay was caused by a zoning change in the Duke Road area that prevented expansion of animal care facilities.

Earlier, Mother Cecilia and the other sisters refused to follow a twice-issued church order to return to St. Mary's Priory in Colwood.

New Directors Take Office

They were Mel Massey, Peter Duke, Jack Prasloski and Fred Aspin.

SHOW WAY FOR CANADA?

Bureau to Be Boon For Working Woman

By ELIZABETH FORBES

Forbes

Establishment of a women's bureau within the labor department, as presaged in the throne speech at opening of the British Columbia legislature, ushers in a new era for working women.

It pinpoints the fact that the provincial government is aware of the growing numbers of women in the labor field and of their increased needs and problems.

Once fully established and with a competent staff, such a bureau will be geared to promote wider understanding of these needs and problems. It will also be concerned with advancing women's opportunities in employment.

Efficient and wise use of womanpower will go far in determining the future progress and strength of our province and it is important that women be made aware of the role which they can play in this growth.

The women's bureau will gather the necessary data and it will conduct studies and research regarding women workers and their jobs. It will assemble information related to women's work and make it available not only to the women concerned but to employers and all others interested.

* * *

Once it is fully functioning the bureau will be geared to advise the department of labor on its programs affecting women workers. And, it will be able to answer all inquiries regarding women's place in the labor force.

As the bureau program expands it will no doubt include the status of the older woman worker, employment opportunities of women workers in general, minimum wage laws, equal pay, the problems of the girl on her first job, pensions and other fringe benefits.

In the hearts of thousands of married women who work and who have children under the age of 16, it will be the hope that the new bureau will tackle the problem of supervised day care for such youngsters.

And, in doing so, show the way to other provinces in Canada.

* * *

Generally speaking, facilities for care of children of working mothers are most inadequate at present. There are some day care centres operated by a variety of agencies in large cities across the country but none are effectively controlled by government supervision.

To my knowledge, there is no attempt anywhere in Canada to provide after-school or lunchtime care for children of working mothers.

As for the pre-school-age children, there doesn't seem to be much to stop anybody, totally incompetent or otherwise, from placing an advertisement in the paper and taking these babies into care.

The new bureau could lead the way in this particular field. In doing so it would earn the gratitude of thousands of working mothers.

Last Dominion Bureau of Statistics figures show there is an increased number of women employed in the 45 to 65 age group. Numbers in the 35 to 45 age group gained momentum. An increasing proportion in the young group no longer leave the labor force when they marry.

* * *

Over-all total of women on payrolls in British Columbia is given as 188,000. One in every 20 is married and 10 per cent of all married women workers is widowed or divorced.

By now these figures will have increased, all across the board. With increased numbers comes increased needs and problems.

Establishment of a women's bureau has been the continuing dream of individuals and organizations, in this province, dedicated to improving conditions for women and children. That bureau is now a fact.

Every one of these individuals and organizations, as well as the 188,000 women who work, will watch with interest as the framework is built and an action program inaugurated.

Woman Claims Boy Innocent of Murder

TORONTO (CP) — A Toronto widow's crusade to prove that a teen-age boy was wrongly convicted in the 1959 killing and rape of a 13-year-old girl will get a full public airing in March with the publication of her book about the case.

Isabel LeBourdais, Clinton, B.C., widow of author D. M. LeBourdais, has spent the last four years writing The Trial of Steven Truscott.

Mrs. LeBourdais says she believes her book will prove that Truscott is innocent in the death of the girl, Lynne Harper, found raped and strangled in June, 1959, at Clinton, Ont.

The youth, 14 at the time, was convicted of murder and sentenced to life imprisonment. He is at present in Collins Bay penitentiary, Kingston, Ont., where Mrs. LeBourdais reports he is a model prisoner and in good spirits.

After the conviction, the author began investigating the case by reading the 2,500 pages of the trial transcript.

"I came to the conclusion that this was not a sick boy who needed treatment, but a normal boy who was innocent," she sid.

She said the youth was convicted on flimsy evidence.

Attorney-General Arthur Wishart said he has not heard of the book. "If Mrs. LeBourdais has additional evidence she can bring it to me. Certainly if there seems to be any merit I'll look into it at once."

Liberal's Election Ruled Void

REGINA (CP) — The April 22, 1964 provincial election in Canora constituency has been declared void in a court of Queen's Bench judgment.

Mr. Justice M. A. MacPherson, in his written judgment made the decision following hearings earlier this month at Yorkton held under the Controverted Elections Act.

Mr. Kuziak appealed under the act that procedures used during the election were irregular.

The decision, which can be appealed within 30 days, reduces the Liberal strength in the 59-seat legislature to 30 seats. The CCF have 26, there is one Progressive Conservative and two seats are vacant.

A byelection in Bengough constituency has been called for Feb. 16. It became vacant last fall on the death of Liberal MLA Sam Asbell.

2,500 Sign Insurance Petition

Petitions protesting private car insurance were signed by 2,500 persons Saturday at a shopping centre, one of the organizers said today.

Fred Bevis said because of the demand, another 500 petition forms will be printed and circulated in Greater Victoria. They seek public rather than private auto insurance.

At present, 1,000 petition sheets with space for a total of 30,000 signatures are being passed around.

"If people average only 50 per cent success in getting signatures we will have 15,000 names," he said.

He expected the petitions will be presented to the royal commission on car insurance, and asked that anyone with complaints get in touch with him so a formal brief accompanying the petitions may be presented to the commission.

Funeral Tuesday For Veteran Of Boer War

He is survived by the widow, Eleanor, at home, 706 Kings Road; two sons, Lt.-Commander J. M. Pitts, Ottawa and William H. of Victoria; four daughters, Mrs. A. V. Morrison, Mrs. B. Clements and Mrs. R. Parker, all of San Diego, Calif., and Mrs. Marguerite Clark of Montgomery, Ala.; 11 grandchildren.

Canon R. Willis will officiate at the service at 10:15 a.m., McCall Brothers' Chapel, Vancouver Street. Interment at Royal Oak Burial Park.

'THEY'RE ALL HUMAN BEINGS'

Religious Barriers Drop For Inmates of Prisons

By NORMAN CRIBBENS
Times Church Editor

Roman Catholic and Prostestant chaplains are now working together for the benefit of British Columbians serving jail terms.

"The old religious barriers are down," says Rev. H. Gordon Walker, Protestant chaplain to the Colquitz Jail on Wilkinson Road, who has just returned from a prison chaplains' conference in Vancouver.

"We no longer regard prisoners as Roman Catholic and Protestant but as human beings who need the services of the Christian church."

Mr. Walker said he is now planning joint classes of religious instruction at Colquitz Jail with Father Pierre Berger, the Roman Catholic chaplain.

"This is the current trend in all B.C. correctional institutes, and the conference in Vancouver was largely concerned with improving cooperative effort between the churches."

Mr. Walker, Father Berger and Rev. Trevor Williams of Campbell River were among 17 Anglican, Baptist, United Church and Roman Catholic chaplains attending the conference, which was held in Vancouver Public Library.

INSIDE AND OUT

"We were particularly encouraged by developments at the Haney correctional institute," Mr. Walker said. "The new co-operative spirit is evident, not only inside the institution but outside as well."

Joint services are held on alternate Sundays in the Haney churches of St. John's and St. Luke's. All prisoners attend and are joined by members of the local community.

. . . plans classes

The services are conducted by Protestant and Roman Catholic chaplains at the Haney institute. Religious dogma is avoided so that all may participate in a common form of worship, with hymns, prayers, Bible readings and addresses.

"The experiment has worked so well we would like to see it followed in other areas," Mr. Walker said.

"It is important, too, that people living in the vicinity of these institutions should show more concern for the inmates, so they do not feel cut off from community life.

"Being able to attend public services of worship helps to restore their confidence. And when they are discharged, local communities can perform a valuable service by accepting them as fellow human beings, not as a race apart.

"A man or woman who is accepted by the community and helped to find useful employment is much less likely to return to law-breaking."

ALCOHOL BLAMED

Chaplains attending the conference agreed that most inmates of correctional institutes are there because of offences committed under the influence of alcohol.

S. Rocksborough Smith, provincial director of corrections, spoke of the need for more research among alcoholic offenders and urged extension of personal counselling services.

Mr. Walker (who is also vicar of St. David-by-the-Sea, Cordova Bay) conducted a series of classes for fellow chaplains in the organization of padres' hours and discussion groups among inmates.

He recalled that until 1950 there was no regular chaplain service in B.C. correctional institutes.

The service was instituted that year at the request of the Vancouver Council of Churches and the first chaplain appointed was Rev. Grant Hollingsworth, now senior Protestant chaplain.

Victoria Yachtsmen Win Back Navy Cup

Royal Victoria Yacht Club members Sunday avenged themselves on the Royal Canadian Navy Sailing Association by regaining the trophy they lost last year.

At the end of the second weekend of sailing, this time on the navy's home ground of Esquimalt, RVYC finished with 26 wins to the navy's nine.

They went ahead both days, taking five races to the navy's four on Saturday and four to two on Sunday.

Champion for RCNSA was Mel Steffans.

Rocky Point Depot Wins Grand Award

The naval fire department at Rocky Point ammunition depot has been awarded the department of defence grand award.

The award was presented for fire prevention through inspection and education. The National Fire Protection Association of Boston, Mass., carried out judging.

The department also won top honors for establishment of its size across Canada, while the department at HMC Dockyard won honorable mention.

53 Ways to Entertain Once

This bachelor says it takes 53 "distinct acts of body and mind, ranging from laying a fire to putting out the silver, to prepare a meal for three guests." He tells how he managed to tick each item off the list—almost . . . and why, if nothing else, "at least I'll be a better guest." Don't miss your February Reader's Digest.

No nagging backache!

He used to be bothered by backaches and tired feeling. When he learned that irritation of the bladder and urinary tract can result in backache and tired feeling, he took Dodd's Kidney Pills. Smart man. Dodd's Pills stimulate the kidneys to help relieve the condition causing the backache and tired feeling. Soon he felt better—rested better. If you are bothered by backache, Dodd's Kidney Pills may help you, too. You can depend on Dodd's. New large size saves money.

GRAIN PRICES

WINNIPEG (CP)—Most prices were lower in dull trade today on the Winnipeg Grain Exchange. Declines were attributed to recessions on the Chicago grain market.

January rapeseed advanced the maximum permitted 15 cents for the fifth consecutive session in exceptionally light trade. It closed at $3.77½.

Other rapeseed contracts and flax futures advanced modestly in early trade but eased as Chicago soybean futures declined and local offerings became more liberal.

Oats and barley were firm in light trade. Most activity was domestic but a small oats sale to Europe was reported.

Rye declined slightly, neglecting the Chicago market.

CHICAGO (AP) — The grain futures market had slipped into fairly general weakness in the early afternoon today without showing any sign of a rally.

Losses ranged to more than a cent in rye and to more than two cents in wheat and soybeans. Corn was down major fractions at the extreme.

The early support was described as largely speculative and was believed to have been linked with the resumption of U.S. bombing of North Viet Nam.

MARKET SUMMARIES

Bombing Aids Defence Prices

Resumption of U.S. bombing of North Viet Nam boosted aerospace defence stocks on Wall Street today but other issues were uncertain. Losses were general in Vancouver while Toronto and Montreal prices were mixed.

AT NEW YORK volume for the day was estimated at 8,100,000 shares compared with 9,000,000 Friday.

Boeing ran up half a dozen points and Douglas Aircraft gained more than 2. United Aircraft held a fractional gain. General Dynamics erased a small gain and took a small loss.

AT VANCOUVER losses were general across the board today. Pyramid was a big loser, dropping $1.12 to $14.75. Patricia Silver, on a volume of 170,000 shares, was off 50 cents to $1.10. Brenda slipped 15 cents to $3.40, a new low.

Rolling Hills fell four cents to 78 on a volume of 46,900. Madrona slipped nine to $1.41, and Bornite was off three to $1.19. Arctic Mining slipped 15 cents to $2.30.

Among the gainers were Lytton Mines, up seven to 47, and Continental Consolidated, which added four to 23. Bata gained three to 60.

Royal American in the oils gained six to $1.32.

AT TORONTO speculative trading slowed in mid-afternoon but prices began to firm.

D'Eldona, which sagged to 1.18 in early action rallied to 1.38, off 22 cents while its neighbor in the Rouyn area of Quebec, Wilco, rallied to 66 cents from 55. At 66 it was down 10 cents from Friday's close. Green Point dipped 21 cents to 73 while Rayrock was up 11 cents at 1.24, Radiore 15 cents at 1.18 and Bankeno 8 cents to 48.

Industrials remained lower with banks leading the slide. Imperial Commerce eased ½ to 69, Montreal ¼ to 64⅝ and Royal ⅝ to 78¼. CPR, which last week said it had a 1965 profit decline, lost 1¼ to 63¼. Dofasco was ahead 1-59 29 on increased 1965 earnings and Algoma climbed ⅝ to 69¾.

Northern and Central Gas was unchanged at 31½ but a transaction of 90,000 shares at 31⅜, worth more than 2,800,000, crossed the tape.

In golds, Dome tacked on 1 to 42½ while base metals featured a gain of 1⅛ to Noranda at 54⅛.

AT MONTREAL utilities and papers were off but most other sections moved fractionally higher in moderately active trading.

Industrial volume was 107,300 and mines and oils 938,100.

The most active issue among the speculative mines and oils was Patricia Silver as it dropped 53 cents to $1.03. Commodore jumped 25 cents to $1.75.

Banks were mixed. Royal rose ½ to 79 and Nova Scotia ¼ to 74¼. Imperial Commerce declined ¾ to 68¾.

AT LONDON the stock market was firm, helped by stock shortage, after a quiet opening to the new account today.

'LESS VIGOR IN BOOM'

John A. Wallace is predicting three per cent higher prices because of strong demand, capacity operations and labor shortages.

Tight money will drag capital expenditures down to about 10 per cent increase against 18 per cent in 1965, he said.

"The outlook appears extremely optimistic and it is only to be hoped that as many major industries go to the bargaining table this year in the province, a sense of restraint prevails. . ."

QUIET TALKS EXPECTED IN BOOSTS

WASHINGTON (UPI)—President Lyndon Johnson's administration expects that more of the U.S. nation's businessmen will come in for "quiet talks" before scheduling any major price boosts.

This would give the president's council of economic advisers a chance to argue against any price moves it felt might contribute to inflation and avoid dramatic public clashes between the chief executive and business leaders, an informed source said during the weekend.

A similar invitation — with the same purpose—was held out to labor leaders who want to discuss wage demands in light of Johnson's anti-inflationary guideposts.

The administration, wary of congressional proposals to require hearings for waiting periods on price jumps in key industries, seems to prefer a more informal approach.

Reserve Freedom Pushed

OTTAWA (CP)—The Canadian Chamber of Commerce said today that unless Canada frees itself from a commitment to the U.S. to hold its foreign exchange reserves steady, it will either have to devalue the Canadian dollar farther or set its exchange rate free.

The chamber urged the government to hold spending plans and welfare programs in check as much as possible to ward off current inflationary pressures.

Views of the chamber, speaking for local and district chambers of commerce and boards of trade across the country, were put before Finance Minister Sharp in advance of preparations for Mr. Sharp's first budget. The chamber said the budget this spring should primarily encourage domestic output of goods and services.

Canada's agreement with Washington to hold Canadian foreign exchange reserves steady at about $2,500,000,000 in U.S. funds, and to take special action to reduce them if they grow much beyond that, prevents Canada from persuing a vigorous monetary policy, the brief said.

'IMPOSE DISCIPLINE'

Monetary policy—the management of interest rates and the value of the dollar—should be used to impose discipline on the economy, the chamber said.

The Canadian dollar was fixed at an external value of 92½ cents in U.S. funds by the former Conservative government in 1962, and since taking office the present Liberal government has said it would not change it.

"If Canada is to remain on a fixed exchange rate system, and at the present parity, she must have some freedom to let her exchange reserves rise as well as fall," the brief said.

"Canada should explore every possibility of freeing itself from any agreement that by prohibiting any buildup of Canadian exchange reserves would prevent using monetary policy to avoid inflation at home.

"The alternatives are to move to a new fixed parity or to let the exchange rate float again in order to free monetary policy for dealing with the inflationary potential that now exists."

B.C. Bank Bid Back

OTTAWA (CP)—Notice of intent to reintroduce legislation this session to incorporate the Bank of British Columbia as one of the chartered banks has been published in the Canada Gazette.

The notice dated Jan. 18 and signed by the proposed bank's Ottawa solicitors said application will be made for incorporation of the bank under the present Bank Act, which is to be revised at the current session.

The Bank of British Columbia first made application for incorporation in 1964 but it was voted down in the Senate's banking and commerce committee. The bill was introduced again in 1965 but died on the order paper at dissolution of Parliament for the general election Nov. 8.

The government opposed the original incorporation proposals because the B.C. provincial government was to be a major shareholder. Former finance minister Gordon served notice that among new provisions of the Bank Act would be a bar to provincial government ownership of bank stock.

SUBSIDY RULE PROTESTED

The local Metal Trades Council representing most shipyard unions will protest the reduction of the federal subsidy for new ships, president Andrew Manson said Saturday.

The council also will ask Ottawa why B.C. Ferries are excluded from the subsidy. The exclusion applies to all federal and provincial vessels.

Mr. Manson, business agent for the Victoria Shipyard Riggers Union, was re-elected president of the council. Vice-president is Alec Ross and secretary John MacNeil.

DAMAGED Coast guard vessel Racer, should be back on patrol later this week. She has been laid up at Yarrows since damaging her rudder last week. France Ends ECM Boycott

LUXEMBOURG (UPI) — European Common Market officials, relieved of France's crippling seven-month boycott of the economic community, today began work on draft proposals for speeding up important trade talks with the United States.

The foreign ministers of the six-nation economic bloc were expected to meet in Brussels Feb. 21 to discuss the proposals and issues raised by the so-called Kennedy Round of tariff negotiations.

The talks would centre on proposals made by the late John F. Kennedy in 1962 for massive tariff reductions between the United States and the market countries as part of a grand design for Atlantic partnership.

VETO POWER

The market ministers Sunday bowed to French demands for a permanent veto power in the market and also agreed to curb the supranational powers of the bloc's executive authority.

France's partners — Italy, Belgium, Luxembourg, West Germany and the Netherlands — further consented to a French move that could lead to the retirement of market executive president Walter Hallstein.

French President Charles de Gaulle criticized Allstein's actions as market chief executive and accused him of making political pronouncements, mainly aimed at France's boycott of the trade group.

Having won approval of his main points, French Foreign Minister Maurice Couve de Murville said that France would end its boycott and resume co-operating with its partners.

De Murville announced that France would approve this year's commission budgets. Lack of approval has forced Hallstein's commission to rely on monthly handouts.

He also said that France would urge a speed-up in trade talks on tariff reductions with the United States. But he said France would expect rapid approval of new rules for billion-dollar farm outlets in the market for France's agriculture.

SKID TEST PROGRAM FROZEN OUT

STEVENS POINT, Wis. (AP) — The U.S. National Safety Council ran into problems today in attempts to start its annual skidding and tire traction tests on ice.

It was too cold.

The test director, Gus Whitehurst, said temperatures ranging from a high of zero to a low of 19-below Sunday made it impossible to prepare the necessary nine acres of smooth, slick ice and threatened to delay the tests.

"The water freezes before it can spread out," he explained.

OTTAWA (CP) — The federal treasury had a surplus of $531,900,000 in the first nine months of the current fiscal year, Finance Minister Sharp reported.

The monthly treasury statement showed budgetary revenues during December of $696,200,000 and expenditures totalling $683,000,000, leaving a surplus for the month of $13,200,000.

These brought the cumulative totals since the start of the fiscal year April 1, 1965, to budgetary revenues of $5,724,000,000, expenditures of $5,192,100,000, and a surplus of $531,900,000.

The $5,724,000,000 in revenues between April 1 and Dec. 31, 1965, included $1,624,700,000 in personal income tax collections, $1,200,300,000 in corporation profits taxes and $1,030,700,000 in sales taxes.

These amounts, however, did not include taxes on incomes, profits and sales collected for the old age security fund, which is not counted as a budgetary item.

Yes. If she's a little self-reliant. And likes to get around and go places by herself.

Yes. If she's still a bit dependent. And relies on you for advice about mechanical things like cars.

Yes. If she's got lots of zest and energy. And doesn't mind shifting four fully-synchronized gears. Instead of just steering around town.

Yes. If she's a little bit lazy. And doesn't like pushing her way out of snowbanks in the winter.

Yes. If she's thrifty with pennies. And likes to save you money on little things like gas. And oil. And anti-freeze. And tires. And maintenance.

Yes. If she likes to be extravagant. And spend the money she saves on brocade wallpaper for the bathroom.

Yes. If she's flexible in her thoughts. And will let you lay out $800 or $900 on a used Volkswagen when she'd already had thoughts about a Hammond organ.

Yes. If she's strong willed. And insists you get the most for your money in a small car.

All Reggie Needed Was New Jersey

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Reggie Fleming, for example, started the 1965-66 National Hockey League season with Boston Bruins. In 34 games with the last-place club he managed four goals.

After getting into coach Milt Schmidt's bad books, the scrappy left winger was traded to New York for right winger John McKenzie. Fleming has scored four goals in eight games with the Rangers.

The Montreal native and teammate Bob Nevin scored two goals apiece Sunday night to lead the Rangers to an overwhelming 8-4 victory over Toronto Maple Leafs.

NEVIN GETS 20TH

In other Sunday action, Montreal Canadiens downed Boston 3-1 and Chicago Black Hawks defeated Detroit Red Wings 5-1. Toronto upset Boston 6-3 Saturday, Chicago and Detroit battled to a 4-4 tie and Montreal defeated New York 6-2.

Jean Ratelle, Vic Hadfield, Donnie Marshall and defenceman Jim Neilson also scored for the Rangers Sunday night as New York matched their high-goal total for the season in beating the Leafs for the second time in nine meetings.

Nevin's second goal was his 20th of the season and marked the first time he has scored 20 goals in a season since his rookie year 1960-61.

MAHOVLICH HAD TWO

Jean Beliveau scored two goals for Montreal Saturday, boosting him into fourth place in the NHL all-time scoring parade. His pair of markers were his 372nd and 373rd of his career, moving him past Bernie Geoffrion. Beliveau is six goals short of equalling Ted Lindsay's mark of 379 goals.

Henri Richard, Dick Duff, Bobby Rousseau and Claude Provost were the other Montreal scorers. Rousseau's goal was his first in 11 games. New York goal - getters were Phil Goyette and Marshall.

Mahovlich had another big night for the Leafs Saturday, scoring two goals. Single markers went to Eddie Shack, Bob Pulford, Selby and Ron Ellis. Pulford's goal was his 20th of the season, the first Toronto player to reach that mark this season.

INJURES TWO PLAYERS

Shack collided with Boston goalie Bernie Parent and right winger Bob Dillabough in the third period, injuring both Bruin players.

Parent suffered bruised ribs and Dillabough took in excess of 20 stitches to a cut on his head. The right winger appeared to strike his head on the goalpost.

Chicago scored three-first period goals and went on to defeat Detroit to move into a first-place tie with the Red Wings.

Stan Mikita, Ken Wharram, John Miszuk, Chico Maki and Eric Nesterenko scored for the Black Hawks. Paul Henderson was the lone Detroit marksman.

Detroit defenceman Doug Barkley was struck in the eye by a stick and is expected to be out for at least two weeks. He was taken to a Detroit hospital and was to undergo surgery for a slight tear in the back of the eye.

Bobby Hull was held off the scoreboard by the Wings Sunday, but he scored two goals against Detroit Saturday. The other Chicago scorers were Nesterenko and Phil Esposito.

Hull's goals boosted his season total to 42. He has 26 games remaining to score nine goals to break the record of 50 goals in a season, a record he shares with two retired Montreal players—Maurice Richard and Geoffrion.

It was the Vancouver Meralomas all the way in a pair of inter-city rugby exhibitions at Macdonald Park Saturday.

'Lomas belted James Bay Athletic Association's first division team 24-3 and the Van-seconds came up with a 23-3 win over JBAA's B club.

Combination Soccer

Two-goal margins were a winning style in Saturday's Combination Soccer League activity. Results were: London Boxing Club 3, Island Tug 1; Duncan Maple Leafs 4, Falcons 2; University 4, Ladysmith 2; Royal Roads 2, Duncan City 0, and Navy 2, Hotspurs 1.

No Birdies Up There

Looking more like bird-watcher than pro golfer is Terry Dill, who borrows field glasses from spectator in attempt to locate his ball in branches of cypress tree fronting 16th green during Lucky tournament at San Francisco. Search was futile and Austin, Tex., pro, who had hoped for birdie on hole, took double-bogie five and finished with 70 Sunday for three-round total of 208, five strokes behind leader.—(AP Wirephoto.)

RAIN HALTED PLAY . . . . . . IN 'FRISCO GOLF

Beard Leading by One

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—The $57,000 Lucky International open tournament finally reached its final round today with Frank Beard aiming for a wire-to-wire victory.

The Louisville, Ky., native has led for four days, normally enough to bring a first-prize cheque except that third-round play was postponed Saturday when rain flooded the greens at Harding Park.

So after a 66-67, Beard came back Sunday to card a 70 and go into the final with a one-stroke lead at 203 over Mike Souchak and two ahead of Ray Floyd.

Five players, including Arnold Palmer, were deadlocked at 207 as 33 were under par for the tournament. Nine more were even with the regulation figure at 213 for three rounds over the 6,692-yard layout.

George Knudson of Toronto, ended the third round with a 214 total after shooting a 73 Sunday. Jerry Magee of Toronto, also shot a 73 and has a 218 total.

Don't Hold Up Franchises Except Berth for Buffalo

Stafford Smyth thinks the National Hockey League should get along with the business of approving applications for franchises.

"If we're agreed a proposition is sound, there's no reason not to give a franchise," Smythe, Toronto president, said Sunday.

In the next breath Stafford said he wasn't too sure if Buffalo, a franchise bidder, should be admitted.

Buffalo is only 90 miles from Toronto. Smythe is concerned over televising of Buffalo games.

"The brochure I got from Buffalo suggested there wouldn't be TV conflict, but this is something we would closely consider."

The league directors meet Feb. 7.

A three-quarters majority is needed to grant an application.

The winner set a new track record of 1:59.3 for the mile and a quarter. Isle of Greece was second and the favorite, Terry's Secret, was third.

At Miami's Hialeah Park, two Canadian jockeys rode into the winner's circle.

The French-bred covered the 1 1-16 miles on the turf in a blinding rain in 1:46.1. Kentucky Jug was second and Carry Forward third.

Messier Messes Up Leafs' Sweep

15,600 Witness Weekend Action As Teams Split

It was difficult to tell whether Doug Messier or Cliff Schmautz was the happiest Buckaroo in Portland Sunday night as the Bucks finished all square with Victoria Maple Leafs in a crucial Western Hockey League series.

Messier was able to exchange goat's horns for a hero's wreath and Schmautz finally found a way to beat Victoria goalie Al Millar. Between them, Cliff and Doug got the Buckaroos in front in a 2-1 thriller.

Victory moved Portland back within four points of the first-place Leafs, who had charged six points ahead by hammering the Bucks 6-2 Saturday night at Victoria's Memorial Arena.

Each club also scored a triumph at the box office. The struggle between the WHL giants attracted a packed house of 5,269 fans at Memorial Arena and the return bout lured 10,260 spectators to Portland's Memorial Coluseum.

Jinx Snapped

Sunday's game was also something of a triumph for Schmautz, who had been battling for the league goal-scoring lead most of the season but hadn't been able to score against Victoria. Schmautz broke the Millar jinx and a scoreless deadlock at the same time. The quick winger broke in from his wrong wing to take a pass from Art Jones and whip a drive behind Millar, sending the Bucks ahead 1-0 early in the third period with his 30th tally.

Then Messier, who had received a major penalty in the first period for clipping Victoria's Bill Shvetz for six stitches around the mouth, stepped into the spotlight again. Messier charged Fred Hucul as the Maple Leaf veteran was winding up for a shot and was thumbed off with his fourth penalty of the game.

While Messier was serving his sentence, Andy Hebenton tied it up for the Leafs with his third goal in three nights. Hebenton, an inspirational figure for the Leafs in both weekend games, slashed in to snare the rebound of a Fred Hucul shot and lift the puck past goalie Dave Kelly with about 10 minutes remaining.

The scalp-tingling tussle appeared headed for overtime when Messier got a chance to atone for his sin as Larry Keenan attempted to clear the puck from the Victoria end.

Papp 'Helped'

Apparently screened from Keenan's view by referee Bill Papp, Messier intercepted the pass and gave Millar no chance on a sizzling drive into the far corner of the net.

With less than three minutes remaining in which to get the equalizer, the Leafs gave it a good try, pinning the Bucks in the Portland end after sending out a sixth attacker for Millar in the final minute.

Kelly had to be quick to save from Bob Barlow and Fred Hucul in the dying seconds and Lou Jankowski was barely wide of the net on Victoria's final chance.

Extra excitement was tossed into the final hectic minute when Sandy Hucul and Portland's Jim Hay started swinging in front of Kelly, who saved Hay from additional punishment by leaping on Sandy's back, allowing Hay a couple of free swings before other players charged in.

Tough on Al

Messier's goal was a tough break for Millar, who had made several superb saves in a bristling game that produced more than a normal quota of high-sticking.

The veteran goalie was also spectacular in Saturday's game, in which he was also a victim of misfortune in the closing stages. With the Leafs holding a 6-0 lead with less than three minutes remaining, Millar's mates either got careless or inexcusably goal-hungry and Al's bid for a shutout went out the window as Chuch Holmes and Fred Hilts broke loose for Portland goals.

Up to that time, the Leafs had answered the challenge to their league leadership with an alert and hard-skating display that thoroughly entertained the largest home crowd of their two-year history.

Continually forcing the Bucks into errors with aggressive forechecking and turning in exceptional penalty-killing when they picked up four of the game's first five penalties, the Leafs were the better club most of the way.

Although close checking resulted in some scrambly action, there was plenty of excitement as the Leafs when ahead on Milan Marcetta's goal in the third minute and then had to struggle to the seventh minute of the second session before hard-working Steve Witiuk ended a long string of bad shooting luck and made it 2-0.

At that point the Buckaroos appeared to become miffed at their inability to score and the Portlanders were tagged with

Seals in Step With Owners

San Francisco Seals matched their fast-moving new executive lineup Sunday with a 3-0 Western Hockey League victory over Vancouver Canucks.

Both the players and a new ownership group that includes Bing Crosby will soon make important trips east—the owners to try for a National League franchise Feb. 7 in New York, and the club for six interlocking games with American League.

Seals and Seattle Totems, who may battle for the fourth and last playoff spot, made progress on the ice over the weekend.

Totems edged Los Angeles Blades 4-3 at Seattle Sunday to remain seven points in front of the Seals, who have six games in hand over Seattle.

Blades had snapped a seven-game losing streak by playing to a 3-3 deadlock with the third-place Canucks Saturday at Los Angeles.

UPHILL BATTLE

At Seattle, Los Angeles had an uphill fight after Seattle made it 4-0 in the first 22 minutes on goals by Larry Lund, Bill Dineen, Bill MarFarland and Guyle Fielder, Willie O'Ree, Brian Smith and Jerry Toppazzini came back for Los Angeles but a scoreless third period kept Seattle ahead.

Horses Die In Blaze

BOWIE, Md. (UPI) — A fire that swept through five barns at Bowie racetrack early today killed an estimated 60 horses and sent 120 other thoroughbreds galloping around in panic.

Volunteer firemen from nearby communities battled the conflagration for two hours before bringing it under control. Track officials described the fire as the worst at Bowie since it opened Oct. 1, 1914.

Horses were still being rounded up today. Falls in snowdrifts and on ice made the destruction of some of the animals necessary.

SIMPSON SCORES 225

Aussies Heading For Test Victory

ADELAIDE (Reuters) —Australia headed for victory at the end of the third day of the fourth cricket test against England here today.

A crowd of nearly 36,000 saw Bobby Simpson again play a dominant role, in spite of a slight gastric upset which slowed down his rate of scoring.

The Australian skipper took his Saturday score of 159 to 225—the highest score ever made by an Australian against England at Adelaide — and then helped to break the back of England's early batting resistance by making a fine slip catch to send back John Edrich.

Australia ended its first innings with 516.

England lost three wickets for 32 and only some grim defensive batting afterward by Ken Barrington and Colin Cowdrey staved off complete disaster.

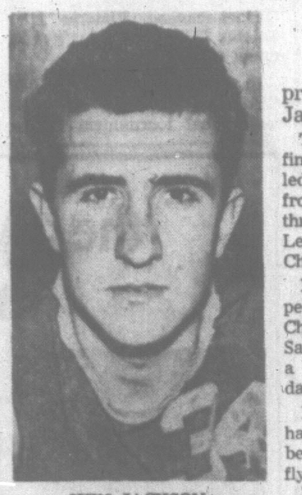
Jackson Leaves Shores Dangling Near Disaster



KEN JACKSON
. . . slick snipper

By Hal Malone

Chinooks 54, North Shore 42

The Mountaineers have only a finger-tip grasp on the second ledge today. They are one game from oblivion in their best-of-three Intercity Junior Men's League semifinal with Victoria Chinooks..

Mountaineers' survival depends on succeeding against Chinooks on the mainland next Saturday. That would demand a deciding game here Wednesday, Feb. 9.

In both instances they will have to throttle Jackson or else become as extinct as the tsetse fly.

He put them in their place on Saturday at Central Junior High. On a night when both teams were shooting as if plywood was draped over the hoop, Jackson consistently threaded the eye of the needle.

He accounted for 20 points, 18 of them one-handers from respectable distances, as Chinooks carved up the Mountaineers 54-42.

Barney Spaven was an accessory to the crime, dumping in 19 points. He secured countless rebounds, provoked a host of Mountaineer fouls. At the foul line few are more skilled. He dropped nine in a row before missing.

But it was Jackson who cut up the Mountaineers and left them dying on the slopes. In the first half he dumped in five goals. Each came at a point in the hand-to-hand combat when the Mountaineers were threatening. Each quelled the vsitors' fire, snuffed out their aspirations.

Strangely, it was Chinooks and not North Shore who were culpably to blame for the winners' slow start.

CYMBALS CLANGED

Attempting to fathom Mountaineers' zone defence with a crisp, short-passing attack, Chinooks inadvertently let Doug Gregory do the shooting. Hardly any guard in the league has Gregory's penchant for discouraging shooters . . , or his ability to avoid putting the ball in the hoop.

When Chinooks adjusted and put Jackson on the spot, the cymbals clanged and Ollie McNamara Goldsmith's band began to hit the right notes. North Shore, instead of rushing Jackson, let him stand out there and fire. This is akin to asking the Viet Cong in for afternoon tea. He dropped in five zone-breakers.

That was the first-half story, Chinooks 28, North Shore 25.

The second half can be told in terse statistics: Chinooks were good on nine shots of 28 from the floor; North Shore succeeded on four (4!) of 32.

INTENSIVE CHECKING

North Shore had only one man —John Hart—in double figures. He finished with 16 digits, 10 of them free throws. His low field-goal barrage indicates how intensively Chinooks were checking.

Ron Bowker and Don Frampton, though inept with their shooting irons, combined with Gregory and Spaven and Jackson to constitute what is probably the best defence in the league. Brian Brumwell and Ron Stubbings, used infrequently, made bold defensive plays.

They all may have to be even bolder Saturday. If North Shore decides to throw a blanket on Jackson and can keep Spaven off the boards, they have a rare opportunity to force the Canadian champions into a showdown soiree.

North Shore—Warren Cline 8, Tony DeWitt 1, Tim Crombie 5, John Hart 16, Frank Dyck 6, Mike Dowty 4, Bill Turner, Ken Kabush 2. Total—42.

McLarens Win

Esquimalt McLarens edged Royal Roads 3-2 in a Vancouver Island Juvenile Hockey League game Saturday at Esquimalt Sports Centre.

BURNABY BLANKED

United Defence Has the Answer

By ERNIE FEDORUK

Coach Frank Grealy's new approach towards substitution may seem, at first glance, to be the answer to Victoria United's late-game letdowns.

But not to be overlooked is the prominent manner in which the fullbacks behaved Saturday as United snapped a five-game Pacific Coast Soccer League winless streak by blanking Burnaby Villa, 2-0.

Grealy has vowed to substitute "without consideration" for anybody's feelings.

McINTOSH SPARKLES

Tony Quinn and Don McIntosh started, but Dave Stothard moved back from the half-line to replace the former in the second half. Yet all three turned in strong performances and made the afternoon most enjoyable for the goalkeeper. Barry Sadler on this occasion.

The key to defensive solidarity seems to be McIntosh. His has been a great and continuing improvement, and his play Saturday at Royal Athletic Park was practically flawless.

Burnaby's scoring chances were kept to a minimum. The closest Burnaby came to scoring was at the 32-minute mark when they banged at a rebound with Sadler out of position. Victoria halfback Bill Hamilton saved a goal by clearing the ball to the sidelines.

TIT-FOR-TAT

The Jims, Jamieson and Schulz, scored United's goals. Theirs was a tit-for-tat game, each helping the other to score.

After 62 scoreless minutes, Jamieson opened scoring by tapping in a loose ball from close in during a scramble. Schulz drew an assist on the play because he jarred the ball loose from Burnaby goalie Bob Bissett.

Victory moved United to within one point of Burnaby and New Westminster Royals, co-tenants of the fourth and last playoff berth. United's next test will come Saturday against the unbeaten Firefighters.

VALDAL STARS

Second-place UBC Thunderbirds and third-place Columbus both advanced in other PCSL matches at the weekend. UBC defeated North Shore 3-1 on Saturday and Columbus stayed a point behind by blanking last-place St. Andrew's 4-0 on Sunday.

Victoria grad Ash Valdal scored two goals for UBC and inside Kirby Carter added the other. North Shore's Joe Canta spoiled the shutout on a penalty kick late in the first half.

Columbus outplayed St. Andrew's all the way Sunday but couldn't score until midway in the second half. All four goals, two by Bob Smith and one each from Sergio Berti and Sergie Zanata, were scored in a 22-minute span.

four successive penalties, including a major to Jack Bionda, and Fred Hucul made them pay the piper with two power-play goals in the second session.

Jankowski and Hebenton wound up the scoring for Victoria in the third and the big 6-0 lead was perhaps the reason Millar's mates got careless at the finish.

Leafs make their next start at Memorial Arena Wednesday against San Francisco and then leave on a road trip that will take them to Los Angeles for two games and back to Portland next Sunday.

Hoffman, Harper Hit Coast Finals

DUNCAN — Rinks skipped by Glen Harper of Duncan and Victoria's Elmer Hoffman will represent Vancouver Island in the Pacific Coast mixed curling finals.

The six-rink coast championships, which will also include representatives from the Vancouver and Fraser Valley zones, will be held at Qualicum Beach on Feb. 19 and 20.

Hoffman, beaten 5-4 by Courtenay's Harold Karst in a first-round match, bounced back with three straight victories to win the "B" event. The Victoria rink wrapped it up Sunday with a 9-6 decision over Frank Jedrejczyk of Nanaimo.

ARRESTED Sunday for second time in two months Sunday was heavyweight champion Cassius Clay, who was termed "very polite" by arresting officer after Clay drove through stop sign in Chicago. In December, Clay wound up with disorderly conduct charge after the car in which he was riding was stopped. That charge is still pending.

Heart-Breaking Defeat For Esquimalt Quartet

KIMBERLEY(CP) — A cool Prince George rink defeated Esquimalt on the last rock of the game Sunday to win the British Columbia schoolboys' curling championship.

Skip Doug Entstrom, with a trip to the Canadian championships riding on his last rock, threw perfectly to knock out the lone Esquimalt rock in the house and stick for a 10-9 victory.

At the end of the sixth end his rink was leading 6-2. Then Prince George picked up three in the seventh. In the eighth, Armstrong was a bit heavy on a takeout and Prince George picked up another four to make the score 9-6.

Entstrom's rink that will go to the Canadian champoinships at Saint John's, Nfld., Feb. 21: Gerald Peckham, lead, Gordon Nass, second, Gary Augustine, third. All are 18.

Armstrong's rink included: Gordon Paterson, 16, third; Dave Vyner, 16, second, and Keith Hooey, 17, lead.

Esquimast went into the final with an extra-end 6-5 victory over Grand Forks Saturday night. Prince George, Esquimalt and Grand Forks had ended up with the same records of two wins and one loss in the four-rink competition. Prince George won the bye into the final while Esquimalt and Grand Forks played off.

Brian Howes, supported by Blair Pallesen, John Thompson and Chris Robinson, won the Alberta title by defeating Edmonton's Stan Trout 8-5 on Saturday.

Twin Polo Defeat For Mainlanders

Victoria Olympians, paced by Trevor Cole, downed the visitors 5-1, and Victoria YMCA, sparked by goalie Kerry Sherwood and Eric Grossman, handed the mainlanders a 12-3 thumping.

In a match between schoolboys, Victoria "Y" and Vancouver Arbutus played to 6-6 tie.

WESTS BLANK GORGE

Kickers Improve First-Place Hold

Hourigan Kickers are starting to show a little daylight between themselves and other first division challengers in the race for the top rung in the Victoria and District Soccer League.

Kickers stretched their league lead to four points Sunday by edging Brodies 3-2 while second-place Gorge Molsons were blanked 2-0 by Victoria West.

Goals by playing-coach Henry Vanderhorst, Tony Bourbijn and Kurt Beyer gave Kickers their hard-fought win over Brodies. Youthful Joe Milligan scored both goals for Brodies.

NAVY, LUCKIES TIE

In another game Sunday, last-place Navy collected goals from Bob Marsden and Dan Lawson and fought to a 2-2 draw with Luckies. Ken Campbell and veteran Ced Robb scored for Luckies.

Esquimalt extended its unbeaten streak in the second division to a 13th game by belting Sidney Hotel 6-0. Goal-getters were Herby Frampton (3), Rick Weyler, Mark Granlin, Bruce Smith and Gil McIlreath.

Colony Inn Lions held second-place University Vikings to a 1-1 deadlock while Gorge nipped Vic West 1-0 on a goal by Phil Steen, in other second division games Sunday.

ABBOTSFORD STOPPED

TOTEMS, TOO!

Long Wait for Bays

It's been a while, but Gary Taylor's Oak Bay lads have finally taken the measure of Abbotsford in high school boys' basketball play.

At that, it wasn't easy. Oak Bay had to go into overtime Saturday night at Victoria High before posting a 58-53 victory over their mainland rivals. It was the first time Oak Bay had beaten an Abbotsford team in over three years.

With Oak Bay's usual big guns silent, it was Glenn Moffat's turn to shine. He paced Bay's attack with 20 points while Roger Nissen topped Abbotsford with 17.

North Surrey, which had beaten the Bays on Friday, made it two straight at the weekend by defeating the Bill Garner-coached Victoria High Totems 38-29 in Saturday's other game at Vic High.

In action at Alberni, the host Chieftains topped a four-team invitational tournament by defeating Lord Byng of Vancouver 39-36. Killarney won consolation honors by nipping Claremont of Victoria, 51-50.

Claremont players missed two layups in the final seconds to blow away their chances of a victory.

SUNKEN HULL of capsized seiner is towed towards land Sunday. At time this picture was taken, searchers didn't know how many bodies they'd find aboard. There was only one. Search for the other six missing crew members was going on today off Vancouver Island's east coast.

Body in Seiner Indicates Sinking Sudden

A water-soaked ship's log book and a crewman's body today indicated the grim story of the last minutes alive for seven B.C. fishermen.

The log book was recovered from the capsized seiner Ocean Star after it was towed today into Quathiaski Cove, Quadra Island.

Last entry made by missing skipper William Mielty, 38, was:

Friday, 8:45 p.m.—Off Cape Lazo (near Comox).

It is believed the mishap took place soon after the last log entry at 8:45.

And the position in which the dead man was found indicates that the end must have come quickly and without warning.

At the time, winds in the Georgia Strait area were gusting up to 60 miles-an-hour.

Said part-owner of the seiner, Einar Eilertsen, whose son, Ray, 26, was aboard: "The boat would have been top-heavy with its holds empty."

The RCMP patrol boat Little Bow from Powell River and an RCAF Albatross from Comox were searching the area today for other members of the crew.

They are: Reino Aro, 48; Anthony Kiskilla, 33; Herbert Johnson, 29, and William Maki, all of Sointula off Vancouver Island's northeast coast. The skipper was also from Sointula.

Little hope is held that any of the men could have survived.

PLANNED STOP

She was to have stopped over at Sointula for the weekend for the men to visit their families.

Saturday morning the overturned boat was spotted by a B.C. Airlines pilot near the mouth of Oyster River, 10 miles south of Campbell River.

Tugs were able to secure a line to the upturned hull and drag her to nearby Quadra Island.

Water had to be pumped out of the hull before searchers could begin looking for bodies.

But his wife was ill Friday so he arranged with the skipper to meet the boat at Sointula.

Said Palo: "He (the skipper) said it would be fine and I could join him Saturday. He offered to stand my wheel watch. We're old friends, Bill and I.

"The last words I said to him were: 'Have a good trip.' He answered: 'See you Saturday'."

Student Loses Kidney After Rugby Match

Oak Bay principal Jack Wallace said today he has been told "it was a rough game." He said inquiries are being made into how the player was injured.

Mr. Wallace said the injury to English is the only serious accident he has known in a rugby game during his 30 years at Oak Bay.

He said players have broken bones in the past but this is the first time a serious accident has occurred.

$35 From Cafe

Thieves got $35 in change when they broke into Brand's Cafe, 1009 Government Street, over the weekend.

SEAL HUNTING LAW CALLED PRIMITIVE

By HUMPHRY DAVY

Vancouver Island west coast Indians plan to hunt for the valuable northern fur seals in the open Pacific this spring.

And organizer Paul Sam of Ahousat, who is visiting his sister in Victoria, wants an SPCA official with a movie camera to come along to see how it's done.

Paul's reasons for wanting the hunt recorded is to draw to the attenion of the federal government the antiquated laws governing the hunting of fur seals by Indians.

FOOD AND FUR

A 1911 treaty between Canada, the United States and Japan prohibits open-sea sealing, except for Indians who may take them for food and fur.

But the law says the Indians must hunt them in the primitive way of their forefathers.

"This means we got to hunt them with spears and bows and arrows," said the 69-year-old Indian. "We want to hunt them with rifles."

CRUEL WAY

Paul said the primitive way of killing seals is cruel.

"First you spear it, with a rope attached to the spear," he said. "The animal fights like a fish. It claws at the boat. You have to club it to death. It bleeds from the nose and ears. It's a ghastly sight. We don't like it."

Indians have not hunted the fur seal since the thirties, he said.

"But we plan to re-assert our sealing rights because it's becoming more and more difficult to make a living on salmon due to the Russians and Americans encroaching on our fishing grounds," he stated.

He said Ahousat Indians are making spears and other primitive weapons for the seal hunt which will take place in March or April.

Dr. Clifford Carl, curator of the Provincial Museum, said one of the disadvantages of hunting seals with spears is the damage done to the fur.

"The government buys the fur, but the value is not as high as it should be because of the damage," he said.

He estimated the northern fur seal population at about 3,000,000.

An adult male measures seven feet and a female five feet. They weigh about 600 and 120 pounds respectively.

The seals breed in the Pribilof Islands and the Russian-owned Robbin Islands in the Bering Sea. Each year the U.S. government harvests a certain number of the seals. Profits from the furs are divided between the treaty nations.

GO SOUTH

Females and the young leave their island rookeries in October and scatter southward along the coast of British Columbia. Some migrate as far south as California.

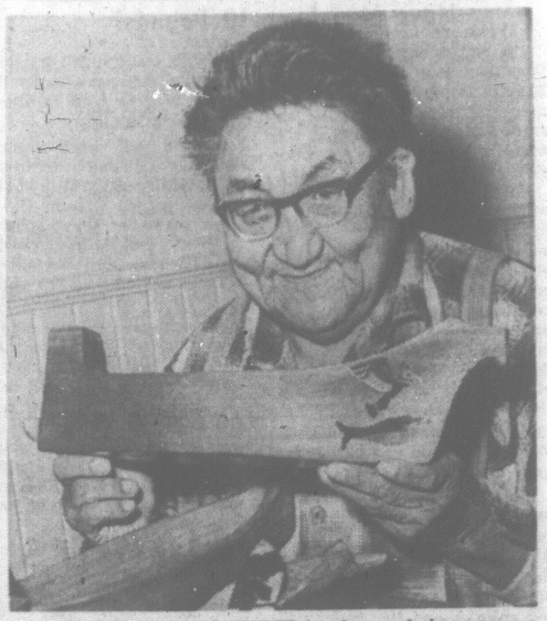
At one time sealing was one of Victoria's major industries, but the specie came close to extinction at the turn of the century. It was for their protection that an international treaty was drawn up.



INDIANS PLAN TO HUNT for fur seals in a canoe along the lines of model carved by Ahousat Indian Paul Sam. It carries three or four men. Harpooner stands at the bow.

1873 PACT FOILS BID ON WATER

Central Saanich has failed in its bid to have the water rights to Elk Lake taken from the City of Victoria.

In a letter to T. P. O'Grady, city solicitor, H. D. DeBeck, comptroller of water rights for B.C., says his department had no jurisdiction over the rights given to Victoria in 1873.

Reeve Gordon Lee, Central Saanich, declined to comment on the contents of the letter when approached this morning. He said he had no recollection of ever having seen the document.

Central Saanich had asked for the water rights to be taken from Victoria after the city announced its intention of increasing water rates from 1½ cents per thousand gallons to five cents per thousand.

Reeve Lee said he had no comment to make on Central Saanich's next step in the battle.

J. D. Tisdalle (SC—Saanich) has promised to introduce the matter at the present session of the legislature and to back the plea of Central Saanich.

Arctic's 'Silver Fox' Buried Here Tuesday

Funeral services will be held Tuesday for Major David Livingstone McKeand, the "Silver Fox of the Arctic".

Major McKeand, who died here Saturday at age 87, was a noted soldier, sportsman and civil servant, renowned for his journeys to the far north.

The funeral will be held at 2 p.m. at the Church of St. George the Martyr. Cremation will follow.

Major McKeand had lived in Victoria at 635 Superior since retirement from the post of superintendent of the Eastern Arctic in 1945. He was also secretary of the Northwest Territories Council for 24 years.

16 TRIPS

His home was at Ottawa during that period but he once estimated he had made 16 trips of 10,000 miles each into the Arctic. His duties there involved taking a census, conducting marriages and presiding over murder trials.

He earned the name "Silver Fox" during this period.

He earned his military title following service in the Boer War and the First World War with Canadian forces, when he won the Military Cross.

WON BY DEFAULT

Major McKeand's birthplace was Hamilton, Ont. He was captain of the Hamilton Tigers football team when it held the Canadian championship between 1902 and 1906. He once said the team won the 1904 title by default. No team would play it—each team having different rules.

He was elected president of the Ontario Rugby Football Union in 1908 and was believed to be the oldest living past-president.

Major and Mrs. McKeand were aboard the Hudson's Bay Company ship Nascopie in 1940 when it dashed through submarine-infested waters to Greenland for a cargo of cryolite, needed for the war effort by the Arvida aluminum industry.

He is survived by the widow, Hilda, a son, Martin, in Winnipeg and four grandchildren.

Damage of $40,000 In Machine Shop Fire

Victoria Fire Department's new aerial service truck was credited today with saving most of Ramsay Machine Works, 1630 Store St., Saturday night.

The roof and one-third of the rear wall was destroyed plus some of the machine shop's contents when the plant was hit by fire.

Cause of the blaze is being investigated.

FIRST TEST

They bombed the blaze in its centre with 1,000 gallons of water per minute. The fire marked the first test for the new piece of equipment.

From a height of 60 feet firemen were able to hose down adjoining buildings and keep the fire from spreading.

They saved thousands of dollars in lathes and welding machines.

Owner H. Lauder Ramsay said the value of the building and its contents is $200,000.

PATTERNS LOST

Biggest loss was the firm's stock of 1,500 pinewood patterns valued at $25,000.

They were stored in the building's mezzanine where the blaze originated.

Mr. Ramsay said the loss is insured and he expects his plant to resume production "in a day or two."

The front of the building was undamaged except for smoke and water. Records and files were carried to safety.

Much of the machine shop was littered with debris caused when the roof fell in.

FIREMAN HURT

The alarm was raised by police in a prowler car at 8:57 p.m.

THIEF MAKES BARBED CATCH

A total of 12,000 fish hooks were taken from a car owned by David Barry, 3795 Duke Road, Friday night when it was parked in the Yates St. civic carpark.

Made to special requirements, the hooks were to be made into bucktail flies by Mr. Barry.

Police said the hooks were valued at $174.

Lost Climbers Led to Safety From Finlayson

Five mountain climbers were led to safety from Mount Finlayson late Sunday night after being lost for several hours.

Searchers found the cold and hungry climbers near the top of the 1,200-foot mountain about 10:30 p.m.

They were returned to an anxious cluster of parents and friends in Goldstream Park.

A Colwood RCMP spokesman said the climbers actually started out in two separate parties and were unknown to each other. They met after becoming lost high up the slope.

In one group there were three women: Gail Lineham, 19, of 1036 Joan Crescent; Brenda Wood, 21, and Patricia Bonney, addresses unavailable.

In the second party were Christopher Denny, 1682 Beach Drive, and Patricia Conrad, 19, of 2447 Bowker.

Police said the three girls started to climb the mountain around 4 p.m. with two men, Ray Goodchild, 30, and Bernard Ward, 30.

RETURNED TO CAR

They started up the lower trail and the men decided to return to their car while the girls continued to climb.

They were to meet where the trail comes out on Finlayson Arm Road. When the girls did not appear they reported them missing at 6:30.

Meanwhile Chris Denny and Miss Conrad were also climbing the mountain, became lost and met up with the lost girls.

Mrs. Tom Denny, mother of Chris, said none of the climbers suffered any ill-effects.

She said they became lost because trail markers were obliterated by branches knocked down in the December snow storms.

"They would all shout together every 30 seconds and they also did some singing."

Four Colwood RCMP were assisted in the search by six Langford Fire Department volunteers and two Boy Scouts.

Man Admits Beating Young Child

Nye's wife told police when she laid the charge against him Nye was irritable and had hit the baby, who was the child of other parents, causing swelling and bruises on its face.

Nye was remanded to Feb. 4 for a pre-sentence report.

CRIPPLED WOMAN FLEES NORTH PARK ST. BLAZE

The elderly woman, an arthritic, was forced to hobble from the home on crutches.

A neighbor said the woman smelled smoke, found the upstairs was ablaze, and called the fire department before leaving the building.

Cause of the blaze or the amount of damage was not known by press time.

Elderly Man Dies In Cabin Fire On Salt Spring

It was presumed the man had been smoking in bed.

In another mishap on the Island Saturday night a Vancouver youth was severely injured when the car he was riding in failed to make a turn on North End Road and overturned into 18 inches of water in St. Mary Lake.

CONCUSSION

Paul Miller, 18, was treated at Lady Minto Hospital for concussion and pneumonia before being transferred to a Vancouver hospital Sunday.

Driver of the car, Robert Byng-Hall, also of Vancouver, was slightly injured.

Police say nobody actually saw the acident but residents nearby noticed the car in the water about 7:30 p.m.

When police arrived both men were unconscious. Miller was lying outside the car in the water and Byng-Hall was inside the vehicle.

Youngster's Leg Broken In Collision

The youngster suffered a broken right leg when in collision with an auto driven by Jennifer Saunders, 18, of 4038 Cumberland, police said.

THROWN INTO DITCH

They were knocked back and the rider was thrown into a ditch. Police said driver of the auto was Heinrick Pruim, 391 Conway.

Motorcyclist Russell Clark, 18, of 840 Victoria Avenue, is in good condition in hospital following an accident Saturday at Quadra and Cloverdale.

He sustained shock and bruises when in collision with a car driven by Allan Brent Adams, 1580 Wilmot Place, police said.

LEG INJURIES

She was a passenger in a car driven by Bryan Appleton of Vancouver, police said. Other driver involved was Ralph McCullock, 221 Irma.

Ask The Times

Q. Please tell us what is meant by "heavy water?" —G. H.

A. Heavy water is water containing the heavy isotope of hydrogen called deuterium.

The deuterium atom weighs about twice as much as an ordinary hydrogen atom.

And because of the difference between the weights of the two kinds of hydrogen atoms, the physical properties of heavy water differ from those of ordinary water.

Heavy water freezes at a higher temperature and has to be heated more to boil. Seeds won't germinate in it and some animals cannot live in it.

Heavy water is used as a coolant and heat transfer agent in nuclear power reactors and is known as deuterium oxide.

CENTENNIAL MEDALS ISSUED NEXT YEAR

Real Pioneers Came Before Jan. 1, 1892

Anyone born in Canada or who was a resident of Canada before Jan. 1, 1892, is a pioneer. . . .

And he or she is going to get a medal to prove it.

The definition and the medals come from Canadian Confederation Centennial Committee of B.C.

The awards will be made next year through the 400 local centennial committees now operating throughout B.C.

The medallion and ribbon will be awarded whether or not the pioneer has been continuously a resident—but the recipient must be a resident of the province now.

Application forms must be signed by applicants and local officials. Where possible birthdates should be proved by birth certificates, baptismal certificates, family Bible notations or other evidence.

Local committees must forward applications to Victoria by Nov. 19 this year.

The medallion has a silver finish and hangs from a blue ribbon. One side shows the arrival of Alexander Mackenzie at tidewater after he crossed Canada, the first explorer to reach the coast by land from the east.

SOUNDS, SIGHTS OF SPRING MAKING HEAVY HEARTS RING

January may not be torn off the calendar yet—but signs of an early spring abound.

Dutch bulb specialist Pierre Timp says he saw and heard the song of the first English skylark of the year at the airport Sunday . . . three of them, to be exact.

Gardeners throughout the area report peony plants have sent up their red feelers. Camellias, forsythias and rhododendrons are showing swollen buds. Pussywillows already are old hat.

And if that doesn't convince doubters, they should count the strollers in Centennial Square on Sundays.

WHY GROW OLD?

By JOSEPHINE LOWMAN

This Week Is Midpoint of BIP; Have You Lost 10 Pounds?

The end of this week will be the midpoint of my Eight-Week Beauty Improvement Plan for many of my readers. If you started later, the midpoint will come a little further along for you.

Lowman

How much weight you have lost will depend on how faithfully you have followed the menus or counted calories and how regularly you have done the exercises. Of course there are other factors involved, too, such as your metabolism and how active you are physically.

Most of you will have lost at least 10 pounds. However, if you have not, do not be discouraged. Also, if you come to a standstill don't panic! This is a usual part of reducing. Just keep on counting calories and the scales will soon give you happy news again. By now your measurements should have shrunk several inches. Don't weaken. The battle is now half won. If you fell by the wayside start again with new determination.

One way to plan nutritious meals is to follow this daily food guide. It is taken from diet book which was originally published as "Food and Your Weight."

Milk group: Children under 9 years, 2 to 3 cups of milk—9 to 12 years, 3 or more cups; teen-agers, 4 or more cups; adults, 2 or more cups. Cheese and ice cream may replace part of the milk.

Meat group: Two or more servings daily of beef, veal, pork, lamb, poultry, fish or eggs. Dry beans, dry peas or lentils and nuts may be used as alternatives occasionally.

Vegetable and fruit group: Have four or more servings daily, including a citrus fruit or other sources of vitamin C — a dark green or deep yellow vegetable — and, at least every other day have the vegetables and fruits to make up the suggested four or more servings.

The bread cereal group: (also cornmeal, grits, macaroni, noodles, rice and spaghetti) four or more servings daily of the whole grain, enriched, or restored kinds. Check the labels. You may not follow this plan every day, but should as a general rule be guided by it. Here is sample menu for those of you who are following BIP.

SAMPLE MENUS

Breakfast

Three-quarter cup oatmeal, 1 cup skim milk (8 ozs.), 2 teaspoons sugar, 1 slice toast with ½ teaspoon butter or margarine.

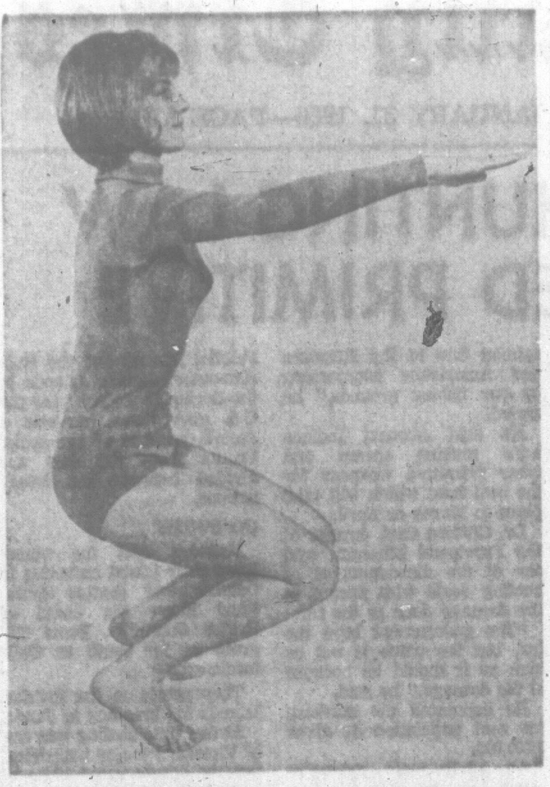
Luncheon

Salad of medium-sized tomato and 1 hard-boiled egg, with ¾ tbsp. mayonnaise, 1 small hard roll with ½ teaspoon butter, 1 cup of milk (skim).

Dinner

Four ounces tomato juice, lean beef pot roast—4 ounces, no gravy or juice, ½ cup spinach or other greens, ½ cup carrots, ½ tsp. butter on vegetables and season with herbs, ½ of a medium baked potato, teaspoon sour cream and chopped parslay, small bunch of grapes.

TOTAL calories for day 1,135.



The following exercise, which is easy, improves balance and coordination and firms the legs. Stand erect with your toes pointing straight forward and your arms hanging at your sides. Bend the knees halfway down as your heels leave the floor. At the same time raise your arms forward to shoulder height, shoulder width apart. Return to starting position. Be sure to keep the trunk erect. Continue.

If you failed to clip the BIP columns and would like to have my complete Eight-Week Beauty Improvement Plan in a booklet send 25 cents plus 15 cents for postage and handling to Josephine Lowman in care of this newspaper. The BIP Kit contains exercises, a calorie chart, beauty hints and a unique wall chart on which you plot your daily progress.

DEAR ABBY . . .

You Can't!

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: My father is the most stubborn man in the world. Nobody can tell him anything. He had seat belts put in our car as soon as they came out, and he gave us kids a big long lecture on how we should always use them, but HE never uses them himself. When I tell him he forgot to fasten his seat belt, he says he is going only a short distance and it doesn't pay to bother. I have tried to tell him that it takes only a few seconds to fasten a seat belt and it might save his life, but he gets mad at me for speaking up to him. He has a very ugly temper, and I have to be careful what I say to him or I'll end up with a fat lip. How can a 14-year-old boy tell his father to practice what he preaches?

FOURTEEN

DEAR FOURTEEN: Tell him that the National Safety Council estimates that most automobile accidents occur within 25 miles of the victim's homes. But don't tell him to practice what he preaches or you're apt to get a "belt" in the chops.

DEAR ABBY: My in-laws' religion is against smoking, drinking and playing cards. Ours is not. In the evening we will have a cigarette, and perhaps a drink. And if we have company, we will play cards. His parents never call, they just drop in unexpectedly, which puts us in an embarrassing spot. My husband expects me and our guests to hide the drinks and cards. I think this is wrong. Do you think I should do as my husband asks and live this falsehood?

WONDERING

DEAR WONDERING: Your in-laws surely must know that YOUR religion does not prohibit smoking, drinking and card-playing. And if they don't, it's time they did. "Hiding" the evidence, as your husband asks, is degrading and deceitful. And he's probably not getting away with it anyway. Tell him to grow up and act like a big boy.

DEAR ABBY: We have been married since last August and we are still living with my mother-in-law. I have painted two apartments and my wife wouldn't move into either one of them. She just won't leave her mother. We are expecting in a couple of months. I love her, Abby, and she says she loves me. I want to live alone with my own new family. What do you advise?

TROUBLED

DEAR TROUBLED: Unless your wife leaves her mother voluntarily to make a home for you, it won't be much of a home. She is still her mother's little girl, and may need some professional counselling to fit her for the role of wife and mother. The Family and Children's Service provides this kind of counselling. See them.

Ease Scouring Chore With Metal-Cleaner

By Penny Saver

The kitchen is often referred to as the housewife's domain. Most homemakers spend most of their time in their kitchens, preparing meals for their hungry families. Because of the extensive time spent in that room, it should be bright and cheery, so that even on the dreariest of days, it is a welcome, rather than dreaded, place to be.

Shining metal appliances and utensils help to brighten up any kitchen. If they are kept polished, they add to the spotlessness of the over-all picture.

The thought of polishing metal items is very appalling to most of us. However, if you get into the habit of wiping them clean after each use, the task is very small indeed. The initial cleaning, to rid grease and grime from the neglected appliances, is the hardest part.

In one shop I found a metal cleaner that will be a great boon to this job. Apply it sparingly with a cloth until a black residue appears. Then wash it off with a mild soap, and rub dry.

Selling for 99 cents, this cleaner can even be used on the metal on your car or boat.

Cleaning is quite a chore, and precautions can be taken to avoid extra work, especially against stubborn stains on woodwork. Coffee tables, for example, can be protected with coasters. In one store, I found some, imported from Formosa. These are made of chrysanthemum wood, and sell for $4.25.

Salt and pepper shakers, made of the same wood, have the shape of snowmen. These have little metal caps on top, and sell for $4.25.

Candle-holders, also made of chrysanthemum wood, sell for $2.65 the 3½-inch size, and $4.25 for one four inches taller.

Another useful, decorative article is a three-tier sandwich or cake server, selling for $6.25. Made of china, the design is of roses in pink and yellow tones.

One very unique item sells for $12.95. It is a lighter, in the form of a knight in full armor. The top of his helmet lifts to reveal the lighter mechanism. This device, I'm sure, will draw compliments from all your guests.

Loses Inches— Gains Confidence

HYDE, England (Reuters)—Anne Rowston, whose height of six feet, seven inches was cut by surgeons to about six feet, has started her first job in two years. The 20-year-old girl who spent years of embarrassment being too tall to walk in a crowd now finds she is virtually unnoticed among workers at the leather factory where she is employed.

SEW SIMPLE WITH Eunice Farmer

Dear Eunice:

I am frantic and don't know what to do. My first experience with an expensive piece of material and my suit front won't "do right!" The front of the jacket just pokes out like a shelf in front below my bust. No matter how much I take in the side seams, it won't hang right. Please help me.

Mrs. M.W.

Dear Mrs. M.W.:

The jacket pokes out in front because the dart shaping isn't correct for your figure. You didn't tell me whether your suit had a dart under the bust. If it does, the dart should be made deeper. If the suit doesn't have a dart at the waistline, you may add one just below the full part of the bust. Also, make the dart deeper at the underarm. Between these two dart alterations the lower part of the jacket should fit closer to your body. Don't over-fit!

Mrs. W. J. Conaway is this week's winner of a Tailor Trix pressing board for the following suggestion.

"During a wardrobe check, prior to my daughter's return to college, we found some perfectly good full-skirted cotton dresses which she didn't want to wear again. Hating to discard the dresses, my daughter came up with a clever money-saving idea! With a long zipper, a little inexpensive rim and an attractive yoke, we transformed the fabric from the skirts into comfortable, pretty, 'dorm-shifts' to relax and study in. Any young homemaker would also love these shifts for morning house dresses and her husband would be quite pleased with her ingenuity."

YOUR SEWING GLOSSARY:

Discotheque: When used in reference to a dress, it usually means a black, low-necked, long sleeved or sleeveless dress with a flounce around the lower edge. Definitely reminiscent of the 20's.

The Women's Auxiliary to the Canadian National Institute for the Blind is anxious to increase its ranks. Its president, Mrs. G. H. Jones, emphasizes, "Our work is an all-year effort and, now that we have more than 200 blind citizens in our community, we need to raise our numbers if we are to do all we want to for them."

Mrs. Jones is hoping that would-be members will make an appearance at the CNIB Institute at 1309 Blanshard Street when the auxiliary meets there next Friday at 2:30 p.m.

Main purpose of the meeting is to finalize plans or the marking of Canadian National White Cane Week, which begins the following Sunday and continues until Feb. 12. That Sunday, a special service will be held at 11 a.m. in the Church of Our Lord, to mark the opening of the national observance.

Wears Gown of Lace Over Taffeta

MARION WILLIAMS WED

A floor-length gown of white lace over taffeta was worn by Marion Elizabeth Williams when she became the bride of William Joseph Tamburino in Oak Bay United Church Saturday evening.

The bodice of the full-skirted gown featured sleeves ending in lily points. Her chapel-length veil misted from a coronet of pearls and crystals, and she carried a bouquet of orchids and carnations. Only jewelry was crystal earrings.

Rev. A. Calder officiated at the ceremony uniting the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. J. Williams, 2211 Cadboro Bay Road, and the son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Tamburino of Vancouver. Mr. Williams gave his daughter in marriage.

"The Wedding Prayer" and "The Lord's Prayer" were sung by Miss Wendy Cox.

At the reception following in Holyrood House, the bride and groom cut a three-tier wedding cake that was flanked with arrangements of roses. T. E. Pagdin proposed the toast to the bride.

Following a honeymoon trip to San Francisco, the couple will make their home at 435 Michigan Street.

BLUE AND GOLD THEME

Salt Spring Island Group Holds Dinner at Ganges

Arrangements of gold chrysanthemums, flanked with blue and gold candelabra, centred guests' tables when Salt Spring Island Branch, Old Age Pensioners' Organization, held its annual dinner. These are the colors of the organization.

The dinner was followed with slides, shown by Archdeacon Holmes. Mrs. Krebs convened the dinner, assisted by Mrs. Elsie Thacker and Mrs. A. W. Barber.

Can Science Now Cure Baldness?
Until recently, any claim to cure baldness was suspect. Constant failures have made people skeptical of such claims. EERIE FASHIONS—When the lights went out at the close of Capucci's spring collection fashion showing in Paris, viewers saw this parade of eerily luminous bodies float by. The phantom females were garbed in the young designer's new chemically-treated cotton formal wear, ideal for power failures. Sketch by Charline Glascock. (AP Wirephoto)

It Finally Happened—Designer Produces Plastic Evening Gowns

PARIS (UPI)—Plastic dresses that will never have to go to the cleaners made their bow in the spring collection of Roberto Capucci Saturday.

From the minute his mannequins entered the salon in hats that looked like hair dryers—linen pillboxes covered with plastic bubbles—the audience could see that the Capucci's spring clothes would be futuristic.

With the hairdryer hats, the girls wore woollen suits, raincoats or short white satin evening gowns covered with a thin sheet of transparent plastic, like that used for car-seat covers.

One white satin plastic cocktail dress had a plastic-covered bare midriff. A white evening dress had a strip of satin cut out above the hem of the skirt so the mannequin's legs were seen through the plastic as if through a window.

Capucci also showed white evening slippers with low transparent plastic heels.

To wind up the show, the Italian designer displayed cotton evening gowns that glowed in the dark, the purpose of which was hard to define.

The Capucci collection was pretty enough without gimmicks. Since he considers short sleeves necessary for spring and summer, everything had sleeves hitting the middle of the upper arm, from colored plastic raincoats to coats, dresses and evening dresses.

Other Paris fashion salons have been in an uproar throughout the collections trying to prevent publication of photographs of the fashions ahead of the agreed Feb. 28 publication date.

The salons traditionally ask journalists to sign agreements that no fashion photographs will be published until store buyers have time to get their purchases into production. This is to prevent copyists from stealing the ideas.

Friday the showing of Pierre Cardin, traditionally jammed with excited Cardin devotees, was more lively than usual because three unauthorized persons were caught with cameras.

A salon executive confiscated the cameras—amid laughter and applause—and held them until after the show. Only photographers known and trusted were allowed to take pictures, and those must be held for publication Feb. 28.

One French newspaper ignored the release date, and on Friday published two photographs of dresses from the Christian Dior collection.

The Dior salon announced that ". . . unless the matter is regulated amicably or by the courts, no representative of the publication will be allowed to enter again the House of Christian Dior."

Fashion sources said that by agreement all of the salons are cracking down on copyists who could crib ideas of the new spring fashions. One journalist was stopped from sketching during the show of Pierre Balmain on Tuesday.

First Anniversary

The Ladies' Auxiliary to the Victoria Diabetic Association will mark the first anniversary of its formation with a meeting and social hour to be held in the home of Mrs. B. Morgan, 3557 Saanich Road, on Wednesday, Feb. 9, at 1:30 p.m. The organization held its first meeting in the nurses' residence of St. Joseph's Hospital on Feb. 8, 1965, electing Mrs. C. W. Gorby as president. The group now has 16 members.

Its main project is the raising of funds in order to assist in sending diabetic children to summer camp. Last year $180.75 was raised for this purpose. To date $205.30 has been raised toward a camp to be held this summer.

BRIDAL BIKINI

PARIS (UPI) — Designer Yves Saint-Laurent unveiled a Jollies Bergere-like spring fashion today of sheer organdy short dresses with only beaded bikinis underneath.

Although high fashion has ignored the bosom this year, Paris is burning with the "nude look" — cut-outs, bare midriffs, shoulders and backs.

Buyers who viewed the opening Saint-Laurent presentation were either amused or scandalized by the organdy shifts with demure long sleeves and high necklines. Underneath the models wore nothing but a few rows of strategically placed beads and bras that bared the navel.

Shower To Save Babies

Miss Beulah Bourns, R.N.

There were 35 hungry little mouths and twice as many emaciated little hands, all reaching for the spoonfuls of powdered milk. These 35 starved tiny babies were the first of Beulah Bourns' babies—children orphaned or abandoned by the war in Korea.

Following the bombing raids in the far eastern country, Canadian soldiers faced the piteous sight of small children, lost and desperately trying to find food, homes and families — and the nightmare of hunger-ridden babies, crawling in ditches, abandoned in doorways or left on the grounds of the Severence Hospital.

At this time, some of the missionaries (all had been evacuated during the war) were returning back to the Severence Hospital and among them were Miss Beulah Bourns and Dr. Florence Murray, serving under the United Church of Canada.

Some of the soldiers had learned that a nurse would be arriving with the missionaries, so they met Miss Bourns at the boat and escorted her to a small shack, where she was greeted with the sight of the first 35 of her babies — many without clothes and all unfed. With no feeding bottles available, she had to give them powdered milk by spoon.

Miss Bourns and "her babies" had only the use of two small basement rooms in the hospital. But with the help freely given by the Canadian soldiers, the rubble was cleared away from the bomb-pocked area, beds and equipment were repaired and cleaned, and the sick and starving Korean waifs were carried to their hospital.

Today, Severence Hospital is modernized and even features a milk dispensary, where mothers can obtain whole milk or formulas for their sick children.

On Saturday, Feb. 12. Miss Bourns will arrive in Victoria. That Sunday she will speak to the morning and evening services in Metropolitan United Church.

The following afternoon, the Metropolitan United Church Women will hold a rather unique baby shower — a shower for Beulah Bourns' Babies, the refugee children she is caring for in Korea. The shower will begin at 2 p.m. in the Pendray Hall and suggested gifts are simple items for a baby's needs — gowns, vests, diapers, socks, sweaters and blankets.

Miss Bourns will leave for Korea at the end of February, after a furlough of eight months. She is a graduate of the Winnipeg General Hospital and was commissioned by the United Church of Canada for service in 1932.

BY CO-ORDINATOR AT IODE TEA

Exchange Program Explained

Two programs, designed to give overseas and Victoria students a university and general education in another country and a chance to meet the people, were outlined by Miss Linde Baker when she spoke to members of the 10 Victoria IODE chapters and the Municipal Chapter. Miss Baker, Tanganyika foreign students co-ordinator at the University of Victoria, gave a resume of the programs and a brief biography of the seven overseas students, at a no-host tea in the Oak Bay Beach Hotel.

The two programs, she explained, were the reciprocal plan, with Japan and Chile, in which the Uvic administration waives tuition cost and the student is taken care of by the Uvic students, by means of a fund of the Alma Mater Society. The overseas student does, however, pay his way to and from each country.

The other plan she discussed is the African student program which works in conjunction with the African Student Foundation in Toronto.

The students again have their tuition waived by the administration, but money for their care is raised independently by Uvic students. Transportation is paid by the African Student Foundation.

The tea was given to meet the overseas students: Richard Fred Ochillo, Paul Attlee Mutanda and Miss Eudorah A. Bodo of Kenya; Miss Yutaka Shinoda and Manako Koga of Tokyo, Miss Maria Luisa Sottovia, Santiago, Chile, and Clarence Edwards, Antigua, West Indies.

BANK CONSULTANT GIVES OPINION

Housewife 'Natural' for Finance Minister

A woman as Canadian minister of finance is long overdue, Victoria Lions were told Friday.

And, the most suitable candidate would be a housewife who has raised a large family on a small budget. The claim to financial wizardry in women was put to the Lions by Miss Holly Armstrong, women's consultant for the Toronto-Dominion Bank of Canada.

Miss Armstrong was speaking on "Dolls and Dollars," or "Women and Finance."

"There is no better training place to learn to handle money than in marriage," Miss Armstrong said. "Indeed, in the majority of Canadian households men may earn the money, but it is the women's responsibility to put it to best use."

Out of every consumer dollar women decide how 85 cents will be spent. Among statistics cited to prove her point, Miss Armstrong said women spent $224 million a year on cosmetics and toiletries alone.

Women play a larger and more important part in the country's economy than most men realize, the speaker said.

MEN OUTNUMBERED

They outnumber and outlive men and as a result of this longevity collect a lot of money in inheritance—nearly 80 per cent of life insurance proceeds.

More than 52 per cent of all money is in women's hands. They also control more than 50 per cent of the shares in Canadian companies. Further to this, 30 per cent of women over 14 years of age have independent earnings, although one-fifth only work part time.

"Despite this economic power, many women still think money is a man's world. This is a delusion," Miss Armstrong said.

She spoke of the family budget as a safety factor in preserving marriage.

"Financial stability in marriage will give marital stability," she said. Studies show that financial problems are the main cause of marital discord.

Miss Armstrong stressed the importance of women learning as much about their husband's financial affairs as possible. Six out of 10 wives survive their husbands, she said.

It is important a woman should know the whereabouts of all the family's legal and financial documents.

"They have an instinct for this and they are quite thorough in their study of potential money makers," she said.

CITY LAWYER MAINTAINS:

Drivers to Be 'Intimidated' If Breath Test Law Adopted

By RON SUDLOW
Police Reporter

Too impaired to drive after only two ounces of hard liquor?

It can appen, says city lawyer Jack Gatehouse who is opposed to the provincial government plan for compulsory breath tests on drinking drivers.

The law could disqualify drivers whose blood has a prohibitive concentration of alcohol.

"Society has not caught up with the law in this respect," said Mr. Gatehouse.

He said most motorists do not understand the impaired driving charge and don't realize the scope of compulsory breath tests.

Requirements needed to get an impaired driving conviction have been dropping steadily over the past 10 to 15 years, he said.

"It's time the public was told what impaired driving is and what it takes to be impaired."

It has been proven a person can become impaired in his ability to drive with a blood-alcohol count of .05, the lawyer said.

YOU WOULDN'T KNOW

"But even at that level," Mr. Gatehouse said, "you don't know you're impaired.

"A person's co-ordination would still seem normal to him.

"And even at .15 you don't show any physical aberration." (At .15 and beyond most courts rule drivers impaired.)

He referred to a recent case where a man was convicted of impaired driving and had a .17 reading.

The man was asked to do several physical tests by police such as walking a straight line and a finger-to-nose test.

"As far as he was concerned, he performed the tests properly and he thought he was all right."

When the breath test result was introduced in court it was corroborative evidence only.

SMALL THINGS

"But this reading allows the police and the magistrate to use any small thing at all to find a man impaired.

"He may fumble through his wallet while trying to find his driver's licence. Or he may dial contact a lawyer or his wife.

"Although a breath reading is for corroboration, it could become incriminatory when an expert is called in to testify," Mr. Gatehouse said.

"A person could walk out of a cocktail party after two or three drinks, be impaired and not know it.

"Amd once the police get that breath reading, they can start building a case," Mr. Gatehouse said.

He opposes compulsory breath tests for that reason.

He said drivers will be "intimidated" if the legislation follows the Saskatchewan plan where licences are suspended for refusing to take the test.

Aussies Take Last 'Six O'Clock Swill'

MELBOURNE (Reuters)—Australians here today took their last "six o'clock swill" with sighs of relief, and an era ended for the drinkers of Victoria state.

For the last 50 years they have been gulping down their beer because bars close at 6 p.m. after opening at 9:05 a.m.

Under a new law passed by the state government last year and effective Tuesday, drinking hours are to be extended to 10 p.m.

Despite warnings by temperance stalwarts that it will be known as "black Tuesday," most of Melbourne's 662 bigger hotels were expected to be jumping Tuesday night. Many people organized parties to celebrate their new freedom.

Victorians are primarily beer drinkers. They claim that their beer, all made by one company, is the best in the world.

They also claim to serve the stuff faster than any country in the world. A triggered hand tap with a flexible hose linked with the barrels fills glasses at bewildering speed.

But along with the sweet pill, drinkers have to take a bitter one as well — a new tough road law.

Under this law, a man is unfit for driving after drinking about four seven - ounce beers in 20 minutes or six in 50 minutes, without food.

Police will know that a man has passed his limit it he shows a blood alcohol content of 0.05 per cent.

Victoria is only catching up with most of Australia in extending drinking hours. After Tuesday, South Australia will be the only state which closes its bars at 6 p.m.

DO IT ON YOUR OWN, STUDENTS TOLD

College Lectures Just a Drag?

CAMBRIDGE, Mass. (AP)—Twenty-five Harvard medical students say lectures are dull and a waste of time. So they're being excused from class—and told to study on their own.

"The psychological effect of sitting in a class and being lectured and 'labbed' at is to make you passive, dull, lose motivation and curiosity."

Weil, a leader of the student group that successfully petitioned Dean Robert H. Ebert to be excused from classes for the rest of the year, said medical schools are throwing too many organized laboratory sessions and too many lectures at their medical students.

He said "most of the time the lectures are giving information that can be found in books, and found much quicker."

They will be divided into groups of five to devise their own learning techniques with the help of volunteer faculty advisers.

They will take the same examinations as their 81 classmates and will attend the lectures that interest them.

Young Actors Win Spurs On First Show

By AUDREY JOHNSON

THE RED SHOES
Adapted by Gini Lefever

Karen	Wendy Packard
Granny	Margaret Martin
Gypsy	Lawrence Eastick
Burgomaster	J. F. Carney
Nels	Peter Gordon
Jemmo	John Scaife

A bright and lively entertainment for big and little people young enough to enjoy fairy tales, The Red Shoes, Bastion Theatre's first Young Company production, premiered Saturday at McPherson Playhouse.

Versatile Gini Lefever, already well known as a dancer-comedienne, directed as well as adapted this miniature musical comedy.

Her talents quite clearly spread in any direction in which she chooses to turn. She had filled the show with many inventions—nimble-footed Granny, a wonderful chase, an air-borne escape.

PONDEROUS

It is doubtful though whether one or two of the songs, especially the Mata Hari number, had any meaning for the youthful audience and some of the dialogue seemed a bit ponderous.

Irrepressible Margaret Martin was sheer delight as Granny. Her fleet movement, her expressive face and gestures make any show of this kind.

Lawrence Eastick provided a genuinely "pantomime" villain with all the tricks of the trade plus a few of his own that included effects of dazzling speed.

John Scaife's Jemmo is a performance full of promise that will improve greatly when he becomes less anxious and a trifle less "busy."

OVER-ACTING

Wendy Packard as the heroine, Karen, moves well, speaks well and looks extremely attractive. But in her zeal to achieve style she has fallen into the trap of over-acting and often produces a strained effect.

John Scaife, who was also responsible for the pleasing costumes and the sets, gave a well thought out performance and Peter Gordon was convincing as the hero, Nels.

NEXT SATURDAY

From 19-year-old Peter Yakimovitch who arranged and performed the music, and 22-year-old director, Gini, to the student back-stage crew, all deserve a "well done" for a promising first production.

The Red Shoes will be seen again twice next Saturday at 10 a.m. and 2 p.m.

Charles Pays Brief Visit To Canberra

He took over the controls as the vessel brought him back to Government House after the only scheduled public appearance of his three-day visit here.

He toured an exhibition displaying models of Canberra development plans.

Nearly 500 persons surged round the prince afterward as he walked down to Lake Burley Griffin to board the waiting launch. Detectives hovered close by.

The Prince will rest at Government House until Wednesday, when he flies to Mangalore Airport in northern Victoria.

From there he will drive about 100 miles to Geelong Grammar School's bush - life annex, Timbertop, where he will spend a term.

WITTY PLAY EXPOSES OUR FOIBLES

Pendulum Swings Blow at Suburbia

By AUDREY ST. D. JOHNSON

ONE WAY PENDULUM
By N. F. Simpson

Kirby Groomkirby	Gordon Rostocker
Robert Barnes	Robert Price
Mable Groomkirby	Evanne Murray
Sylvia Groomkirby	Gillian Farr
Aunt Mildred	Dorothea House
Myra Gentry	Nora Kellie
Arthur Groomkirby	Ken Bostock
Stanley Honeyblock	Dan Christian
The Judge	John Drean
Policeman	John Britt
Clerk of the Court	Tommy Mayne
Prosecuting Counsel	Dougal Fraser
Defending Counsel	Bob Lutes

An extremely witty play that digs its elbow into the ribs of suburbia, mocking the ardent hobbyist, the fetish-ridden housewife, the do-it-yourself craze, opened at Langham Court Theatre Saturday night.

As Victoria Theatre Guild's bid for Dominion Drama Festival honors, it is a first-rate choice.

Like most writers in the Theatre of the Absurd, Simpson is preoccupied with man's condition in the modern world, but more with the ludicrousness he imposes upon himself than that imposed by nature.

His tendency for instance to pour time and money into futile, gimmicky projects—in this case the son, Kirby's efforts to teach 500 weighing machines to sing the Hallelujah Chorus. He succeeds, but so what? No one can bear to listen to them.

The play comments on the isolation of members of a family, each within his own self-fabricated shell; on the preoccupation of the wife and mother with trivial detail that makes her oblivious to larger issues; on the escape mechanism of the old aunt who, hunched in her wheel chair, dreams of a hundred modes of conveying herself to a hundred exotic places.

It shows us the confirmed hobbyist, the father, absorbed at the moment in law and carrying it to the extreme of erecting a do-it-yourself kit Old Bailey in the living room.

This leads of course to a trial that out-Wonderlands Alice for ferocity, distortion and illogicality. Simpson's tongue is well in his cheek here as he pokes fun at legal jargon and circumlocution.

John Drean as the judge, realizes the concept extremely well. Dougal Fraser and Bob Lutes are effective as the opposing counsellors.

In a generally competent cast, Gillian Farr and Ken Bostock are two others who were a pleasure to watch.

Bert Farr directs the production with considerable understanding and an eye for detail. But he does not succeed in bringing off the farcical element, mainly, I believe, through a lack of punctuation and rhythm in the movement of the play.

It proceeded Saturday, at a somewhat casual pace which did not vary to any extent and which therefore dulled the sharp blade of the satire.

One Way Pendulum will be repeated nightly this week, through Saturday.

Headquarters Opens To Roar of Flypast

The new headquarters of the RCAF Association No. 800 (Pacific) Wing was officially opened Saturday with low-flying Neptunes in close support.

'TAKE TO AIR'

Liertenant-Governor Pearkes reminded members of the stipulation in their charter which undertakes to "perpetuate the glorious traditions of the air force and encourage young people to take to the air."

He said it is obvious the local wing "is intent on doing the job properly."

The wing supports local charities such as the Cerebral Palsy Association, the Queen Alexandra Solarium, the Victoria Kadettes.

Membership in the association is open to veterans of any allied air force.

Churchill Story 'The Dream' Finally Printed

LONDON (Reuters) — A story by Sir Winston Churchill, said to be his last unpublished writing, appeared in a British newspaper Sunday, the first anniversary of his burial in Bladon Village churchyard.

In a story, called The Dream, published over two pages in the Sunday Telegraph, Churchill tells his dead father of political and international events in the 20th century. Believed to have been written in 1947, it lay locked in a box for years.

Tories Seek To Win Back Vote 'Deserters'

CALGARY (CP) — The Progressive Conservative party must find out why so many voters "deserted us in recent elections, and set out to win back their confidence," George Hees told the party's Alberta association Saturday night.

The former trade minister who returned to Parliament in the Nov. 8 election told the association that the principle objective of the party was to give the country better government.

"To do so, we must, of course, form a government," he added.

To form the government the party would have to do three things:

- Make sure its policies were practical;
- Convince voters its policies were better than those in effect today and that people in the cabinet would be better able to direct the country's affairs than the present cabinet; and
- Nominate early the best possible candidates in all ridings held by other parties.

He suggested formation of a permanent policy group made up of members of Parliament, party members and leaders in various areas of national life. The committee would report to the caucus, which would have final say on all matters.

But the policies must be flexible to be effective, he said.

"Far too often, people in public life believe that it is a sign of weakness to change their stand on an issue, even though important events and altered circumstances make such a change necessary.

"Such a point of view produces stagnation in a party's thinking and makes it impossible for the party to do an effective job when it becomes the government."

LEARNED A LOT

Mr. Hees, who resigned from the Diefenbaker cabinet in 1962 during a dispute over nuclear weapons, said he had learned a great deal during his absence from parliament.

People were "tired of government refusing to face up to the issues of the day" and "tired of those who try to delude them by oratory into believing that all is well."

"They want an over-all plan which all Canadians can understand and take part in."

Funeral Held For Mrs. Ball

Funeral services were held Saturday afternoon for Mrs. Emily C. V. Ball, 67, who died in Victoria Thursday.

Born in Lisbon, North Dakota, Mrs. Ball was a resident here for 50 years.

She is survived by two daughters, Mrs. J. L. Smith and Miss Mary Ball, both of Victoria; two sons, Fred of Victoria and Jack, serving with the RCAF in Germany; one sister, Victoria Munt, in the city.

Canon Frederick Pike officiated at the service in Sands Memorial Chapel of Chimes on Quadra Street, to be followed Quadra Street.

POLICE DON SMOG MASKS IN TOKYO

TOKYO (UPI) — Smog has become so bad in Tokyo that traffic policemen at busy intersections soon will be wearing oxygen inhalers.

About 370 of the policemen will wear the masks during February and March, the season of heaviest fumes.

Traffic policemen suffered from severe headaches, dizziness and nausea because of the fumes, the police department said.

'Priesthood Silent On Death Penalty'

TORONTO (CP)—The Canadian Society for the Abolition of the Death Penalty plans to set up a two-man Ottawa information bureau.

Society President Arthur Maloney, a Toronto lawyer, said Saturday at the group's annual meeting that several members of Parliament have asked for such a bureau so they can check the accuracy of arguments used in the expected Commons debate on capital punishment.

Another speaker, Rev. J. M. Kelly, criticized the Roman Catholic priesthood for not speaking out on the issue.

"If the Roman Catholic voice has been heard, it has generally been the voice of the laymen," said Father Kelly, president of St. Michael's College, University of Toronto.

"I feel obliged to be here because I think it necessary to add at least one . . . priest's voice to the crusade.'

MARATHON KREBIOZEN TRIAL

Cancer Cure Trio Freed

CHICAGO (AP)—The fourth and final verdict in the marathon fraud and conspiracy trial involving krebiozen may depend on the health of a woman juror.

With three of the four defendants already acquitted, the U.S. district court jury was deliberating the fate of Dr. Stevan Durovic, the developer of krebiozen, Sunday afternoon.

Suddenly a juror, Mrs. Lois Clark, 40, suffered an asthma attack in the jury room and had to be carried to her hotel.

Defence and prosecution lawyers scheduled a meeting today with Judge Julies J. Hoffman to hear a report on Mrs. Clark's condition.

Excitement gripped the courtroom Saturday afternoon when the jurors, after hearing nine months of testimony, acquitted on all counts Dr. Andrew C. Ivy, Marko Durovic and Dr. William F. P. Phillips.

The jurors said they were still deliberating the 40 charges against Dr. Durovic, 60, and against the Krebiozen Research Foundation.

Dr. Ivy, 72, is chief medical sponsor of krebiozen and director of medical research at Roosevelt University. Maeko Durovic, 64, is Stevan's brother and a lawyer. Dr. Phillips, 52, administered krebiozen to cancer patients as a general practitioner.

The four were charged with mail fraud and conspiracy in the sale and promotion of krebiozen.

Supporters contend krebiozen, which they say is obtained by complicated means from the blood serum of horses, has anti-cancer properties. The government contends it is a fraud.

BRIDGE LESSON

By JACOBY AND SON

The forcing two bid is an integral part of standard American bidding and used by nearly all American bridge players. There is one glaring exception. The top players don't use it.

Opening lead—♣K.

In the recent team trials 35 of the 36 pairs used weak two bids; the other pair used ACOL two bids. All 36 used the opening two clubs as an artificial forcing bid.

These experts have found that weak two bids are effective and that the artificial two club opening fully handles all forcing situations.

The basic feature of the weak two bid is that the opening bid of two in any suit except clubs shows a good six-card suit and a hand that is a trifle below an opening bid in high card strength.

South opens with a weak two spade call. North has a nice hand but it is obvious to him that there is no game and he passes. South makes two spades right on the nose. He may even make an overtrick if the defence slips, but two spades is a safe contract.

Without the weak two bid South would pass. Maybe North would open the bidding and South might restrain himself and merely bid one and two spades, but the chances are that if North opened the bidding, South would get to three or four spades and go down. Or maybe North would simply pass and the hand could be passed out. In either case, the result would not be as good as attained by the weak two bid.

Andy Stephen Looks at TV

The 1939 movie, "The Wizard of Oz," scared the daylights out of the little guy in our home, but its annual rerun on CBS-TV ranked as the No. 1 show in the latest ratings.

Stephen

ABC-TV, quick to pick up a cue, is planning a new television series of movies using the Oz character as animated "hosts."

It will be a weekly one-hour program in an early-evening prime-time period and aimed at family viewing. The series will present both new productions and family feature films, many of them acknowledged literary and screen classics.

* * *

ABC-TV doesn't plan to show the movies, like The Adventures of Huckleberry Finn, Tarzan or Laurel and Hardy, in one night Oh, no. It will follow the lead of Walt Disney and CBC-TV's Passport to Adventure. The movies will be spread out over two or three weeks.

From this corner it looks like just another television night at the movies. It points up, too, the great lack of imagination of those responsible for television programming.

At the top of this piece, we noted "Oz" as placing No. 1 in the most recent ratings. How did other shows rate?

* * *

CBS-TV's Secret Agent, imported from Britain, finished ahead of two of the three weekly episodes of ABC-TV's highly-promoted Peyton Place, and one notch below the third.

The Thursday Peyton Place finished 53rd, the Monday piece tied for 55th and Tuesday's segment came in 70th.

* * *

Hogan's Heroes, the new comedy show in a prisoner-of-war camp, which started high up in the ratings has slipped to 22nd place.

But there is something to look forward to in the future. CBS-TV has Arthur Miller preparing the adult classic, Death of a Salesman, for April 3 in a special two-hour production starring Lee J. Cobb and Mildred Dunnock in their original Broadway roles.

Peculiar Disease Of Heart Not Fatal

By DR. WALTER ALVAREZ

Some people are wondering if they should worry about having paroxysmal tachycardia. "Paroxysm" means a spell; "tachy" means fast, and "cardia" means heart. Hence, in this peculiar disease, a man's heartbeat will suddenly jump perhaps from 70 beats per minute to 170 beats per minute. It will go at this fast rate for minutes or hours, and then suddenly change back to normal. Usually all it produces is a discomfort.

Alvarez

I doubt if anyone knows exactly why these spells come or go. Many people have learned to stop their spells by various contortions. I remember a man who for years suffered from a severe form of this disease. He got well when at last he quit his chain smoking. The fact that I have never seen the disease kill anybody should be encouraging.

* * *

People sometimes write to ask why one or both legs swell during the day. It is very important to note if the swelling is in both legs, or in only one. When only one leg swells, this suggests that there is something wrong with arteries or the veins in that leg and thigh, or in that side of the pelvis. If both legs swell, the disease is likely to be up in the heart or the kidneys.

A peculiar type of swelling of one or both legs, which is fairly common in women, is called lymphedema. Lymph is the somewhat milky fluid which runs through tiny tubes through the tissues—to bring nourishment to the body cells. "Edema" means the presence of abnormally large amounts of fluid in a tissue. The lymphedema is due to something wrong with the tiny tubes that carry the lymph around. In some cases, these tiny tubes were probably poorly formed before the person was born.

* * *

When a swelling of the legs is due to a dropsy, the leg pits with the pressure of a finger; for some seconds after the physician presses, a little pit or depression will be left. With lymphedema, there is no such pitting.

Unfortunately, it is hard to get rid of lymphedema. One can try sleeping with the foot of the bed raised some six inches or so. Some women are helped by wearing a rubber bandage or an elastic stocking. There is an operation in which the swollen layer of tissue between the skin and the muscle or bone is removed, but it is a big and difficult and somewhat dangerous procedure.

* * *

When people ask me what to do for swollen legs, I cannot answer, because I haven't the facts I would need before I could guess what the cause was. Even when an able physician has been able to examine the heart and the kidneys and the arteries and veins of the legs, he still may not know exactly what is wrong.

Peter Banfield Wins Top Award Of Navy League

Peter Banfield, 18, of 642 Langford, Victoria, has been awarded the top Navy League of Canada trophy.

A member of the Rainbow Sea Cadets, Peter was recently presented the trophy by W. George, president of the Victoria branch of the Navy League of Canada.

Peter, a student at Uvic, has completed four years as a cadet. In 1964 he topped a 95-student boatswain's course at HMCS Cornwallis, N.S., and won the trophy for most outstanding cadet in the Martime Command (Pacific).

Corralled Whales Flee Aquarium Fate

The herd had been trapped at Port Madison at the north end of Bainbridge Island by the Chinook which had been hunting for a mate for the Seattle Public Aquarium's bull killer whale Namu.

Don Goldsberry, assistant director of the aquarium, said two bull killer whales, two cows and from two to four calves were in the herd.

HE GIVES AWAY GRAND PRIZES

Is there something you want to know? Do you want to win a set of valuable books or other instructive prizes? Then ask Andy.

Andy will answer questions submitted by child readers and those who submit the questions he selects to answer will receive worthwhile prizes.

The youngster who asks the first question answered each day receives a 20-volume set of the World Book Encyclopedia and of the second question a Hammond Atlas or Globe.

Andy sends a complete, 20-volume set of the World Book Encyclopedia to Mark Howard, age 8, of Helton, Ky., for his question:

Will we ever use up the air?

We shall never run out of fresh air to breathe so long as there are green forests. But human beings are messy people. We dump dirty debris into the fresh running water of our streams. We let smoke and smelly fumes escape into the fresh air given to us by the trees.

We live in the Age of Science and every age of history has its problems. Nowadays there are more machines and more factories than ever before. Some of these wonderful gadgets give off fumes and choking gases. Cars give off gases that cause smog to form in the air, and smog makes us cough and causes our smarting eyes to stream with tears. Smoggy air is one of the messy problems to be solved in this Age of Science.

The air is a mixture of gases and the gas we need to breathe is oxygen. Less than a quarter of ordinary air is oxygen gas. Everyone needs to breathe in oxygen, day and night. All the animals need oxygen and so do the plants. At this stupendous rate, you would think that the supply of oxygen soon would be gone.

In fact, all the oxygen would be used up in a few weeks if no fresh oxygen were added to the air. We have an endless supply of air to breathe because new supplies of oxygen are added every day. Tons and more tons of precious oxygen are poured out every day by green plants and leafy trees. So long as the earth had greenery, we shall never run out of fresh, breathable air.

Factory Smoke Spoil Air

The plants use up oxygen as we do, day and night. They also pour out carbon dioxide just as we breathe out waste carbon dioxide gas. But green plants use up our waste carbon dioxide to make their food. In the daylight hours they carry on a magical process called photosynthesis. This is the sunshine recipe that green plants use to make food from carbon dioxide, water and sunlight.

Photosynthesis also gives off a waste gas — and its waste gas is oxygen. Through the sunny hours the plants give off enough oxygen for themselves and for all the animals and people in the world. The winds waft this fresh air around and around the globe.

Andy sends a 15-inch World Book Globe to Janet Weiland, age 7, of Van Nuys, Calif., for her question:

How does a squirrel find the nuts he hides?

Sooner or later every young nature lover wonders about this problem. In the fall, we watch busy Mr. Bushytail scuttling from tree to tree. He is searching for nuts to hide. If we are lucky, we may see him scoop out a shallow hole in the ground or dip his hand in a hollow tree. He has found a suitable place to tuck away a few nuts, just in case he needs a snack on some cold winter morning.

The busy fellow hides stores of nuts in all the likely places he knows. When the snows come, he goes searching for a snack, but the squirrel does not remember all his hiding places. He goes around looking in all the likely places. And since he hid nuts in all the likely places, he is sure to find some of his hordes — by accident.

WORKERS FORGET AND THEN—GULP!

Tack Swallowing Act All in Day's Work

HIGH POINT, N.C. (AP) — Cliff Kennedy can chew gum on one side of his jaw and keep a handful of tacks in the other while working.

That's nothing.

Kennedy and Cromer are "tack spitters" at one of the many furniture plants in High Point.

A tack spitter throws a handful of tacks in his mouth, then spits them out head first onto a magnetized hammer he uses in upholstering chairs and sofas.

The speed of the workers is so remarkable that Bill Horne Jr., a plant superintendent and former tack spitter, said, "I wonder sometimes when I stand off and watch some of the workers if a tack is on the end of the hammer every time it hits."

Horne swallowed a handful of tacks once, but it didn't frighten him.

"Doctors said the acid in my stomach would dissolve the tacks. Apparently it did because I never had any ill effects from it."

"You can work with tacks so long," Horne explained, "that you become unaware they're in your mouth. I went to lunch one day and bit down on the food before I discovered I had forgotten to take the tacks out of my mouth."

The tack spitter is gradually being replaced in some plants by workers who use stapling guns.

'Make Up Own Minds' Pupils Told

A history professor Saturday advised prospective university students not to believe everything they hear from their professors.

Professor Sydney Jackman of the University of Victoria was speaking to 70 Greater Victoria high school students who will likely go to university next year.

His advice to them: question everything you hear; doubt everything you see; and make up your own mind.

Dr. Jackman said that what is generally considered to be true is often only something that is respectable and useful. "Victoria's 'little bit of Olde England' is an example."

Dr. Jackman told the students, "You must be the judges (of what is true). You may say I am subverting your moral character. But anybody whose character is seduced by a book or a lecture has no character anyway."

Richmond Seaport Sought

The provincial government Friday was urged by a backbencher to launch detailed studies aimed at developing a deep seaport on Richmond municipality's shoreline.

Speaker was Hunter Vogel (SC—Delta) who seconded the reply to the throne speech.

Mr. Vogel, who's contituency includes the area, said the government should order an engineering study complete with construction of a hydraulic model of the development, and a market study.

"I think the provincial government should undertake this study because I think it should take the initiative in finally establishing a new operating authority and the policies under which the authorities would function," he said.

The provincial government should "put together a proposition and submit it to the federal authority" so that up to 4,000 acres of land could be reclaimed as well as docking facilities developed.

Constable Takes It On the Chin

It has been a rough two weeks for Constable Brian Hayes.

Friday night he was punched by the driver of a speeding auto and Thursday in central court Thomas Johnson, 1346 May, admitted assaulting him.

The latter incident occurred Jan. 15 when Const. Hayes was investigating a complaint of a prowler in the Fernwood area.

He found Johnson being held for questioning by Dogmaster George Barr and when the man was released, he struck the police officer.

Further investigation revealed Johnson was not involved in the prowling incident, court was told. He was remanded to Feb. 5 for sentence.

Threat of Cave-Ins

BOSTON (AP) — Workers shored up charred beams today before the search continued at the Paramount Hotel, destroyed by an explosion and fire Friday that claimed at least 10 lives. The search had moved slowly under the threat of cave-ins in the weakened structure and in the rutted street.

WIND PILES UP DRIFTS

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Strong winds added force to the blows, disrupting life even in some areas where no snow was falling. These localities—mostly in Ontario—were buried by a massive snowfall a week ago and today's heavy winds were blowing the product of that storm back over highways and roads.

Winds of up to 80 miles an hour drove heavy rain over the southern sections of the Maritimes Sunday and snow over the northern areas. A storm which began Thursday had covered some areas with 21 inches of snow, clogging most secondary roads and stifling transportation.

In southern Nova Scotia Sunday trees and overhead wires were felled. Air Canada officials said several flights in the Maritimes were cancelled by high winds.

CLOSE OTTAWA SCHOOLS

All schools were closed today in Ottawa, which suffered its heaviest 24-hour snowfall in history. By this morning 16.4 inches had fallen and another two inches were expected. The previous record was 12.5 inches Dec. 31, 1942.

The capital's problems were complicated by winds of 30 to 35 miles an hour, gusting to 45, which piled the snow into huge drifts. Side streets were clogged but main thoroughfares were passable.

Many schools were also closed in the Montreal area. That city had a snowfall of 11 inches between Sunday morning and today. The snow tapered off today but drifting continued behind strong winds.

Quebec City, where it was still snowing today, has recorded a fall of 25 inches of snow and rain since Friday. All secondary roads were blocked and many schools were closed.

Quebec and Ontario had winds of 25 to 35 miles an hour, gusting to 50.

SNOW STILL FALLING

Snow was still falling in eastern Ontario and Brockville reported about 20 inches. All schools were closed.

All schools were closed in the communities and townships in the Kingston area where 14 inches of snow had fallen.

Train schedules were disrupted in Toronto and driving conditions were treacherous. Drifting snow covered an icy base and visibility was poor.

Anglers stranded overnight in small ice-fishing huts on storm-swept Lake Simcoe, 50 miles north of Toronto, may have to wait several hours more before returning to shore.

100 STRANDED

Winds, which caused heavy drifting in the area and forced an estimated 100 persons on the lake to seek overnight shelter in their huts, had not abated by daybreak and visibility on the lake was still near zero.

A few men were reported to have walked back earlier. The provincial lands and forest department was seeking snowmobiles equipped with compasses

73 DEAD IN U.S.

NEW YORK (UPI)—A wild winter storm thrashed the eastern U.S. seaboard for the second straight day today. The south lay frozen under the deepest snows of the century, gale winds lashed coastal communities and heavy snow fell through the night in New England.

The number of storm-connected deaths since Thursday climbed to at least 73.

A state of emergency existed in Delaware and Virginia, where icy winds stirred the snow into 15-foot drifts. Prince Georges County in Maryland was under an emergency weather alert and New York City declared a snow emergency for the second time in eight days.

TOTAL BAN ON TRADE ORDERED

U.K. Draws Rhodesia Knot Tight

By JAMES BROWN

SALISBURY (Reuters)—Rhodesians tightened their belts even further today after Britain's latest move to topple the regime of Prime Minister Ian Smith—a total trade ban.

Smith's breakaway regime refused comment on the British action, which came 2½ months after this colony of white-minority rule seized independence from Britain.

The move, announced early today and scheduled to go into effect Wednesday, extended Britain's ban on export of arms and oil to Rhodesia to cover all other exports. These totalled £31,000,000 ($93,000,000) in 1965.

The new import control affects only about five per cent of British imports from Rhodesia.

A trade embargo on about 95 per cent of British imports, including tobacco and sugar, was imposed soon after the seizure of independence.

SEEK OTHERS' SUPPORT

Britain now will instruct its envoys in various countries to ask other governments to back the new sanctions.

Prime Minister Wilson's government also gave a formal warning to people within Rhodesia — and to other governments—that it would not be responsible for any money lent to the Smith regime since it declared independence Nov. 11.

The warning, aimed at South Africa and some other nations, was intended mainly to cover "independence bonds" which the Smith government has said it will issue and also any attempts by the regime to raise credit outside Rhodesia.

All the latest moves were described in London as "a further tightening of the screw" following the oil ban announced just before Christmas, which the British government believes will be the decisive factor in bringing down the Smith regime.

Supply Routes Blasted

The raids ended a 37-day pause in the air war against the Hanoi regime during which the United States launched a world-wide peace offensive designed to get the North Vietnamese Communists to the negotiating table. The peace effort was rebuffed.

Navy A4 Skyhawks from the 7th Fleet carriers Ranger and Kitty Hawk joined air force F105 Thunderchiefs and F4C Phantom jets in attacking targets in the Dong Hoi and Vinh areas, staging areas in the Communist north for movement of men and supplies into South Viet Nam.

GROUND FIGHTING

American and Vietnamese troops also pushed offensives against the Communists on scattered fronts in the south. "Flying Horsemen" of the 1st Cavalry Division reported heavy fighting in a joint operation 300 miles northeast of Saigon.

Dong Hoi is about 50 miles north of the 17th Parallel. Vinh is about 130 miles north of the dividing line on the Tonkin Gulf.

A U.S. military spokesman in Saigon said the armada encountered heavy anti-aircraft fire over the targets — bridges, barges, warehouse facilities and an approach to a ferry landing.

Poor weather prevented an accurate assessment of damage. A navy Skyhawk went down in the South China Sea while returning from the morning raid, but it was not known what caused the crash. Its pilot was rescued by an air force Albatross after 40 minutes in the water. All other planes landed safely.

NO ENEMY PLANES

No enemy planes were sighted and pilots said they encountered no Soviet-supplies surface-to-air (Sam) missiles.

In other action, the Viet Cong late Sunday unleashed a mortar attack against a U.S. artillery area and helicopter base about 15 miles north of Saigon. A number of helicopters were damaged, a spokesman said. Light casualties were reported among the 1st Cavalry Division troops at the installation.

A U.S. helicopter was shot down near Bon Song today but its four-man crew was rescued. American troops in the area took prisoner a North Vietnamese soldier who said he was from the 7th Battalion, 18th Regiment of the 325th Division. U.S. military officials had said earlier this regiment was in the area.

188 KILLED

ROK military spokesmen claimed 188 guerrillas were killed in five hours of fighting. They said an estimated battalion of about 600 troops hit a similar-sized ROK element from three directions, each from about a mile apart. The Koreans reported "light" casualties.

UN SECRETARY General U Thant, left, met with U.S. Amabassador Arthur Goldberg after the U.S. representative asked for an urgent meeting of the UN Security Council to discuss the Viet Nam war.

SHIFT IN POLICY

UN 'Surprised' By LBJ Request

Times News Services

Johnson's request was seen as a shift of U.S. policy on the method of seeking a Viet Nam settlement, which has never before been directly put before the United Nations.

Shortly after the president spoke, U.S. Ambassador Arthur J. Goldberg submitted a formal request for a meeting of the Security Council.

Goldberg hurried across the street from the U.S. mission headquarters to carry the request for the meeting to Ambassador Roger Seydoux of France, this month's president of the council.

It was up to Seydoux to announce the time of the meeting. The United States served notice it would be willing to meet at any time.

ADD FOUR MEMBERS

The council meeting would be the first for the UN body since Jan. 1 when it added four new members to bring total membership to 15.

The council members will deside whether to invite non-members, such as representatives of North or South Viet Nam or other interested parties, to attend the debate.

The U.S. call for a Security Council meeting was a surprise because only last Tuesday Goldberg reportedly told a group of Democratic congressmen that the time was not right for President Johnson to go before the world body to seek a settlement of the war.

OBSTACLES

In a letter to the council president, Goldberg said:

"My government has concluded that it should now bring this problem with all its implications for peace formally before the Security Council."

He said the United States is aware that it may not be easy for the council itself, "in view of all the obstacles, to take con-

CANADA 'REGRETS ACTION'

OTTAWA (CP)—The government regrets the United States decision to resume bombing North Viet Nam, Prime Minister Pearson said in the Commons today.

The government hoped the 37-day pause in bombing might be continued until all possible approaches had been exhausted in efforts to bring the dispute from the battlefield to the conference table.

While North Viet Nam might be intransigent, Mr. Pearson said, there is still a possibility of some softening in its position.

Replying to questions from Opposition Leader Diefenbaker, Mr. Pearson said he was informed Sunday morning by the United States that it intended to resume bombing.

This morning, he added, he received a message from Ho Chi Minh, president of North Viet Nam, saying there could be no negotiated settlement as long as United States forces were in Viet Nam and the Viet Cong was not recognized as the sole government of South Viet Nam.

NEW PAUSE POSSIBLE

Mr. Pearson added that on the basis of his Dec. 29 talk here with McGeorge Bundy, President Johnson's special assistant, he believes the possibility of a further pause in bombings has not been closed.

Mr. Diefenbaker asked what basis there was for hoping the North Vietnamese position might be altered.

"There would not seem to be

Immediate Meeting Sought

WASHINGTON (UPI)—President Lyndon Johnson called today for an immediate meeting of the United Nations Security Council in a new effort to bring the Viet Nam war to the conference table.

The chief executive made the request during a brief, televised report to the nation on his decision to resume U.S. bombing raids on Communist North Viet Nam.

VIOLENCE

He said the United States and others working for peace had met only continued violence and continued aggression.

Speaking of the Hanoi government, Johnson said: "It is plain that there is no readiness to talk—no readiness for peace—in that regime today.

"The end of the pause does not mean the end of our own pursuit of peace. That pursuit will be as determined and unremitting as the pressure of our military strength on the field of battle."

GIVE FULL REPORT

"I have instructed Ambassador Goldberg to ask for an immediate meeting of the United Nations Security Council. He will present a full report on the situation in Viet Nam and a resolution which can open the way to the conference table.

"This report and this resolution will be responsive to the spirit of the renewed appeal of Pope Paul; that appeal has our full sympathy."

But the President said that in view of the continued Communist violence against South Vietnamese and American forces, any further extension of the U.S. bombing pause might have led to a greatly increased cost in lives.

MET ADIVSERS

He also said he ordered the resumption of bombing only after lengthy consultation with his chief advisers, including the military joint chiefs of staff.

"These advisers tell me that if continued immunity is given to all that support North Viet Nam aggression, the cost in lives — Vietnamese, American and Allied—will only be greatly increased," he said.

"In the light of the words and actions of the government in Hanoi, it is our clear duty to do what we can to limit these costs."

As for hopes for peace, Johnson said that both direct and indirect approaches by the United States, her allies and even the Vatican "have been in vain."

INSIST ON SURRENDER

"The answer of Hanoi to all is the answer that was published three days ago—they persist in aggression and they insist on the surrender of South Viet Nam to Communism," he said.

"So this morning, at my direc-

RUSK

U.S. Offered To Extend Bomb Pause

WASHINGTON (AP) — State Secretary Dean Rusk disclosed today the United States offered to extend the bombing pause over North Viet Nam if the Communist leaders there would make a peace gesture in response to the U.S. peace offensive.

He told a press conference, however, that Hanoi's response had been "negative, harsh and unyielding."

"Hanoi was informed at an early stage of the suspension of bombing," Rusk said. " . . . They were told that no decision had been made on the resumption of bombing.

"They were told that if Hanoi would reciprocate it would have a favorable effect on extending the suspension of the bombing. There was no ultimatum."

Rusk also said the United States made clear to Hanoi's leaders that it was prepared for a formal diplomatic conference, for informal discussions or for diplomatic contacts which would be kept secret.

Hanoi's response, he said, had been to denounce the whole effort as a fraud.

Raids Hike Debate Tempo

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The resumption of air strikes against North Viet Nam was expected to flash like a spark through the tinderbox of growing congressional debate over administration policies in Viet Nam.

Announcement of the resumption of the raids came as the debate reached a new level, with critics of United States policies in the war becoming more outspoken in their demands for a greater voice in decisions.

Sen. Wayne L. Morse (D—Ore.), the most vocal critic of the administration, was mapping a campaign to revoke the broad mandate congerss gave Johnson to fight the war in August, 1964.

Morse also charged the administration with keeping facts about the war from the American people "as Hitler kept the facts from the German people" during his rise to power.

The tart-tongued senator's remarks provoked an instant reaction from House Democratic whip Hale Boggs, La., who said the comparison was an "outrageous" one that helped the Communists. Morse shot back that Boggs was making "a typical smear."

JOHNSON PEACE DRIVE STARTED LAST SPRING

By LEWIS GULICK

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States' 37-day peace offensive came to a shattering end today with President Johnson's order resuming the U.S. air strikes on North Viet Nam.

Here is a detailed look at the background to the president's order:

On April 7, 1965, Johnson set forth, in a speech at Johns Hopkins University, his offer of "unconditional discussions" for a peaceful settlement seeking independence and security for South Viet Nam. The Communists denounced his proposals as a cover-up for more U.S "aggression."

In May he ordered a five-day halt in air strikes on North Viet Nam to test the Communist response. Hanoi refused to receive a U.S. diplomatic note.

Through the summer and into the fall critics of Johnson's Viet Nam policy contended the May pause had not been long enough to give Hanoi a reasonable chance to respond.

Nov. 11 the question of a longer pause was raised at a conference at the LBJ ranch in Texas attended by State Secretary Dean Rusk, Defence Secretary Robert S. McNamara and presidential assistants McGeorge Bundy and Jack Valenti.

TAKES ANOTEHR LOOK

Dec. 7 Johnson again went into the question during another conference with key aides. One of the alternatives debated then was a bombing pause early in 1966, perhaps coinciding with the customary lunar new year ceasefire due around Jan. 21. The Viet Cong already had proposed a Christmas truce.

Johnson made no decision at the time but outlined his general purpose in a speech two days later to the AFL-CIO convention in San Francisco. Voicing U.S. determination "to turn back aggression" in Viet Nam, he ad;ded: "At the same time, we are equally determined that every prospect for peace be exhausted before other hard steps are taken."

The U.S. Yule ceasefire order issued Dec. 22 included instructions not to resume on-the-ground fighting in South Viet Nam after Christmas unless the Viet Cong fired first. This was quickly settled by Viet Cong attacks even before the 30-hour ceasefire period was over.

The Dec. 22 order also halted bombing of North Viet Nam targets with the start of the ceasefire Dec. 24. But it did not specify when to resume the air strikes. On that, Johnson reserved judgment from day to day.

NOTES REACTION

In pondering his future course Johnson was influenced by domestic reaction to the lull and by appeals from world figures. He was impressed by a peace appeal from Pope Paul. At home Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield of Montana was also calling for a lull well beyond Christmas.

Christmas fell on Saturday. Monday night Johnson held strategy talks by telephone with his advisers and decided to prolong the bombing pause for a while and put into motion the full-fledged diplomatic offensive.

An American met directly with a Hanoi representative in Rangoon for a few minutes and handed him the U.S. message.

Times Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — Manitoba, Saskatchewan and British Columbia's ministers of health failed to put in an appearance for today's opening session of the federal-provincial conference of health ministers.

The Manitoba and Saskatchewan ministers were snow-bound by the severe storm that roared across the eastern seaboard at the weekend. British Columbia's minister, Eric Martin, was also absent but the B.C. deputy minister of health, Dr. J. A. Taylor, was at the meeting.

The conference was called to discuss the health resources fund of $500,000,000, over 15 years, that the federal government has offered to provide for the provinces to assist with the capital costs of building facilities for education and medical personnel.

Space Weather Observer Set for Launch Wednesday

CAPE KENNEDY (UPI) — U.S. weathermen, foreseeing the day when storms like the east's weekend blizzard will be forecast two weeks ahead, plan to orbit a tiros satellite Wednesday to open a full-time system of spaceborne weather observers.

The 305-pound weather eye, scheduled for a 2:52 a.m. EST. blastoff on a sleek delta rocket, will be followed three weeks later by the launch of another camera-carrying tiros.

The two weather watchers will form the core of the world's first operational satellite system designed to keep forecasters supplied with pictures of earth's cloud cover on a routine, daily basis.

WEATHER SYNOPSIS

Temperatures continue mild over coastal B.C. and the southern interior with generally cloudy skies and isolated showers. An active weather disturbance moving eastward toward the north coast was to give rain to that area by noon today, spreading southeastward to the lower mainland by evening and to the southern interior as rain or rain and snow mixed tonight and Tuesday. The central interior will receive snow flurries tonight as the system crosses the province.

. . . JOHNSON

The North Vietnamese accepted it without comment.

The substance of Johnson's diplomatic communications was a 14-point sum-up of the American position as it had been put forward over the preceding months. This included the offer of unconditional discussions, affirmation of the Geneva agreements on Southeast Asia and a willingness to withdraw U.S. forces from South Viet Nam once that country is freed from "external interference."

But Communist propaganda continued its general denunciation of U.S. "imperialist aggression" in Viet Nam.

REPORTS 'NO RESPONSE'

Jan. 12 the president reported on his peace drive in his state-of-the-union message: "So far we have received no response to prove either success or failure."

Jan. 21 Rusk, just back from a quick Asian trip, reported there had been no "encouraging" response, only "bitter invective" from Hanoi.

While some foreign governments indicated they hoped for a lengthy bombing halt, conflicting views at home were pressing on the president.

Jan. 22 senators made public testimony by Gen. Earle G. Wheeler, chairman of the joint chiefs of staff, that "if you stop bombing North Viet Nam, in effect you throw one of your blue chips for negotiation over your shoulder."

Johnson summed 20 congressional leaders to the White House Jan. 25 and gave them intelligence reports of a North Vietnamese buildup and infiltration during the bombing lull.

SENATORS DIVIDED

Of the 20, only Mansfield and the Senate foreign relations committee chairman, J. W. Fulbright (Dem. Ark.), were on the record for continuing the pause. An Associated Press poll of the Senate's 100 members found that of 50 willing to say, 25 senators favored renewing the bombings at this point and 25 were against.

Jan. 27 16 Democratic senators sent the president a letter supporting earlier calls by Mansfield, Fulbright and Senator George D. Aiken (Rep. Vt), for a continuation of the bombing pause.

Johnson dismissed the senators' appeal the next day. He cited the 1964 congressional resolution giving him broad powers to repel armed aggression on U.S. soldiers in Viet Nam.

Pope Paul again entered a plea for peace when he suggested Saturday that United Nations arbitration through neutral nations could bring an end to the war.

"But there have been indications that the dialogue has not been completely cut off, and as long as there is any possibility of a further pause leading to a negotiated settlement, I hope that all concerned will take advantage of that possibility. I can't go further than that."

New Democratic Leader Doouglas asked Mr. Pearson to make a direct appeal to President Johnson to discontinue the bombings. Mr. Pearson said Washington already knew Canada's views, but he would consider Mr. Douglas' proposal in the light of any further information the government receives.

'BOOKS DISTORT INDIAN FACTS'

KINGSTON, Ont. (CP)—Fashion model Kahn-Tineta Horn says if the federal government passes a law against hate literature, she'll use it to prosecute provincial premiers and education ministers.

Miss Horn, a Mohawk Indian from the Montreal area, said Saturday night she also would use such a law to take out warrants against book publishers and promoters.

"They are contributing to the public's hatred of the Indian by printing untrue and distorted facts in school history books," she told about 75 persons at a meeting at Queen's University.

Miss Horn said of Indian education in Quebec:

"Roman Catholic education for Indians is a disaster, calamity, horror and whatever other words I can think of to describe it. It is also a violation of the Indian Act and it ruins Indians. Other than that, there's nothing wrong with it."

'MOST FAIL FRENCH'

She said many Indians in Quebec are unable to get higher education because the government insists they learn French, a language which, she says, 90 per cent of them fail.

"They talk about bilingualism. We are bilingual. We speak Iroquois and English. We also know that no Frenchman is going to hire an Indian anyway. Most of our men work in structural steel in the United States."

Miss Horn said she is opposed to assimilation of the Indian into the white man's world and would prohibit inter-marriage if she could.

"I'm in favor of reserves. The Indian is not ready to move individually into the white man's world. It is pure disaster for us."

She said she advocates removal of mission schools from reserves. "Confused Indians have had religion stuffed down their throats . . . and after 100 years we are worse off than we ever were."

to go out after the fishermen.

Newfoundland, meanwhile, was still reeling from the effects of a wind and rain storm which had battered coastal communities late Friday with 35-foot waves and 75-miles-an-hour winds.

All roads in Quebec were described as "very dangerous" by provincial police. Roads in the Eastern Townships were blocked by snowdrifts.

REPORT ROADS CLOSED

In southern Ontario provincial police reported highways between Chatham and London closed because of drifting snow.

Brockville kept about six streets clear. Three provincial police detachments in the area called all patrol cars in and were answering only emergency calls.

There were several multiple auto accidents. A 22-car pileup on the Laurentian auto route north of Montreal injured five persons and wrecked six cars.

The Prairies were getting some respite from a severe cold snap which has lasted, except for a few days, since Christmas.

But the higher temperatures —about zero in most places Sunday—were still 10 to 20 degrees colder than normal for this time of year.

tion — after consultation and agreement with the government of South Viet Nam—U.S. aircraft have resumed action in North Viet Nam.

"They struck lines of supply which support the continuing movement of men and arms against the people and the government of South Viet Nam."

As for the bombing, the president emphasized that the air strikes against North Viet Nam were aimed at military targets and controlled with care from the very onset.

"Those who direct and supply the aggression have no claim to immunity from military reply," he said.

AWAKE ALL NIGHT

Johnson said the peace efforts were well received throughout most of the world. And he said similar efforts by neutral natoins have come to nothing.

"We have sought without success to learn of any response to efforts made by the governments of eastern Europe," he said. "There has been no answer to the enlightened efforts of the Vatican. Our own direct private approaches have been in vain."

But the President said "we do not regret the pause in the bombing."

'YIELD TO NONE'

"We yield to none in our determination to seek peace," he said. "We have given a full and decent respect to the opinions of those who thought that such a pause might give new hope for peace.

"Some said 10 days might do it. Others said 20. Now we have paused for twice the time suggested by some who urged it. Now the world knows more clearly than ever who insists on aggression and who works for peace."

Tiny Tot Versus Jolly Jumper

The manufacturers of a baby exerciser known as the Jolly Jumper engaged in a legal wrangle in Victoria Law Courts Friday with the manufacturers of a baby exerciser called the Tiny Tot.

International Pediatric Products Ltd. of North Vancouver, makers of the Jolly Jumper, claimed that the Tiny Tot, produced by the Lambert Brothers of California was an infringement of its patent.

The case was heard by three judges of the B.C. Appeal Court, who reserved their decision.

It originated in B.C. Supreme Court, Vancouver, last July when the makers of the Jolly Jumper sought an injunction against the sale of the Tiny Tot in Canada.

INJUNCTION DENIED

Mr. Justice F. Craig Munroe refused to grant an injunction, and International Pediatrics Products asked the Appeal Court judges to reverse his decision.

For the appellants, Brian McLoughlin said their product, the Jolly Jumper, was patented in Canada in 1959 as "a device for safely supporting or exercising a baby while suspended in the air."

Subsequently the Tiny Tot exerciser was manufactured in California by the Lambert Brothers and for sale in the United States and Canada.

Mr. McLoughlin claimed that sale of the Tiny Tot in Canada infringed the Jolly Jumper patent.

V. R. Hill, for the Lambert Brothers, argued that Mr. Justice Munroe was right in refusing an injunction against the Tiny Tot.

The judge ruled that neither firm had invented a suspended baby exerciser. He said both inventions were "improved methods of obtaining an old object," and both methods were different.

TRAIN ROBBER PAL ESCAPES U.K. PRISON

LONDON (UPI)—Two convicts—one of them a friend of Britain's famed "great train robbery" gang—used a grappling hook and a rope ladder to escape from Wandsworth Jail today.

They flung the hook, with the ladder attached, to the top of the 25-foot outer prison wall in their pre-dawn dash for freedom, police said.

A huge manhunt was organized and police squads swooped down on the men's known hangouts in South London.

Authorities identified the two as Ronald 'Dark Ronnie" Dark, 32, who made an appearance at the trial of the gang that hoisted $7.84 million from a train in Britain's most celebrated robbery of the century, and David V. Perridge, 28.

"Scalp tension, a sign of the times, is one cause of your hair loss," says trichologist M. D. Harrison to balding man. Harrison directs the famous Harrison Hair and Scalp Specialists, whose main office is in Vancouver. He is sending a specialist here to advise men how to correct hair troubles by home treatment.

How to save and improve your hair demonstrated by expert here Tuesday and Wednesday

New home treatment methods for preventing baldness — and growing thicker hair — will be demonstrated in Victoria this Tuesday and Wednesday, Feb. 1 and 2.

This news was released here today by M. D. Harrison, internationally famous director of Harrison Hair and Scalp Specialists.

In his announcement, Harrison named staff trichologist J. Arthur to conduct the Victoria clinic. Arthur will personally examine hair-worried men and women from 1 p.m. to 8 p.m. Tuesday and Wednesday at the Hotel Sussex.

EXAMINE YOU FREE

"I want to make it clear that you incur no charge or obligation by seeing Mr. Arthur", director Harrison said.

"Your only obligation is to yourself — to free your mind of worries about hair loss, dandruff, itching, or other scalp disorders, by learning how to take care of your hair. If your trouble is beyond the scope of Harrison Home treatment, we will frankly tell you so. But less than five per cent of the people we examine are 'hopeless'."

OFFERS NO CURE-ALL

"We always make a personal examination before suggesting any treatment," he pointed out. "There is no one cure-all that will correct every one of the 18 scalp disorders that cause most baldness."

Harrison said that sometimes your treatment must be changed after a few weeks to get best results. "For this reason, you mail regular reports of your hair progress to the Harrison headquarters in Vancouver.

"Also, your scalp condition is checked personally by a Harrison trichologist at regular intervals."

WHO CAN BE HELPED?

Will this new treatment cure baldness? "No", said Harrison sincerely. "We can not help men who are slick-bald after years of gradual hair loss. But where your scalp still grows hair, we can at least save and improve what you have. Usually, we can grow more hair even where you have only 'fuzz' now."

The important thing is: Don't wait until it's too late!

Best evidence of the success of Harrison treatment is the phenomenal growth behind it. Harrison and his staff trichologists do extension work in more than 100 other cities.

SATISFY 95%

"Our biggest problem is not in doing what we claim to do," declared Harrison. "We satisfy more than 95 per cent of our clients, and have records to prove it.

"But to overcome the average man's initial skepticism is sometimes difficult. He's usually quite desperate—and baldish — by the time he nerves himself to see a Harrison trichologist. He's 'tried everything.' So he starts consoling himself with one of the old superstitions about hair:

That baldness is hereditary; that men naturally lose hair as they get along in years; that nothing can be done to stop hair loss — and a lot of other notions that we know are not true today.

FREE SCALP EXAMINATION

See Mr. Arthur in person. Learn how baldness can be stopped, and new hair grown on your own scalp. The new Harrison method permits you to actually stop your baldness and regrow hair in the privacy of your own home.

For a free examination and discussion of your hair problems ask the desk clerk at the Hotel Sussex Tuesday and Wednesday between 1 p.m. and 8 p.m. for Mr. Arthur's suite number.

You don't need an appointment. You won't be embarrassed or obligated in any way. Examinations are given in private.

NEW MACHINE EYED

Mole Hole Firm Backed

The Greater Victoria Water District is gearing to go-it-alone on the remaining 20,000 feet of the troublesome Sooke water tunnel.

The tunnel, designed to triple the domestic water supply for Greater Victoria, was started two years ago. Almost from the start it has been a major headache to Intermountain Contractors and has now pushed the company to the brink of financial ruin.

Chief Commissioner R. A. Upward told other water commissioners Friday that the governing body would be wise to spend $75,000 on equipment as insurance against complete stoppage of the work.

He told the commissioners that the contracting company had done its best to maintain steady progress but was now "in serious financial plight."

BIG BUGBEAR

Biggest bugbear to the firm has been the mechanical mole built at a cost of $250,000 and designed to chew through 25 feet of rock a day when working at peak.

It rarely did.

Bearings broke continually and the machine generally was unable to match performance notices. At the present time the machine is under repair again, this time in Vancouver.

"The district can take one of three courses of action." Mr. Upward said. "It can do nothing. It can purchase equipment and be prepared to take over the work or it can relieve the contractor of all the work."

Mr. Upward advised the middle course.

He said that if the commissioners approved the purchase of needed equipment the district could lease the equipment to the contractor on a straight rental basis thus possibly enabling him to stay on the job. If the worst came to the worst and the contractor decided he could not continue, the district could take over the project and push the work along.

MORE MONEY

"If nothing is done, inevitably the contractor will ask for more money," he said. "If the district refuses the money then four months will be lost either in recontracting or waiting for equipment . . . If equipment is purchased now the district can take over the project in a day."

In addition to well-publicized mole troubles the company, under a five-year contract, has run into continually spiralling costs Mr. Upward reported.

"He has run into a tight money era with his bank withholding more credit and has had to turn to private financing at high interest rates," he said.

Mr. Upward said he was not in favor of relieving the contractor of the work at present.

PRESENT PRICE

"As long as he keeps going at the present price it is not advisable to relieve him of the work," he said.

The commissioner noted that though the purchase of $75,000 worth of equipment might appear high, it was in reality only a drop in the bucket when compared with the $4 million yet to be spent to complete the $5 million project.

When completed the nine-foot tunnel will link Sooke Lake with Japan Gulch in the Goldstream area. At present the tunnel is some 6,000 feet into the mountain.

LOSING SHIRT

Commissioners agreed with Mr. Upward's recommendation that it was in the district's interests to keep the contractor on the job if at all possible.

"We should do all we can to prevent it from losing its shirt entirely," said Victoria Ald. Geoffrey Edgelow. "It has had a rough time and done its level best."

Marshall Officers Optimistic

DUNCAN — Shareholders of Marshall Creek Copper Company were told here Friday night their claims in the Sarita River area held excellent molybdenite prospects.

Molybdenite is being used in ever-increasing quantities in various metal alloys and as a lubricant.

Consulting engineer Stan Hunter said: "Assays taken are significant and if there is potential we have first crack at it.

"There are major companies willing to consummate long term contracts for molybdenite as there is still a big demand."

James M. McNulty, president, said the company expected to be drilling one or two properties within six months.

He said the program at the Nitinat group was temporarily suspended in view of the preliminary investigations at Sarita River.

The 70 shareholders in attendance heard Mr. Hunter say: "I think you have three excellent exploratory prospects and hope you will eventually have a producer."

Marshall Creek spent $71,000 on its operations last year and ended the year with $21,000 cash in the bank.

SPREAD WINGS

Mr. McNulty said: "We spread our wings last year to get some of the good properties which are around."

He said no decision had been made regarding the interest of major companies in joint development.

An initial program would be implemented at the company's Silver Bow claims in the Alice Arm district, at Sarita River and Nitinat.

CZ Income Shows Drop

Crown Zellerbach Canada Limited sales volume reached an all-time high in 1965 but net income was below the record level set in 1964, President Robert G. Rogers reported today.

In an advance summary of the forest products company's annual report, Mr. Rogers said sales totalled $165 million in 1965 compared with previous year's $142 million. Net income was $12.8 million, 16 per cent below the 1964 figure of $15.1 million.

'LET FRENCH CONTROL URANIUM INSPECTION'

TORONTO (CP)—Denison Mines Ltd., a major Canadian uranium producer, has outlined a compromise proposal to end an impasse blocking some export sales of the nuclear fuel—notably to France.

President Stephen B. Roman told the company's annual meeting here the company advocates that policing of the use of Canadian uranium should be left to the government of the importing nation.

Contract talks stalled last year when France refused Canada inspection rights to ensure that the uranium would be used only for peaceful purposes.

Manufacturers Ask Buy-Canadian Plan

KITCHENER, Ont. (CP)—Canada's balance of payments can be greatly improved if citizens buy Canadian, H. B. Style, president of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association, said here.

"We are really going to have to grow up one of these days and realize, as many of our foreign customers already do, that the products of Canadian factories are as good and in many cases better than those . . . we are still buying beyond our borders," he told a service club.

Mr. Style said Canadians can help strengthen Canadian industry, encourage enterprise, create jobs, raise living standards and keep the country competitive by buying the Canadian product when considerations of price, quality and design are comparable.

IMPORTS RISE

He said commodity exports were up an estimated five per cent in value last year over 1964 but the rise in imports was roughly 12 per cent.

"As a result, the hefty $700,000,000 trade surplus we enjoyed in 1964 shrivelled last year to an estimated $270,000,000.

"Since this is nowhere near enough to cover the large annual outflow of dividend dollars paid to the United States and other investors, and other major items such as Canadian tourist spending in the U.S., the net effect is to leave us with a balance of payments . . . of about $1,000,000,000 in 1965 — nearly twice what it was a year ago."

A text of the address was made available to the press before delivery.

Water Rates Reduced

It's only a wee drop but the Greater Victoria Water Board Friday snipped its wholesale water rates to Victoria and other users.

Chief Commissioner Ronald Upward recommended a half-cent per thousand gallon cut in the rates, bringing the present rate to a level 12 cents per thousand gallons.

Mr. Upward said an even healthier cut could be made but that he felt it better to make rate reductions gradual.

Ald. Geoffrey Edgelow asked if he couldn't recommend a 10 per cent cut instead of the six per cent recommended.

"The taxpayer is facing a big boost in assessments this year." he said. "A 10 per cent drop would give some comfort."

The commissioners voted in favor of the six per cent cut which will save householders five cents a month on the average water bill.

Record Profits For Trust Firm

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — Canada Trust-Huron and Erie had record operating profits of $2,616,000 or 65 cents a share for the year ended Dec. 31, 1965, President J. Allyn Taylor said in his annual report to shareholders.

Assets under administration totalled $1,365,000,000.

Development Set

VANCOUVER (CP) — Leitch Gold Mines and Mastedon-Highland Bell have sponsored organization of Pine Bell Mines Ltd., to take over development of their 316-claim Pine Point properties, the companies announced Friday. Pine Bell has an authorized capital of 4,000,000 shares at $1 par value of which 375,000 have been issued to each of Leitch and Mastedon as consideration for the property.

Strike Closes Oshawa Paper

OSHAWA, Ont. (CP)—Pickets appeared for the third day today at The Times, the city's only daily newspaper, struck by the Oshawa unit of the Toronto Newspaper Guild.

A company spokesman said "the situation is unchanged" from Friday. The Times did not publish Friday or Thursday.

Spokesmen for union printers and pressmen, not on strike but who did not cross picket lines, declined comment on future action.

The pickets were striking members of the guild and members of other trade unions in the city.

Eight-Month Pact

CASTLEGAR (CP) — Local No. 1 of the Pulp and Paper Workers Union (Ind.) Friday voted 89.3 per cent in favor of accepting an eight-month contract with the Celgar mill of Columbia Cellulose Co. Ltd.

GRAIN PRICES

WINNIPEG (CP)—Most prices were lower in dull trade today on the Winnipeg Grain Exchange. Declines were attributed to recessions on the Chicago grain market.

January rapeseed advanced the maximum permitted 15 cents for the fifth consecutive session in exceptionally light trade. It closed at $3.77½.

Other rapeseed contracts and flax futures advanced modestly in early trade but eased as Chicago soybean futures declined and local offerings became more liberal.

Oats and barley were firm in light trade. Most activity was domestic but a small oats sale to Europe was reported.

Rye declined slightly, neglecting the Chicago market.

CHICAGO (AP) — The grain futures market had slipped into fairly general weakness in the early afternoon today without showing any sign of a rally.

Losses ranged to more than a cent in rye and to more than two cents in wheat and soybeans. Corn was down major fractions at the extreme.

The early support was described as largely speculative and was believed to have been linked with the resumption of U.S. bombing of North Viet Nam.

New Towns Announced

VANCOUVER (CP) — Plans for development of three communities for residents displaced by the flooding of the Arrow Lakes following completion of one of the Columbia River dams have been annouced here.

The British Columbia Hydro and Power Authority announced the communities will be Burton, Fauquier and Edgewood.

They will replace communities flooded when the High Arrow Dam is completed in 1969.

J. W. Wilson, regional development co-ordinator for hydro, said in a statement land for the communities has been acquired and development of the three sites is expected to begin as soon as ground conditions permit in the spring.

MARKET SUMMARIES

Bombing Aids Defence Prices

Resumption of U.S. bombing of North Viet Nam boosted aerospace defence stocks on Wall Street today but other issues were uncertain. Losses were general in Vancouver while Toronto and Montreal prices were mixed.

AT NEW YORK volume for the day was estimated at 8,100,000 shares compared with 9,000,000 Friday.

Boeing ran up half a dozen points and Douglas Aircraft gained more than 2. United Aircraft held a fractional gain. General Dynamics erased a small gain and took a small loss.

AT VANCOUVER losses were general across the board today. Pyramid was a big loser, dropping $1.12 to $14.75. Patricia Silver, on a volume of 170,000 shares, was off 50 cents to $1.10. Brenda slipped 15 cents to $3.40, a new low.

Rolling Hills fell four cents to 78 on a volume of 46,900. Madrona slipped nine to $1.41, and Bornite was off three to $1.19. Arctic Mining slipped 15 cents to $2.30.

Among the gainers were Lytton Mines, up seven to 47, and Continental Consolidated, which added four to 23. Bata gained three to 60.

Royal American in the oils gained six to $1.32.

AT TORONTO speculative trading slowed in mid-afternoon but prices began to firm.

D'Eldona, which sagged to 1.18 in early action rallied to 1.38, off 22 cents while its neighbor in the Rouyn area of Quebec, Wilco, rallied to 66 cents from 55. At 66 it was down 10 cents from Friday's close. Green Point dipped 21 cents to 73 while Rayrock was up 11 cents at 1.24, Radiore 15 cents at 1.18 and Bankeno 8 cents to 48.

Industrials remained lower with banks leading the slide. Imperial Commerce eased ½ to 69, Montreal ¼ to 64⅝ and Royal ¾ to 78¼. CPR, which last week said it had a 1965 profit decline, lost 1¼ to 63¼. Dofasco was ahead 1-59 29 on increased 1965 earnings and Algoma climbed ⅝ to 69¾.

Northern and Central Gas was unchanged at 31½ but a transaction of 90,000 shares at 31⅝, worth more than 2,800,000, crossed the tape.

In golds, Dome tacked on 1 to 42½ while base metals featured a gain of 1⅛ to Noranda at 54⅛.

AT MONTREAL utilities and papers were off but most other sections moved fractionally higher in moderately active trading.

Industrial volume was 107,300 and mines and oils 938,100.

The most active issue among the speculative mines and oils was Patricia Silver as it dropped 53 cents to $1.03. Commodore jumped 25 cents to $1.75.

Banks were mixed. Royal rose ½ to 79 and Nova Scotia ¼ to 74¼. Imperial Commerce declined ¾ to 68¾.

AT LONDON the stock market was firm, helped by stock shortage, after a quiet opening to the new account today.

'LESS VIGOR IN BOOM'

John A. Wallace is predicting three per cent higher prices because of strong demand, capacity operations and labor shortages.

Tight money will drag capital expenditures down to about 10 per cent increase against 18 per cent in 1965, he said.

"The outlook appears extremely optimistic and it is only to be hoped that as many major industries go to the bargaining table this year in the province, a sense of restraint prevails. . ."

QUIET TALKS EXPECTED IN BOOSTS

WASHINGTON (UPI)—President Lyndon Johnson's administration expects that more of the U.S. nation's businessmen will come in for "quiet talks" before scheduling any major price boosts.

This would give the president's council of economic advisers a chance to argue against any price moves it felt might contribute to inflation and avoid dramatic public clashes between the chief executive and business leaders, an informed source said during the weekend.

A similar invitation — with the same purpose—was held out to labor leaders who want to discuss wage demands in light of Johnson's anti-inflationary guideposts.

The administration, wary of congressional proposals to require hearings for waiting periods on price jumps in key industries, seems to prefer a more informal approach.

SHOW WAY FOR CANADA?

Bureau to Be Boon For Working Woman

By ELIZABETH FORBES

Establishment of a women's bureau within the labor department, as presaged in the throne speech at opening of the British Columbia legislature, ushers in a new era for working women.

Forbes

It pinpoints the fact that the provincial government is aware of the growing numbers of women in the labor field and of their increased needs and problems.

Once fully established and with a competent staff, such a bureau will be geared to promote wider understanding of these needs and problems. It will also be concerned with advancing women's opportunities in employment.

Efficient and wise use of womanpower will go far in determining the future progress and strength of our province and it is important that women be made aware of the role which they can play in this growth.

The women's bureau will gather the necessary data and it will conduct studies and research regarding women workers and their jobs. It will assemble information related to women's work and make it available not only to the women concerned but to employers and all others interested.

Once it is fully functioning the bureau will be geared to advise the department of labor on its programs affecting women workers. And, it will be able to answer all inquiries regarding women's place in the labor force.

As the bureau program expands it will no doubt include the status of the older woman worker, employment opportunities of women workers in general, minimum wage laws, equal pay, the problems of the girl on her first job, pensions and other fringe benefits.

In the hearts of thousands of married women who work and who have children under the age of 16, it will be the hope that the new bureau will tackle the problem of supervised day care for such youngsters.

And, in doing so, show the way to other provinces in Canada.

Generally speaking, facilities for care of children of working mothers are most inadequate at present. There are some day care centres operated by a variety of agencies in large cities across the country but none are effectively controlled by government supervision.

To my knowledge, there is no attempt anywhere in Canada to provide after-school or lunchtime care for children of working mothers.

As for the pre-school-age children, there doesn't seem to be much to stop anybody, totally incompetent or otherwise, from placing an advertisement in the paper and taking these babies into care.

The new bureau could lead the way in this particular field. In doing so it would earn the gratitude of thousands of working mothers.

Last Dominion Bureau of Statistics figures show there is an increased number of women employed in the 45 to 65 age group. Numbers in the 35 to 45 age group gained momentum. An increasing proportion in the young group no longer leave the labor force when they marry.

Over-all total of women on payrolls in British Columbia is given as 188,000. One in every 20 is married and 10 per cent of all married women workers is widowed or divorced.

By now these figures will have increased, all across the board. With increased numbers comes increased needs and problems.

Establishment of a women's bureau has been the continuing dream of individuals and organizations, in this province, dedicated to improving conditions for women and children. That bureau is now a fact.

Every one of these individuals and organizations, as well as the 188,000 women who work, will watch with interest as the framework is built and an action program inaugurated.

"GOD DETHRONED?" is the question to be discussed by Dr. William Nicholls, head of the department of religious studies at the University of British Columbia, before the University Extention Association of Victoria tonight in the Lansdowne auditorium. Dr. Nicholls is a distinguished theological scholar, prominent author on religion and its place in modern society and member of international societies concerned with the subject. His address, starting at 8:15, is open to the public.

2,500 Sign Insurance Petition

Petitions protesting private car insurance were signed by 2,500 persons Saturday at a shopping centre, one of the organizers said today.

Fred Bevis said because of the demand, another 500 petition forms will be printed and circulated in Greater Victoria. They seek public rather than private auto insurance.

At present, 1,000 petition sheets with space for a total of 30,000 signatures are being passed around.

"If people average only 50 per cent success in getting signatures we will have 15,000 names," he said.

He expected the petitions will be presented to the royal commission on car insurance, and asked that anyone with complaints get in touch with him so a formal brief accompanying the petitions may be presented to the commission.

'THEY'RE ALL HUMAN BEINGS'

Religious Barriers Drop For Inmates of Prisons

By NORMAN CRIBBENS
Times Church Editor

Roman Catholic and Protestant chaplains are now working together for the benefit of British Columbians serving jail terms.

"The old religious barriers are down," says Rev. H. Gordon Walker, Protestant chaplain to the Colquitz Jail on Wilkinson Road, who has just returned from a prison chaplains' conference in Vancouver.

"We no longer regard prisoners as Roman Catholic and Protestant but as human beings who need the services of the Christian church."

Mr. Walker said he is now planning joint classes of religious instruction at Colquitz Jail with Father Pierre Berger, the Roman Catholic chaplain.

"This is the current trend in all B.C. correctional institutes, and the conference in Vancouver was largely concerned with improving co-operative effort between the churches."

Mr. Walker, Father Berger and Rev. Trevor Williams of Campbell River were among 17 Anglican, Baptist, United Church and Roman Catholic chaplains attending the conference, which was held in Vancouver Public Library.

INSIDE AND OUT

"We were particularly encouraged by developments at the Haney correctional institute," Mr. Walker said. "The new co-operative spirit is evident, not only inside the institution but outside as well."

Joint services are held on alternate Sundays in the Haney churches of St. John's and St. Luke's. All prisoners attend and are joined by members of the local community.

. . . plans classes

The services are conducted by Protestant and Roman Catholic chaplains at the Haney institute. Religious dogma is avoided so that all may participate in a common form of worship, with hymns, prayers, Bible readings and addresses.

"The experiment has worked so well we would like to see it followed in other areas," Mr. Walker said.

"It is important, too, that people living in the vicinity of these institutions should show more concern for the inmates, so they do not feel cut off from community life.

"Being able to attend public services of worship helps to restore their confidence. And when they are discharged, local communities can perform a valuable service by accepting them as fellow human beings, not as a race apart.

"A man or woman who is accepted by the community and helped to find useful employment is much less likely to return to law-breaking."

ALCOHOL BLAMED

Chaplians attending the conference agreed that most inmates of correctional institutes are there because of offences committed under the influence of alcohol.

S. Rocksborough Smith, provincial director of corrections, spoke of the need for more research among alcoholic offenders and urged extension of personal counselling services.

Mr. Walker (who is also vicar of St. David-by-the-Sea, Cordova Bay) conducted a series of classes for fellow chaplains in the organization of padres' hours and discussion groups among inmates.

He recalled that until 1950 there was no regular chaplain service in B.C. correctional institutes.

The service was instituted that year at the request of the Vancouver Council of Churches and the first chaplain appointed was Rev. Grant Hollingsworth, now senior Protestant chaplain.

Champion for RCNSA was Mel Steffans.

Woman Claims Boy Innocent of Murder

TORONTO (CP) — A Toronto widow's crusade to prove that a teen-age boy was wrongly convicted in the 1959 killing and rape of a 13-year-old girl will get a full public airing in March with the publication of her book about the case.

Isabel LeBourdais, Clinton, B.C., widow of author D. M. LeBourdais, has spent the last four years writing The Trial of Steven Truscott.

Mrs. LeBourdais says she believes her book will prove that Truscott is innocent in the death of the girl, Lynne Harper, found raped and strangled in June, 1959, at Clinton, Ont.

The youth, 14 at the time, was convicted of murder and sentenced to life imprisonment. He is at present in Collins Bay penitentiary, Kingston, Ont., where Mrs. LeBourdais reports he is a model prisoner and in good spirits.

After the conviction, the author began investigating the case by reading the 2,500 pages of the trial transcript.

"I came to the conclusion that this was not a sick boy who needed treatment, but a normal boy who was innocent," she sid.

She said the youth was convicted on flimsy evidence.

Attorney-General Arthur Wishart said he has not heard of the book. "If Mrs. LeBourdais has additional evidence she can bring it to me. Certainly if there seems to be any merit I'll look into it at once."

Liberal's Election Ruled Void

REGINA (CP) — The April 22, 1964 provincial election in Canora constituency has been declared void in a court of Queen's Bench judgment.

Mr. Justice M. A. MacPherson, in his written judgment made the decision following hearings earlier this month at Yorkton held under the Controverted Elections Act.

Mr. Kuziak appealed under the act that procedures used during the election were irregular.

The decision, which can be appealed within 30 days, reduces the Liberal strength in the 59-seat legislature to 30 seats. The CCF have 26, there is one Progressive Conservative and two seats are vacant.

Body in Seiner Indicates Sinking Sudden

A water-soaked ship's log book and a crewman's body today indicated the grim story of the last minutes alive for seven B.C. fishermen.

The log book was recovered from the capsized seiner Ocean Star after it was towed today into Quathiaski Cove, Quadra Island.

Last entry made by missing skipper William Mielty, 38, was: Friday, 8:45 p.m.—Off Cape Lazo (near Comox).

He was found in the sleeping quarters, still wrapped in a blanket.

It is believed the mishap took place soon after the last log entry at 8:45.

And the position in which the dead man was found indicates that the end must have come quickly and without warning.

At the time, winds in the Georgia Strait area were gusting up to 60 miles-an-hour.

Said part-owner of the seiner, Einar Eilertsen, whose son, Ray, 26, was aboard: "The boat would have been top-heavy with its holds empty."

The RCMP patrol boat Little Bow from Powell River and an RCAF Albatross from Comox were searching the area today for other members of the crew.

They are: Reino Aro, 48; Anthony Kiskilla, 33; Herbert Johnson, 29, and William Maki, all of Sointula off Vancouver Island's northeast coast. The skipper was also from Sointula.

Little hope is held that any of the men could have survived.

PLANNED STOP

She was to have stopped over at Sointula for the weekend for the men to visit their families.

Saturday morning the overturned boat was spotted by a B.C. Airlines pilot near the mouth of Oyster River, 10 miles south of Campbell River.

Tugs were able to secure a line to the upturned hull and drag her to nearby Quadra Island.

Water had to be pumped out of the hull before searchers could begin looking for bodies.

Only the one body was found.

But his wife was ill Friday so he arranged with the skipper to meet the boat at Sointula.

Said Palo: "He (the skipper) said it would be fine and I could join him Saturday. He offered to stand my wheel watch. We're old friends, Bill and I.

"The last words I said to him were: 'Have a good trip,' He answered: 'See you Saturday'."

Student Loses Kidney After Rugby Match

Oak Bay principal Jack Wallace said today he has been told "it was a rough game." He said inquiries are being made into how the player was injured.

Mr. Wallace said the injury to English is the only serious accident he has known in a rugby game during his 30 years at Oak Bay.

He said players have broken bones in the past but this is the first time a serious accident has occurred.

$35 From Cafe

Thieves got $35 in change when they broke into Brand's Cafe, 1009 Government Street, over the weekend.

By HUMPHRY DAVY

Vancouver Island west coast Indians plan to hunt for the valuable northern fur seals in the open Pacific this spring.

And organizer Paul Sam of Ahousat, who is visiting his sister in Victoria, wants an SPCA official with a movie camera to come along to see how it's done.

Paul's reasons for wanting the hunt recorded is to draw to the attenion of the federal government the antiquated laws governing the hunting of fur seals by Indians.

FOOD AND FUR

A 1911 treaty between Canada, the United States and Japan prohibits open-sea sealing, except for Indians who may take them for food and fur.

But the law says the Indians must hunt them in the primitive way of their forefathers.

"This means we got to hunt them with spears and bows and arrows," said the 69-year-old Indian. "We want to hunt them with rifles."

CRUEL WAY

Paul said the primitive way of killing seals is cruel.

"First you spear it, with a rope attached to the spear," he said. "The animal fights like a fish. It claws at the boat. You have to club it to death. It bleeds from the nose and ears. It's a ghastly sight. We don't like it."

Indians have not hunted the fur seal since the thirties, he said.

"But we plan to re-assert our sealing rights because it's becoming more and more difficult to make a living on salmon due to the Russians and Americans encroaching on our fishing grounds," he stated.

He said Ahousat Indians are making spears and other primitive weapons for the seal hunt which will take place in March or April.

Dr. Cliffort Carl, curator of the Provincial Museum, said one of the disadvantages of hunting seals with spears is the damage done to the fur.

"The government buys the fur, but the value is not as high as it should be because of the damage," he said.

He estimated the northern fur seal population at about 3,000,000.

An adult male measures seven feet and a female five feet. They weigh about 600 and 120 pounds respectively.

The seals breed in the Pribilof Islands and the Russian-owned Robbin Islands in the Bering Sea. Each year the U.S. government harvests a certain number of the seals. Profits from the furs are divided between the treaty nations.

GO SOUTH

Females and the young leave their island rookeries in October and scatter southward along the coast of British Columbia. Some migrate as far south as California.

At one time sealing was one of Victoria's major industries, but the specie came close to extinction at the turn of the century. It was for their protection that an international treaty was drawn up.

INDIANS PLAN TO HUNT for fur seals in a canoe along the lines of model carved by Ahousat Indian Paul Sam. It carries three or four men. Harpooner stands at the bow.

1873 PACT FOILS BID ON WATER

In a letter to T. P. O'Grady, city solicitor, H. D. DeBeck, comptroller of water rights for B.C., says his department had no jurisdiction over the rights given to Victoria in 1873.

Reeve Gordon Lee, Central Saanich, declined to comment on the contents of the letter when approached this morning. He said he had no recollection of ever having seen the document.

Central Saanich had asked for the water rights to be taken from Victoria after the city announced its intention of increasing water rates from 1½ cents per thousand gallons to five cents per thousand.

Reeve Lee said he had no comment to make on Central Saanich's next step in the battle.

J. D. Tisdalle (SC—Saanich) has promised to introduce the matter at the present session of the legislature and to back the plea of Central Saanich.

Arctic's 'Silver Fox' Buried Here Tuesday

Funeral services will be held Tuesday for Major David Livingstone McKeand, the "Silver Fox of the Arctic".

Major McKeand, who died here Saturday at age 87, was a noted soldier, sportsman and civil servant, renowned for his journeys to the far north.

The funeral will be held at 2 p.m. at the Church of St. George the Martyr. Cremation will follow.

Major McKeand had lived in Victoria at 635 Superior since retirement from the post of superintendent of the Eastern Arctic in 1945. He was also secretary of the Northwest Territories Council for 24 years.

16 TRIPS

His home was at Ottawa during that period but he once estimated he had made 16 trips of 10,000 miles each into the Arctic. His duties there involved taking a census, conducting marriages and presiding over murder trials.

He earned the name "Silver Fox" during this period.

He earned his military title following service in the Boer War and the First World War with Canadian forces, when he won the Military Cross.

WON BY DEFAULT

Major McKeand's birthplace was Hamilton, Ont. He was captain of the Hamilton Tigers football team when it held the Canadian championship between 1902 and 1906. He once said the team won the 1904 title by default. No team would play it—each team having different rules.

He was elected president of the Ontario Rugby Football Union in 1908 and was believed to be the oldest living past-president.

Major and Mrs. McKeand were aboard the Hudson's Bay Company ship Nascopie in 1940 when it dashed through submarine-infested waters to Greenland for a cargo of cryolite, needed for the war effort by the Arvida aluminum industry.

He is survived by the widow, Hilda, a son, Martin, in Winnipeg and four grandchildren.

Damage of $40,000 In Machine Shop Fire

Victoria Fire Department's new aerial service truck was credited today with saving most of Ramsay Machine Works, 1630 Store St., Saturday night.

The roof and one-third of the rear wall was destroyed plus some of the machine shop's contents when the plant was hit by fire.

Cause of the blaze is being investigated.

Fire officials do not suspect arson.

FIRST TEST

They bombed the blaze in its centre with 1,000 gallons of water per minute. The fire marked the first test for the new piece of equipment.

From a height of 60 feet firemen were able to hose down adjoining buildings and keep the fire from spreading.

They saved thousands of dollars in lathes and welding machines.

Owner H. Lauder Ramsay said the value of the building and its contents is $200,000.

PATTERNS LOST

Biggest loss was the firm's stock of 1,500 pinewood patterns valued at $25,000.

They were stored in the building's mezzanine where the blaze originated.

Mr. Ramsay said the loss is insured and he expects his plant to resume production "in a day or two."

The front of the building was undamaged except for smoke and water. Records and files were carried to safety.

Much of the machine shop was littered with debris caused when the roof fell in.

FIREMAN HURT

The alarm was raised by police in a prowler car at 8:57 p.m.

The company's foundry was hit by a $100,000 fire in 1957 when it was located on Garbally Road.

THIEF MAKES BARBED CATCH

A total of 12,000 fish hooks were taken from a car owned by David Barry, 3795 Duke Road, Friday night when it was parked in the Yates St. civic carpark.

Made to special requirements, the hooks were to be made into [illegible] flies by Mr. Barry.

Police said the hooks were valued at [illegible].

Lost Climbers Led to Safety From Finlayson

Five mountain climbers were led to safety from Mount Finlayson late Sunday night after being lost for several hours.

Searchers found the cold and hungry climbers near the top of the 1,200-foot mountain about 10:30 p.m.

They were returned to an anxious cluster of parents and friends in Goldstream Park.

A Colwood RCMP spokesman said the climbers actually started out in two separate parties and were unknown to each other. They met after becoming lost high up the slope.

In one group there were three women: Gail Lineham, 19, of 1036 Joan Crescent; Brenda Wood, 21, and Patricia Bonney, addresses unavailable.

In the second party were Christopher Denny, 1682 Beach Drive, and Patricia Conrad, 19, of 2447 Bowker.

Police said the three girls started to climb the mountain around 4 p.m. with two men, Ray Goodchild, 30, and Bernard Ward, 30.

RETURNED TO CAR

They started up the lower trail and the men decided to return to their car while the girls continued to climb.

They were to meet where the trail comes out on Finlayson Arm Road. When the girls did not appear they reported them missing at 6:30.

Meanwhile Chris Denny and Miss Conrad were also climbing the mountain, became lost and met up with the lost girls.

Mrs. Tom Deny, mother of Chris, said none of the climers suffered any ill-effects.

She said they became lost because trail markers were obliterated by branches knocked down in the December snow storms.

"They would all shout together every 30 seconds and they also did some singing.

Four Colwood RCMP were assisted in the search by six Langford Fire Department volunteers and two Boy Scouts.

CRIPPLED WOMAN FLEES NORTH PARK ST. BLAZE

The elderly woman, an arthritic, was forced to hobble from the home on crutches.

A neighbor said the woman smelled smoke, found the upstairs was ablaze, and called the fire department before leaving the building.

Cause of the blaze or the amount of damage was not known by press time.

Elderly Man Dies In Cabin Fire On Salt Spring

An elderly man was asphyixiated by smoke from a burning mattress in his Salt Spring Island cabin, early Sunday.

Raleigh Elliott McLaren, 67, Rainbow Wood, Ganges, was found under his bed where he apparently crawled to escape the smoke from the burning mattress.

It was presumed the man had been smoking in bed.

In another mishap on the Island Saturday night a Vancouver youth was severely injured when the car he was riding in failed to make a turn on North End Road and overturned into 18 inches of water in St. Mary Lake.

CONCUSSION

Paul Miller, 18, was treated at Lady Minto Hospital for concussion and pneumonia before being transferred to a Vancouver hospital Sunday.

Driver of the car, Robert Byng-Hall, also of Vancouver, was slightly injured.

Police say nobody actually saw the acident but residents nearby noticed the car in the water about 7:30 p.m.

When police arrived both men were unconscious. Miller was lying outside the car in the water and Byng-Hall was inside the vehicle.

Youngster's Leg Broken In Collision

The youngster suffered a broken right leg when in collision with an auto driven by Jennifer Saunders, 18, of 4038 Cumberland, police said.

Rider David Simon Thomas, 4710 Rosehill, received a cut forehead when he and his horse were in collision with a car Sunday on Bear Hill Road.

THROWN INTO DITCH

They were knocked back and the rider was thrown into a ditch. Police said driver of the auto was Heinrick Pruim, 391 Conway.

Motorcyclist Russell Clark, 18, of 840 Victoria Avenue, is in good condition in hospital following an accident Saturday at Quadra and Cloverdale.

He sustained shock and bruises when in collision with a car driven by Allan Brent Adams, 1580 Wilmot Place, police said.

LEG INJURIES

She was a passenger in a car driven by Bryan Appleton of Vancouver, police said. Other driver involved was Ralph McCullock, 221 Irma.

Man Admits Beating Young Child

Nye's wife told police when she laid the charge against him Nye was irritable and had hit the baby, who was the child of other parents, causing swelling and bruises on its face.

Nye was remanded to Feb. 4 for a pre-sentence report.

SOUNDS, SIGHTS OF SPRING MAKING HEAVY HEARTS RING

January may not be torn off the calendar yet—but signs of an early spring abound.

Dutch bulb specialist Pierre Timp says he saw and heard the song of the first English skylark of the year at the airport Sunday . . . three of them, to be exact.

Gardeners throughout the area report peony plants have sent up their red feelers. Camelias, forsythias and rhododendrons are showing swollen buds. Pussywillows already are old hat.

And if that doesn't convince doubters, they should count the strollers in Centennial Square on Sundays.

Ask The Times

Q. Please tell us what is meant by "heavy water?" —G. H.

A. Heavy water is water containing the heavy isotope of hydrogen called deuterium.

The deuterium atom weighs about twice as much as an ordinary hydrogen atom.

And because of the difference between the weights of the two kinds of hydrogen atoms, the physical properties of heavy water differ from those of ordinary water.

Heavy water freezes at a higher temperature and has to be heated more to boil. Seeds won't germinate in it and some animals cannot live in it.

Heavy water is used as a coolant and heat transfer agent in nuclear power reactors and is known as deuterium oxide.

CENTENNIAL MEDALS ISSUED NEXT YEAR

Real Pioneer Came Before Jan. 1, 1892

Anyone born in Canada or who was a resident of Canada before Jan. 1, 1892, is a pioneer. . . .

And he or she is going to get a medal to prove it.

The definition and the medals come from Canadian Confederation Centennial Committee of B.C.

The awards will be made next year through the 400 local centennial committees now operating throughout B.C.

The medallion and ribbon will be awarded whether or not the pioneer has been continuously a resident—but the recipient must be a resident of the province now.

Application forms must be signed by applicants and local officials. Where possible birthdates should be proved by birth certificates, baptismal certificates, family Bible notations or other evidence.

Local committees must forward applications to Victoria by Nov. 19 this year.

The medallion has a silver finish and hangs from a blue ribbon. One side shows the arrival of Alexander Mackenzie at tidewater after he crossed Canada, the first explorer to reach the coast by land from the east.

WHY GROW OLD?

By JOSEPHINE LOWMAN

This Week Is Midpoint of BIP; Have You Lost 10 Pounds?

The end of this week will be the midpoint of my Eight-Week Beauty Improvement Plan for many of my readers. If you started later, the midpoint will come a little further along for you.

Lowman

How much weight you have lost will depend on how faithfully you have followed the menus or counted calories and how regularly you have done the exercises. Of course there are other factors involved, too, such as your metabolism and how active you are physically.

Most of you will have lost at least 10 pounds. However, if you have not, do not be discouraged. Also, if you come to a standstill don't panic! This is a usual part of reducing. Just keep on counting calories and the scales will soon give you happy news again. By now your measurements should have shrunk several inches. Don't weaken. The battle is now half won. If you fell by the wayside start again with new determination.

One way to plan nutritious meals is to follow this daily food guide. It is taken from diet book which was originally published as "Food and Your Weight."

Milk group: Children under 9 years, 2 to 3 cups of milk—9 to 12 years, 3 or more cups; teen-agers, 4 or more cups; adults, 2 or more cups. Cheese and ice cream may replace part of the milk.

DEAR ABBY . . .

You Can't!

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: My father is the most stubborn man in the world. Nobody can tell him anything. He had seat belts put in our car as soon as they came out, and he gave us kids a big long lecture on how we should always use them, but HE never uses them himself. When I tell him he forgot to fasten his seat belt, he says he is going only a short distance and it doesn't pay to bother. I have tried to tell him that it takes only a few seconds to fasten a seat belt and it might save his life, but he gets mad at me for speaking up to him. He has a very ugly temper, and I have to be careful what I say to him or I'll end up with a fat lip. How can a 14-year-old boy tell his father to practice what he preaches?

FOURTEEN

DEAR FOURTEEN: Tell him that the National Safety Council estimates that most automobile accidents occur within 25 miles of the victim's homes. But don't tell him to practice what he preaches or you're apt to get a "belt" in the chops.

DEAR ABBY: My in-laws' religion is against smoking, drinking and playing cards. Ours is not. In the evening we will have a cigarette, and perhaps a drink. And if we have company, we will play cards. His parents never call, they just drop in unexpectedly, which puts us in an embarrassing spot. My husband expects me and our guests to hide the drinks and cards. I think this is wrong. Do you think I should do as my husband asks and live this falsehood?

WONDERING

DEAR WONDERING: Your in-laws surely must know that YOUR religion does not prohibit smoking, drinking and card-playing. And if they don't, it's time they did. "Hiding" the evidence, as your husband asks, is degrading and deceitful. And he's probably not getting away with it anyway. Tell him to grow up and act like a big boy.

DEAR ABBY: We have been married since last August and we are still living with my mother-in-law. I have painted two apartments and my wife wouldn't move into either one of them. She just won't leave her mother. We are expecting in a couple of months. I love her, Abby, and she says she loves me. I want to live alone with my own new family. What do you advise?

TROUBLED

DEAR TROUBLED: Unless your wife leaves her mother voluntarily to make a home for you, it won't be much of a home. She is still her mother's little girl, and may need some professional counselling to fit her for the role of wife and mother. The Family and Children's Service provides this kind of counselling. See them.

Ease Scouring Chore With Metal-Cleaner

By Penny Saver

The kitchen is often referred to as the housewife's domain. Most homemakers spend most of their time in their kitchens, preparing meals for their hungry families. Because of the extensive time spent in that room, it should be bright and cheery, so that even on the dreariest of days, it is a welcome, rather than dreaded, place to be.

Shining metal appliances and utensils help to brighten up any kitchen. If they are kept polished, they add to the spotlessness of the over-all picture.

The thought of polishing metal items is very appalling to most of us. However, if you get into the habit of wiping them clean after each use, the task is very small indeed. The initial cleaning, to rid grease and grime from the neglected appliances, is the hardest part.

In one shop, I found a metal cleaner that will be a great boon to this job. Apply it sparingly with a cloth until a black residue appears. Then wash it off with a mild soap, and rub dry.

Selling for 99 cents, this cleaner can even be used on the metal on your car or boat.

Cleaning is quite a chore, and precautions can be taken to avoid extra work, especially against stubborn stains on woodwork. Coffee tables, for example, can be protected with coasters. In one store, I found some, imported from Formosa. These are made of chrysanthemum wood, and sell for $4.25.

Salt and pepper shakers, made of the same wood, have the shape of snowmen. These have little metal caps on top, and sell for $4.25.

Candle-holders, also made of chrysanthemum wood, sell for $2.65 the 3½-inch size, and $4.25 for one four inches taller.

Another useful, decorative article is a three-tier sandwich or cake server, selling for $6.25. Made of china, the design is of roses in pink and yellow tones.

One very unique item sells for $12.95. It is a lighter, in the form of a knight in full armor. The top of his helmet lifts to reveal the lighter mechanism. This device, I'm sure, will draw compliments from all your guests.

Loses Inches—Gains Confidence

HYDE, England (Reuters)—Anne Rowston, whose height of six feet, seven inches was cut by surgeons to about six feet, has started her first job in two years. The 20-year-old girl who spent years of embarrassment being too tall to walk in a crowd now finds she is virtually unnoticed among workers at the leather factory where she is employed.

SEW SIMPLE WITH Eunice Farmer

Dear Eunice:

I am frantic and don't know what to do. My first experience with an expensive piece of material and my suit front won't "do right!" The front of the jacket just pokes out like a shelf in front below my bust. No matter how much I take in the side seams, it won't hang right. Please help me.

Mrs. M.W.

Dear Mrs. M.W.:

The jacket pokes out in front because the dart shaping isn't correct for your figure. You didn't tell me whether your suit had a dart under the bust. If it does, the dart should be made deeper. If the suit doesn't have a dart at the waistline, you may add one just below the full part of the bust. Also, make the dart deeper at the underarm. Between these two dart alterations the lower part of the jacket should fit closer to your body. Don't over-fit!

Mrs. W. J. Conaway is this week's winner of a Tailor Trix pressing board for the following suggestion.

"During a wardrobe check, prior to my daughter's return to college, we found some perfectly good full-skirted cotton dresses which she didn't want to wear again. Hating to discard the dresses, my daughter came up with a clever money-saving idea! With a long zipper, a little inexpensive rim and an attractive yoke, we transformed the fabric from the skirts into comfortable, pretty, 'dorm-shifts' to relax and study in. Any young homemaker would also love these shifts for morning house dresses and her husband would be quite pleased with her ingenuity."

YOUR SEWING GLOSSARY:

Discotheque: When used in reference to a dress, it usually means a black, low-necked, long sleeved or sleeveless dress with a flounce around the lower edge. Definitely reminiscent of the 20's.

Wears Gown of Lace Over Taffeta

MARION WILLIAMS WED

A floor-length gown of white lace over taffeta was worn by Marion Elizabeth Williams when she became the bride of William Joseph Tamburino in Oak Bay United Church Saturday evening.

The bodice of the full-skirted gown featured sleeves ending in lily points. Her chapel-length veil misted from a coronet of pearls and crystals, and she carried a bouquet of orchids and carnations. Only jewelry was crystal earrings.

Rev. A. Calder officiated at the ceremony uniting the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. J. Williams, 2211 Cadboro Bay Road, and the son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Tamburino of Vancouver. Mr. Williams gave his daughter in marriage.

"The Wedding Prayer" and "The Lord's Prayer" were sung by Miss Wendy Cox.

At the reception following in Holyrood House, the bride and groom cut a three-tier wedding cake that was flanked with arrangements of roses. T. E. Pagdin proposed the toast to the bride.

Following a honeymoon trip to San Francisco, the couple will make their home at 435 Michigan Street.

For travelling, the new Mrs. Tamburino chose a raspberry red wool suit, which she made herself, accented with black accessories.

Award is made "for outstanding contribution to the community." Mr. Pearkes was told "it is the concerted opinion of the club membership that no other citizen in Victoria deserves this award for gracious service to the people, more than you do." CITY LAWYER MAINTAINS:

Drivers to Be 'Intimidated' If Breath Test Law Adopted

By RON SUDLOW
Police Reporter

Too impaired to drive after only two ounces of hard liquor?

It can happen, says city lawyer Jack Gatehouse who is opposed to the provincial government plan for compulsory breath tests on drinking drivers.

The law could disqualify drivers whose blood has a prohibitive concentration of alcohol.

"Society has not caught up with the law in this respect," said Mr. Gatehouse.

He said most motorists do not understand the impaired driving charge and don't realize the scope of compulsory breath tests.

Requirements needed to get an impaired driving conviction have been dropping steadily over the past 10 to 15 years, he said.

"It's time the public was told what impaired driving is and what it takes to be impaired."

It has been proven a person can become impaired in his ability to drive with a blood-alcohol count of .05, the lawyer said.

YOU WOULDN'T KNOW

"But even at that level," Mr. Gatehouse said, "you don't know you're impaired.

"A person's co-ordination would still seem normal to him.

"And even at .15 you don't show any physical aberration." (At .15 and beyond most courts rule drivers impaired.)

He referred to a recent case where a man was convicted of impaired driving and had a .17 reading.

The man was asked to do several physical tests by police such as walking a straight line and a finger-to-nose test.

"As far as he was concerned, he performed the tests properly and he thought he was all right."

When the breath test result was introduced in court it was corroborative evidence only.

SMALL THINGS

"But this reading allows the police and the magistrate to use any small thing at all to find a man impaired.

"He may fumble through his wallet while trying to find his driver's licence. Or he may dial the wrong number in trying to contact a lawyer or his wife.

"Although a breath reading is for corroboration, it could become incriminatory when an expert is called in to testify," Mr. Gatehouse said.

"A person could walk out of a cocktail party after two or three drinks, be impaired and not know it.

"Amd once the police get that breath reading, they can start building a case," Mr. Gatehouse said.

He opposes compulsory breath tests for that reason.

He said drivers will be "intimidated" if the legislation follows the Saskatchewan plan where licences are suspended for refusing to take the test.

Aussies Take Last 'Six O'Clock Swill'

MELBOURNE (Reuters)—Australians here today took their last "six o'clock swill" with sighs of relief, and an era ended for the drinkers of Victoria state.

For the last 50 years they have been gulping down their beer because bars close at 6 p.m. after opening at 9:05 a.m.

Under a new law passed by the state government last year and effective Tuesday, drinking hours are to be extended to 10 p.m.

Despite warnings by temperance stalwarts that it will be known as "black Tuesday," most of Melbourne's 662 bigger hotels were expected to be jumping Tuesday night. Many people organized parties to celebrate their new freedom.

Victorians are primarily beer drinkers. They claim that their beer, all made by one company, is the best in the world.

They also claim to serve the stuff faster than any country in the world. A triggered hand tap with a flexible hose linked with the barrels fills glasses at bewildering speed.

But along with the sweet pill, drinkers have to take a bitter one as well — a new tough road law.

Under this law, a man is unfit for driving after drinking about four seven - ounce beers in 20 minutes or six in 50 minutes, without food.

Police will know that a man has passed his limit it he shows a blood alcohol content of 0.05 per cent.

Victoria is only catching up with most of Australia in extending drinking hours. After Tuesday, South Australia will be the only state which closes its bars at 6 p.m.

DO IT ON YOUR OWN, STUDENTS TOLD

College Lectures Just a Drag?

CAMBRIDGE, Mass. (AP)—Twenty-five Harvard medical students say lectures are dull and a waste of time. So they're being excused from class—and told to study on their own.

"The psychological effect of sitting in a class and being lectured and 'labbed' at is to make you passive, dull, lose motivation and curiosity."

Weil, a leader of the student group that successfully petitioned Dean Robert H. Ebert to be excused from classes for the rest of the year, said medical schools are throwing too many organized laboratory sessions and too many lectures at their medical students.

He said "most of the time the lectures are giving information that can be found in books, and found much quicker."

They will be divided into groups of five to devise their own learning techniques with the help of volunteer faculty advisers.

They will take the same examinations as their 81 classmates and will attend the lectures that interest them.

Young Actors Win Spurs On First Show

By AUDREY JOHNSON

THE RED SHOES
Adapted by Gini Lefever

Karen	Wendy Packard
Granny	Margaret Martin
Gypsy	Lawrence Eastick
Burgomaster	J. F. Carney
Nels	Peter Gordon
Jemmo	John Scaife

Versatile Gini Lefever, already well known as a dancer-comedienne, directed as well as adapted this miniature musical comedy.

Her talents quite clearly spread in any direction in which she chooses to turn. She had filled the show with many inventions—nimble-footed Granny, a wonderful chase, an air-borne escape.

PONDEROUS

It is doubtful though whether one or two of the songs, especially the Mata Hari number, had any meaning for the youthful audience and some of the dialogue seemed a bit ponderous.

Irrepressible Margaret Martin was sheer delight as Granny. Her fleet movement, her expressive face and gestures make any show of this kind.

Lawrence Eastick provided a genuinely "pantomime" villain with all the tricks of the trade plus a few of his own that included effects of dazzling speed.

John Scaife's Jemmo is a performance full of promise that will improve greatly when he becomes less anxious and a trifle less "busy."

OVER-ACTING

Wendy Packard as the heroine, Karen, moves well, speaks well and looks extremely attractive. But in her zeal to achieve style she has fallen into the trap of over-acting and often produces a strained effect.

John Scaife, who was also responsible for the pleasing costumes and the sets, gave a well thought out performance and Peter Gordon was convincing as the hero, Nels.

NEXT SATURDAY

From 19-year-old Peter Yakimovitch who arranged and performed the music, and 22-year-old director, Gini, to the student back-stage crew, all deserve a "well done" for a promising first production.

The Red Shoes will be seen again twice next Saturday at 10 a.m. and 2 p.m.

He took over the controls as the vessel brought him back to Government House after the only scheduled public appearance of his three-day visit here.

He toured an exhibition displaying models of Canberra development plans.

Nearly 500 persons surged round the prince afterward as he walked down to Lake Burley Griffin to board the waiting launch. Detectives hovered close by.

The Prince will rest at Government House until Wednesday, when he flies to Mangalore Airport in northern Victoria.

From there he will drive about 100 miles to Geelong Grammar School's bush - life annex, Timbertop, where he will spend a term.

WITTY PLAY EXPOSES OUR FOIBLES

Pendulum Swings Blow at Suburbia

An extremely witty play that digs its elbow into the ribs of suburbia, mocking the ardent hobbyist, the fetish-ridden housewife, the do-it-yourself craze, opened at Langham Court Theatre Saturday night.

As Victoria Theatre Guild's bid for Dominion Drama Festival honors, it is a first-rate choice.

Like most writers in the Theatre of the Absurd, Simpson is preoccupied with man's condition in the modern world, but more with the ludicrousness he imposes upon himself than that imposed by nature.

His tendency for instance to pour time and money into futile, gimmicky projects—in this case the son, Kirby's efforts to teach 500 weighing machines to sing the Hallelujah Chorus. He succeeds, but so what? No one can bear to listen to them.

The play comments on the isolation of members of a family, each within his own self-fabricated shell; on the preoccupation of the wife and mother with trivial detail that makes her oblivious to larger issues; on the escape mechanism of the old aunt who, hunched in her wheel chair, dreams of a hundred modes of conveying herself to a hundred exotic places.

It shows us the confirmed hobbyist, the father, absorbed at the moment in law and carrying it to the extreme of erecting a do-it-yourself kit Old Bailey in the living room.

This leads of course to a trial that out-Wonderlands Alice for ferocity, distortion and illogicallity. Simpson's tongue is well in his cheek here as he pokes fun at legal jargon and circumlocution.

Bert Farr directs the production with considerable understanding and an eye for detail. But he does not succeed in bringing off the farcical element, mainly, I believe, through a lack of punctuation and rhythm in the movement of the play.

It proceeded Saturday, at a somewhat casual pace which did not vary to any extent and which therefore dulled the sharp blade of the satire.

One Way Pendulum will be repeated nightly this week, through Saturday.

Churchill Story 'The Dream' Finally Printed

LONDON (Reuters) — A story by Sir Winston Churchill, said to be his last unpublished writing, appeared in a British newspaper Sunday, the first anniversary of his burial in Bladon Village churchyard.

In a story, called The Dream, published over two pages in the Sunday Telegraph, Churchill tells his dead father of political and international events in the 20th century. Believed to have been written in 1947, it lay locked in a box for years.

Headquarters Opens To Roar of Flypast

'TAKE TO AIR'

Liertenant-Governor Pearkes reminded members of the stipulation in their charter which undertakes to "perpetuate the glorious traditions of the air force and encourage young people to take to the air."

He said it is obvious the local wing "is intent on doing the job properly."

The wing supports local charities such as the Cerebral Palsy Association, the Queen Alexandra Solarium, the Victoria Kadettes.

EERIE FASHIONS—When the lights went out at the close of Capucci's spring collection fashion showing in Paris, viewers saw this parade of eerily luminous bodies float by. The phantom females were garbed in the young designer's new chemically-treated cotton formal wear, ideal for power failures. Sketch by Charline Glascock. (AP Wirephoto)

It Finally Happened—Designer Produces Plastic Evening Gowns

PARIS (UPI)—Plastic dresses that will never have to go to the cleaners made their bow in the spring collection of Roberto Capucci Saturday.

From the minute his mannequins entered the salon in hats that looked like hair dryers—linen pillboxes covered with plastic bubbles—the audience could see that the Capucci's spring clothes would be futuristic.

With the hairdryer hats, the girls wore woollen suits, raincoats or short white satin evening gowns covered with a thin sheet of transparent plastic, like that used for car-seat covers.

One white satin plastic cocktail dress had a plastic-covered bare midriff. A white evening dress had a strip of satin cut out above the hem of the skirt so the mannequin's legs were seen through the plastic as if through a window.

Capucci also showed white evening slippers with low transparent plastic heels.

The Capucci collection was pretty enough without gimmicks. Since he considers short sleeves necessary for spring and summer, everything had sleeves hitting the middle of the upper arm, from colored plastic raincoats to coats, dresses and evening dresses.

Other Paris fashion salons have been in an uproar throughout the collections trying to prevent publication of photographs of the fashions ahead of the agreed Feb. 28 publication date.

The salons traditionally ask journalists to sign agreements that no fashion photographs will be published until store buyers have time to get their purchases into production. This is to prevent copyists from stealing the ideas.

Friday the showing of Pierre Cardin, traditionally jammed with excited Cardin devotees, was more lively than usual because three unauthorized persons were caught with cameras.

A salon executive confiscated the cameras—amid laughter and applause—and held them until after the show. Only photographers known and trusted were allowed to take pictures, and those must be held for publication Feb. 28.

One French newspaper ignored the release date, and on Friday published two photographs of dresses from the Christian Dior collection.

The Dior salon announced that ". . . unless the matter is regulated amicably or by the courts, no representative of the publication will be allowed to enter again the House of Christian Dior."

Fashion sources said that by agreement all of the salons are cracking down on copyists who could crib ideas of the new spring fashions. One journalist was stopped from sketching during the show of Pierre Balmain on Tuesday.

First Anniversary

The Ladies' Auxiliary to the Victoria Diabetic Association will mark the first anniversary of its formation with a meeting and social hour to be held in the home of Mrs. B. Morgan, 3557 Saanich Road, on Wednesday, Feb. 9, at 1:30 p.m. The organization held its first meeting in the nurses' residence of St. Joseph's Hospital on Feb. 8, 1965, electing Mrs. C. W. Gorby as president. The group now has 16 members.

Its main project is the raising of funds in order to assist in sending diabetic children to summer camp. Last year $180.75 was raised for this purpose. To date $205.30 has been raised toward a camp to be held this summer.

PLANS LUNCHEON

Mrs. George R. Pearkes, wife of the lieutenant-governor, will entertain at a luncheon in Government House on Tuesday. The affair has been arranged to honor the wives of members of the Legislative Assembly.

From Vancouver

Guests travelling from Vancouver to hear vows exchanged between Miss Marion Elizabeth Williams and Mr. William Joseph Tamburino, Saturday evening, included the groom's father, Mr. J. Tamburino; Mrs. E. Robinson, the bride's paternal grandmother; Mr. and Mrs. Ernie Johnson, Mr. and Mrs. W. Smith, Mr. and Mrs. R. Perry, Mr. Don Archibald, Miss Margaret Montgomery and Mr. Bill Williams. Other out-of-town guests included the bride's maternal grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. John Paton, Edmonton; Mr. John Williams, Prince George, brother of the bride.

Travel Overseas

Several Victorians have stopped to sign the visitors' book at British Columbia House while visiting in London, England, during the past few days. They include Mr. and Mrs. G. D. Hundleby, Mr. and Mrs. W. S. Day, Mrs. G. W. McCarthy, Mr. and Mrs. Montague Porter. Also signing the book were Mr. Russell Henshall, Campbell River; Mrs. Mary D. Rowbothom and Mrs. Iva M. Bailey, both of Nanaimo.

Mainland Trip

Victorians in Vancouver to attend the Canadian Construction Association's 48th annual meeting include Mr. W. B. Dillabough, president of the Victoria Builders' Association, Mr. and Mrs. G. Farmer, Mr. and Mrs. D. E. Smith and Mr. and Mrs. G. H. Wheaton. The three-day session, being held in the Bayshore Inn, began Sunday and will conclude with a dance Wednesday evening.

Annual Ball

More than 600 guests will gather in the Crystal Garden, Friday evening, for the annual ball given by members of the Saanich police. The affair will begin at 9 p.m. and music for dancing will be provided by Len Acres' orchestra and the Encores. Dance tickets may be obtained from members of the force.

BRIDAL BIKINI

Although high fashion has ignored the bosom this year, Paris is burning with the "nude look" — cut-outs, bare midriffs, shoulders and backs.

Buyers who viewed the opening Saint-Laurent presentation were either amused or scandalized by the organdy shifts with demure long sleeves and high necklines. Underneath the models wore nothing but a few rows of strategically placed beads and bras that bared the navel.

Shower To Save Babies

Miss Beulah Bourns, R.N.

There were 35 hungry little mouths and twice as many emaciated little hands, all reaching for the spoonfuls of powdered milk. These 35 starved tiny babies were the first of Beulah Bourns' babies—children orphaned or abandoned by the war in Korea.

Following the bombing raids in the far eastern country, Canadian soldiers faced the piteous sight of small children, lost and desperately trying to find food, homes and families — and the nightmare of hunger-ridden babies, crawling in ditches, abandoned in doorways or left on the grounds of the Severence Hospital.

At this time, some of the missionaries (all had been evacuated during the war) were returning back to the Severence Hospital and among them were Miss Beulah Bourns and Dr. Florence Murray, serving under the United Church of Canada.

Some of the soldiers had learned that a nurse would be arriving with the missionaries, so they met Miss Bourns at the boat and escorted her to a small shack, where she was greeted with the sight of the first 35 of her babies — many without clothes and all unfed. With no feeding bottles available, she had to give them powdered milk by spoon.

Miss Bourns and "her babies" had only the use of two small basement rooms in the hospital. But with the help freely given by the Canadian soldiers, the rubble was cleared away from the bomb-pocked area, beds and equipment were repaired and cleaned, and the sick and starving Korean waifs were carried to their hospital.

Today, Severence Hospital is modernized and even features a milk dispensary, where mothers can obtain whole milk or formulas for their sick children.

On Saturday, Feb. 12, Miss Bourns will arrive in Victoria. That Sunday she will speak to the morning and evening services in Metropolitan United Church.

The following afternoon, the Metropolitan United Church Women will hold a rather unique baby shower — a shower for Beulah Bourns' Babies, the refugee children she is caring for in Korea. The shower will begin at 2 p.m. in the Pendray Hall and suggested gifts are simple items for a baby's needs — gowns, vests, diapers, socks, sweaters and blankets.

Miss Bourns will leave for Korea at the end of February, after a furlough of eight months. She is a graduate of the Winnipeg General Hospital and was commissioned by the United Church of Canada for service in 1932.

BY CO-ORDINATOR AT IODE TEA

Exchange Program Explained

Two programs, designed to give overseas and Victoria students a university and general education in another country and a chance to meet the people, were outlined by Miss Linde Baker when she spoke to members of the 10 Victoria IODE chapters and the Municipal Chapter. Miss Baker, Tanganyika foreign students co-ordinator at the University of Victoria, gave a resume of the programs and a brief biography of the seven overseas students, at a no-host tea in the Oak Bay Beach Hotel.

The two programs, she explained, were the reciprocal plan, with Japan and Chile, in which the Uvic administration waives tuition cost and the student is taken care of by the Uvic students, by means of a fund of the Alma Mater Society. The overseas student does, however, pay his way to and from each country.

The other plan she discussed is the African student program which works in conjunction with the African Student Foundation in Toronto.

The students again have their tuition waived by the administration, but money for their care is raised independently by Uvic students. Transportation is paid by the African Student Foundation.

The tea was given to meet the overseas students: Richard Fred Ochillo, Paul Attlee Mutanda and Miss Eudorah A. Bodo of Kenya; Miss Yutaka Shinoda and Manako Koga of Tokyo, Miss Maria Luisa Sottovia, Santiago, Chile, and Clarence Edwards, Antigua, West Indies.

BANK CONSULTANT GIVES OPIN ION

Housewife 'Natural' for Finance Minister

A woman as Canadian minister of finance is long overdue, Victoria Lions were told Friday.

And, the most suitable candidate would be a housewife who has raised a large family on a small budget. The claim to financial wizardry in women was put to the Lions by Miss Holly Armstrong, women's consultant for the Toronto-Dominion Bank of Canada.

Miss Armstrong was speaking on "Dolls and Dollars," or "Women and Finance."

"There is no better training place to learn to handle money than in marriage," Miss Armstrong said. "Indeed, in the majority of Canadian households men may earn the money, but it is the women's responsibility to put it to best use."

Out of every consumer dollar women decide how 85 cents will be spent. Among statistics cited to prove her point, Miss Armstrong said women spent $224 million a year on cosmetics and toiletries alone.

Women play a larger and more important part in the country's economy than most men realize, the speaker said.

MEN OUTNUMBERED

They outnumber and outlive men and as a result of this longevity collect a lot of money in inheritance—nearly 80 per cent of life insurance proceeds.

More than 52 per cent of all money is in women's hands. They also control more than 50 per cent of the shares in Canadian companies. Further to this, 30 per cent of women over 14 years of age have independent earnings, although one-fifth only work part time.

"Despite this economic power, many women still think money is a man's world. This is a delusion," Miss Armstrong said.

She spoke of the family budget as a safety factor in preserving marriage.

"Financial stability in marriage will give marital stability," she said. Studies show that financial problems are the main cause of marital discord.

Miss Armstrong stressed the importance of women learning as much about their husband's financial affairs as possible. Six out of 10 wives survive their husbands, she said.

It is important a woman should know the whereabouts of all the family's legal and financial documents.

"They have an instinct for this and they are quite thorough in their study of potential money makers," she said.

Tories Seek To Win Back Vote 'Deserters'

CALGARY (CP) — The Progressive Conservative party must find out why so many voters "deserted us in recent elections, and set out to win back their confidence," George Hees told the party's Alberta association Saturday night.

The former trade minister who returned to Parliament in the Nov. 8 election told the association that the principle objective of the party was to give the country better government.

"To do so, we must, of course, form a government," he added.

To form the government the party would have to do three things:

- Make sure its policies were practical;
- Convince voters its policies were better than those in effect today and that people in the cabinet would be better able to direct the country's affairs than the present cabinet; and
- Nominate early the best possible candidates in all ridings held by other parties.

He suggested formation of a permanent policy group made up of members of Parliament, party members and leaders in various areas of national life. The committee would report to the caucus, which would have final say on all matters.

But the policies must be flexible to be effective, he said.

"Far too often, people in public life believe that it is a sign of weakness to change their stand on an issue, even though important events and altered circumstances make such a change necessary.

"Such a point of view produces stagnation in a party's thinking and makes it impossible for the party to do an effective job when it becomes the government."

LEARNED A LOT

Mr. Hees, who resigned from the Diefenbaker cabinet in 1962 during a dispute over nuclear weapons, said he had learned a great deal during his absence from parliament.

People were "tired of government refusing to face up to the issues of the day" and "tired of those who try to delude them by oratory into believing that all is well."

"They want an over-all plan which all Canadians can understand and take part in."

Funeral Held For Mrs. Ball

Funeral services were held Saturday afternoon for Mrs. Emily C. V. Ball, 67, who died in Victoria Thursday.

Born in Lisbon, North Dakota, Mrs. Ball was a resident here for 50 years.

She is survived by two daughters, Mrs. J. L. Smith and Miss Mary Ball, both of Victoria; two sons, Fred of Victoria and Jack, serving with the RCAF in Germany; one sister, Victoria Munt, in the city.

Canon Frederick Pike officiated at the service in Sands Memorial Chapel of Chimes on Quadra Street, to be followed Quadra Street.

POLICE DON SMOG MASKS IN TOKYO

TOKYO (UPI) — Smog has become so bad in Tokyo that traffic policemen at busy intersections soon will be wearing oxygen inhalers.

About 370 of the policemen will wear the masks during February and March, the season of heaviest fumes.

Traffic policemen suffered from severe headaches, dizziness and nausea because of the fumes, the police department said.

'Priesthood Silent On Death Penalty'

TORONTO (CP)—The Canadian Society for the Abolition of the Death Penalty plans to set up a two-man Ottawa information bureau.

Society President Arthur Maloney, a Toronto lawyer, said Saturday at the group's annual meeting that several members of Parliament have asked for such a bureau so they can check the accuracy of arguments used in the expected Commons debate on capital punishment.

Another speaker, Rev. J. M. Kelly, criticized the Roman Catholic priesthood for not speaking out on the issue.

"If the Roman Catholic voice has been heard, it has generally been the voice of the laymen," said Father Kelly, president of St. Michael's College, University of Toronto.

"I feel obliged to be here because I think it necessary to add at least one . . . priest's voice to the crusade.'

MARATHON KREBIOZEN TRIAL

Cancer Cure Trio Freed

CHICAGO (AP)—The fourth and final verdict in the marathon fraud and conspiracy trial involving krebiozen may depend on the health of a woman juror.

With three of the four defendants already acquitted, the U.S. district court jury was deliberating the fate of Dr. Stevan Durovic, the developer of krebiozen, Sunday afternoon.

Suddenly a juror, Mrs. Lois Clark, 40, suffered an asthma attack in the jury room and had to be carried to her hotel.

Defence and prosecution lawyers scheduled a meeting today with Judge Julies J. Hoffman to hear a report on Mrs. Clark's condition.

Excitement gripped the courtroom Saturday afternoon when the jurors, after hearing nine months of testimony, acquitted on all counts Dr. Andrew C. Ivy, Marko Durovic and Dr. William F. P. Phillips.

The jurors said they were still deliberating the 40 charges against Dr. Durovic, 60, and against the Krebiozen Research Foundation.

Dr. Ivy, 72, is chief medical sponsor of krebiozen and director of medical research at Roosevelt University. Maeko Durovic, 64, is Stevan's brother and a lawyer. Dr. Phillips, 52, administered krebiozen to cancer patients as a general practitioner.

The four were charged with mail fraud and conspiracy in the sale and promotion of krebiozen.

Supporters contend krebiozen, which they say is obtained by complicated means from the blood serum of horses, has anti-cancer properties. The government contends it is a fraud.

WIND PILES UP DRIFTS

Massive Snow Storm Fouls Eastern Canada

SUTTON, ONT. (CP) — Rescue of fishing hut occupants on the wind-whipped ice of Lake Simcoe north of here went on hour by hour today as snowmobiles churned through five-foot drifts in blizzard conditions.

"It's snowing and visibility is only 50 or 60 feet," said Police Chief Syd Mosher of Sutton.

"We have no idea how many are out there, but they've taken in five off Jackson's Point and there may be another 20."

Strong winds added force to the blows, disrupting life even in some areas where no snow was falling. These localities—mostly in Ontario—were buried by a massive snowfall a week ago and today's heavy winds were blowing the product of that storm back over highways and roads.

Winds of up to 80 miles an hour drove heavy rain over the southern sections of the Maritimes Sunday and snow over the northern areas. A storm which began Thursday had covered some areas with 21 inches of snow, clogging most secondary roads and stifling transportation.

In southern Nova Scotia Sunday trees and overhead wires were felled. Air Canada officials said several flights in the Maritimes were cancelled by high winds.

CLOSE OTTAWA SCHOOLS

All schools were closed today in Ottawa, which suffered its heaviest 24-hour snowfall in history. By this morning 16.4 inches had fallen and another two inches were expected. The previous record was 12.5 inches Dec. 31, 1942.

The capital's problems were complicated by winds of 30 to 35 miles an hour, gusting to 45, which piled the snow into huge drifts. Side streets were clogged but main thoroughfares were passable.

Many schools were also closed in the Montreal area. That city had a snowfall of 11 inches between Sunday morning and today. The snow tapered off today but drifting continued behind strong winds.

Quebec City, where it was still snowing today, has recorded a fall of 25 inches of snow and rain since Friday. All secondary roads were blocked and many schools were closed.

Quebec and Ontario had winds of 25 to 35 miles an hour, gusting to 50.

SNOW STILL FALLING

Snow was still falling in eastern Ontario and Brockville reported about 20 inches. All schools were closed.

All schools were closed in the communities and townships in the Kingston area where 14 inches of snow had fallen.

Train schedules were disrupted in Toronto and driving conditions were treacherous. Drifting snow covered an icy base and visibility was poor.

Anglers stranded overnight in small ice-fishing huts on storm-swept Lake Simcoe, 50 miles north of Toronto, may have to wait several hours more before returning to shore.

100 STRANDED

Winds, which caused heavy drifting in the area and forced an estimated 100 persons on the lake to seek overnight shelter in their huts, had not abated by daybreak and visibility on the lake was still near zero.

A few men were reported to have walked back earlier. The provincial lands and forest department was seeking snowmobiles equipped with compasses

BULLETINS

Young Benched For Attack

VANCOUVER (CP) — Lynn Patrick, coach of the Los Angeles Blades, was quoted here as saying defenceman Howie Young has been benched for a "vicious" stick attack on Vancouver Canuck's Bob McCusker.

McCusker suffered a 10-stitch gash in his face when struck by Young's stick in a Western Hockey League game in Los Angeles Saturday.

"I thought it was vicious," Patrick said today.

Flu Epidemic

LONDON (Reuters) — Two more deaths were reported in Britain's spreading influenza epidemic estimated to have hit nearly 500,000 people in the last two weeks. A nine-month-old baby and a 30-year-old father of four died during the weekend.

Pair on Trial

EDMONTON (CP) — An application by two Vancouver men for separate trials on charges of possessing stolen money was rejected today by Mr. Justice J. V. H. Milvain of the Alberta Supreme Court. Terry Nurgent and Ted Babie, defence counsel for James McDougall, 31, said in the application they would object "each and every time" evidence in the trial could be applied against a second man, Joseph Percival, 37.

Red Moon Shot

MOSCOW (AP) — The Soviet Union began today another attempt to land instruments softly on the moon, an official announcement indicated.

Supply Routes Blasted

The raids ended a 37-day pause in the air war against the Hanoi regime during which the United States launched a worldwide peace offensive designed to get the North Vietnamese Communists to the negotiating table. The peace effort was rebuffed.

Navy A4 Skyhawks from the 7th Fleet carriers Ranger and Kitty Hawk joined air force F105 Thunderchiefs and F4C Phantom jets, in attacking targets in the Dong Hoi and Vinh areas, staging areas in the Communist north for movement of men and supplies into South Viet Nam.

American and Vietnamese troops also pushed offensives against the Communists on scattered fronts in the south. "Flying Horsemen" of the 1st Cavalry Division reported heavy fighting in a joint operation 300 miles northeast of Saigon.

Dong Hoi is about 50 miles north of the 17th Parallel. Vinh is about 130 miles north of the dividing line on the Tonkin Gulf.

A U.S. military spokesman in Saigon said the armada encountered heavy anti-aircraft fire over the targets — bridges, barges, warehouse facilities and an approach to a ferry landing.

Poor weather prevented an accurate assessment of damage. A navy Skyhawk went down in the South China Sea while returning from the morning raid, but it was not known what caused the crash. Its pilot was rescued by an air force Albatross after 40 minutes in the water. All other planes landed safely.

NO ENEMY PLANES

No enemy planes were sighted and pilots said they encountered no Soviet-supplies surface-to-air (Sam) missiles.

In other action, the Viet Cong late Sunday unleashed a mortar attack against a U.S. artillery area and helicopter base about 15 miles north of Saigon. A number of helicopters were damaged, a spokesman said. Light casualties were reported among the 1st Cavalry Division troops at the installation.

A U.S. helicopter was shot down near Bon Song today but its four-man crew was rescued. American troops in the area took prisoner a North Vietnamese soldier who said he was from the 7th Battalion, 18th Regiment of the 325th Division. U.S. military officials had said earlier this regiment was in the area.

The Viet Cong launched a three-pronged attack on South Korean marines early today 20 miles southwest of Tuy Hoa in the central highlands.

ROK military spokesmen claimed 188 guerrillas were killed in five hours of fighting. They said an estimated battalion of about 600 troops hit a similar-sized ROK element from three directions, each from about a mile apart. The Koreans reported "light" casualties.

UN SECRETARY General U Thant, left, met with U.S. Amabassador Arthur Goldberg after the U.S. representative asked for an urgent meeting of the UN Security Council to discuss the Viet Nam war.

SHIFT IN POLICY

UN 'Surprised' By LBJ Request

Times News Services

Johnson's request was seen as a shift of U.S. policy on the method of seeking a Viet Nam settlement, which has never before been directly put before the United Nations.

Shortly after the president spoke, U.S. Ambassador Arthur J. Goldberg submitted a formal request for a meeting of the Security Council.

Goldberg hurried across the street from the U.S. mission headquarters to carry the request for the meeting to Ambassador Roger Seydoux of France, this month's president of the council.

It was up to Seydoux to announce the time of the meeting. The United States served notice it would be willing to meet at any time.

ADD FOUR MEMBERS

The council meeting would be the first for the UN body since Jan. 1 when it added four new members to bring total membership to 15.

The council members will decide whether to invite non-members, such as representatives of North or South Viet Nam or other interested parties, to attend the debate.

The U.S. call for a Security Council meeting was a surprise because only last Tuesday Goldberg reportedly told a group of Democratic congressmen that the time was not right for President Johnson to go before the world body to seek a settlement of the war.

OBSTACLES

In a letter to the council president, Goldberg said:

"My government has concluded that it should now bring this problem with all its implications for peace formally before the Security Council."

He said the United States is aware that it may not be easy for the council itself, "in view of all the obstacles, to take con-

CANADA 'REGRETS ACTION'

OTTAWA (CP)—The government regrets the United States decision to resume bombing North Viet Nam, Prime Minister Pearson said in the Commons today.

The government hoped the 37-day pause in bombing might be continued until all possible approaches had been exhausted in efforts to bring the dispute from the battlefield to the conference table.

While North Viet Nam might be intransigent, Mr. Pearson said, there is still a possibility of some softening in its position.

Replying to questions from Opposition Leader Diefenbaker, Mr. Pearson said he was informed Sunday morning by the United States that it intended to resume bombing.

This morning, he added, he received a message from Ho Chi Minh, president of North Viet Nam, saying there could be no negotiated settlement as long as United States forces were in Viet Nam and the Viet Cong was not recognized as the sole government of South Viet Nam.

Mr. Diefenbaker asked what basis there was for hoping the North Vietnamese position might be altered.

"There would not seem to be

Immediate Meeting Sought

WASHINGTON (UPI)—President Lyndon Johnson called today for an immediate meeting of the United Nations Security Council in a new effort to bring the Viet Nam war to the conference table.

The chief executive made the request during a brief, televised report to the nation on his decision to resume U.S. bombing raids on Communist North Viet Nam.

VIOLENCE

He said the United States and others working for peace had met only continued violence and continued aggression.

Speaking of the Hanoi government, Johnson said: "It is plain that there is no readiness to talk—no readiness for peace—in that regime today.

"The end of the pause does not mean the end of our own pursuit of peace. That pursuit will be as determined and unremitting as the pressure of our military strength on the field of battle."

GIVE FULL REPORT

"I have instructed Ambassador Goldberg to ask for an immediate meeting of the United Nations Security Council. He will present a full report on the situation in Viet Nam and a resolution which can open the way to the conference table.

"This report and this resolution will be responsive to the spirit of the renewed appeal of Pope Paul; that appeal has our full sympathy."

But the President said that in view of the continued Communist violence against South Vietnamese and American forces, any further extension of the U.S. bombing pause might have led to a greatly increased cost in lives.

MET ADIVSERS

He also said he ordered the resumption of bombing only after lengthy consultation with his chief advisers, including the military joint chiefs of staff.

"These advisers tell me that if continued immunity is given to all that support North Viet Nam aggression, the cost in lives — Vietnamese, American and Allied—will only be greatly increased," he said.

"In the light of the words and actions of the government in Hanoi, it is our clear duty to do what we can to limit these costs."

As for hopes for peace, Johnson said that both direct and indirect approaches by the United States, her allies and even the Vatican "have been in vain."

INSIST ON SURRENDER

"The answer of Hanoi to all is the answer that was published three days ago—they persist in aggression and they insist on the surrender of South Viet Nam to Communism," he said.

"So this morning, at my direc-

RUSK

U.S. Offered To Extend Bomb Pause

WASHINGTON (AP) — State Secretary Dean Rusk disclosed today the United States offered to extend the bombing pause over North Viet Nam if the Communist leaders there would make a peace gesture in response to the U.S. peace offensive.

He told a press conference, however, that Hanoi's response had been "negative, harsh and unyielding."

"Hanoi was informed at an early stage of the suspension of bombing," Rusk said. ". . . They were told that no decision had been made on the resumption of bombing.

"They were told that if Hanoi would reciprocate it would have a favorable effect on extending the suspension of the bombing. There was no ultimatum."

Rusk also said the United States made clear to Hanoi's leaders that it was prepared for a formal diplomatic conference, for informal discussions or for diplomatic contacts which would be kept secret.

Hanoi's response, he said, had been to denounce the whole effort as a fraud.

Raids Hike Debate Tempo

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Th resumption of air strikes agains North Viet Nam was expected to flash like a spark through the tinderbox of growing congressional debate over administration policies in Viet Nam.

Announcement of the resumption of the raids came as the debate reached a new level, with critics of United States policies in the war becoming more outspoken in their demands for a greater voice in decisions.

Sen. Wayne L. Morse (D-Ore.), the most vocal critic of the administration, was mapping a campaign to revoke the broad mandate congress gave Johnson to fight the war in August, 1964.

Morse also charged the administration with keeping facts about the war from the American people "as Hitler kept the facts from the German people" during his rise to power.

The tart-tongued senator's remarks provoked an instant reaction from House Democratic whip Hale Boggs, La., who said the comparison was an "outrageous" one that helped the Communists. Morse shot back that Boggs was making "a typical smear."

JOHNSON PEACE DRIVE STARTED LAST SPRING

By LEWIS GULICK

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States' 37-day peace offensive came to a shattering end today with President Johnson's order resuming the U.S. air strikes on North Viet Nam.

Here is a detailed look at the background to the president's order:

On April 7, 1965, Johnson set forth, in a speech at Johns Hopkins University, his offer of "unconditional discussions" for a peaceful settlement seeking independence and security for South Viet Nam. The Communists denounced his proposals as a cover-up for more U.S. "aggression."

In May he ordered a five-day halt in air strikes on North Viet Nam to test the Communist response. Hanoi refused to receive a U.S. diplomatic note.

Through the summer and into the fall critics of Johnson's Viet Nam policy contended the May pause had not been long enough to give Hanoi a reasonable chance to respond.

Nov. 11 the question of a longer pause was raised at a conference at the LBJ ranch in Texas attended by State Secretary Dean Rusk, Defence Secretary Robert S. McNamara and presidential assistants McGeorge Bundy and Jack Valenti.

TAKES ANOTHER LOOK

Dec. 7 Johnson again went into the question during another conference with key aides. One of the alternatives debated then was a bombing pause early in 1966, perhaps coinciding with the customary lunar new year ceasefire due around Jan. 21. The Viet Cong already had proposed a Christmas truce.

Johnson made no decision at the time but outlined his general purpose in a speech two days later to the AFL-CIO convention in San Francisco. Voicing U.S. determination "to turn back aggression" in Viet Nam, he added: "At the same time, we are equally determined that every prospect for peace be exhausted before other hard steps are taken."

The U.S. Yule ceasefire order issued Dec. 22 included instructions not to resume on-the-ground fighting in South Viet Nam after Christmas unless the Viet Cong fired first. This was quickly settled by Viet Cong attacks even before the 30-hour ceasefire period was over.

The Dec. 22 order also halted bombing of North Viet Nam targets with the start of the ceasefire Dec. 24. But it did not specify when to resume the air strikes. On that, Johnson reserved judgment from day to day.

NOTES REACTION

In pondering his future course Johnson was influenced by domestic reaction to the lull and by appeals from world figures. He was impressed by a peace

Health Ministers Meeting in Ottawa

Times Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — Manitoba, Saskatchewan and British Columbia's ministers of health failed to put in an appearance for today's opening session of the federal-provincial conference of health ministers.

The Manitoba and Saskatchewan ministers were snow-bound by the severe storm that roared across the eastern seaboard at the weekend. British Columbia's minister, Eric Martin, was also absent but the B.C. deputy minister of health, Dr. J. A. Taylor, was at the meeting.

The conference was called to discuss the health resources fund of $500,000,000, over 15 years, that the federal government has offered to provide for the provinces to assist with the capital costs of building facilities for education and medical personnel.

Space Weather Observer Set for Launch Wednesday

CAPE KENNEDY (UPI) — U.S. weathermen, foreseeing the day when storms like the east's weekend blizzard will be forecast two weeks ahead, plan to orbit a tiros satellite Wednesday to open a full-time system of space-borne weather observers.

The 305-pound weather eye, scheduled for a 2:52 a.m. EST. blastoff on a sleek delta rocket, will be followed three weeks later by the launch of another camera-carrying tiros.

The two weather watchers will form the core of the world's first operational satellite system designed to keep forecasters supplied with pictures of earth's cloud cover on a routine, daily basis.

WEATHER SYNOPSIS

Temperatures continue mild over coastal B.C. and the southern interior with generally cloudy skies and isolated showers. An active weather disturbance moving eastward toward the north coast was to give rain to that area by noon today, spreading southeastward to the lower mainland by evening and to the southern interior as rain or rain and snow mixed tonight and Tuesday. The central interior will receive snow flurries tonight as the system crosses the province.

Christmas fell on Saturday. Monday night Johnson held strategy talks by telephone with his advisers and decided to prolong the bombing pause for a while and put into motion the full-fledged diplomatic offensive.

An American met directly with a Hanoi representative in Rangoon for a few minutes and handed him the U.S. message. The North Vietnamese accepted it without comment.

The substance of Johnson's diplomatic communications was a 14-point sum-up of the American position as it had been put forward over the preceding months. This included the offer of unconditional discussions, affirmation of the Geneva agreements on Southeast Asia and a willingness to withdraw U.S. forces from South Viet Nam once that country is freed from "external interference."

But Communist propaganda continued its general denunciation of U.S. "imperialist aggression" in Viet Nam.

REPORTS 'NO RESPONSE'

Jan. 12 the president reported on his peace drive in his state-of-the-union message: "So far we have received no response to prove either success or failure."

Jan. 21 Rusk, just back from a quick Asian trip, reported there had been no "encouraging" response, only "bitter invective" from Hanoi.

While some foreign governments indicated they hoped for a lengthy bombing halt, conflicting views at home were pressing on the president.

Jan. 22 senators made public testimony by Gen. Earle G. Wheeler, chairman of the joint chiefs of staff, that "if you stop bombing North Viet Nam, in effect you throw one of your blue chips for negotiation over your shoulder."

Johnson summed 20 congressional leaders to the White House Jan. 25 and gave them intelligence reports of a North Vietnamese buildup and infiltration during the bombing lull.

SENATORS DIVIDED

Of the 20, only Mansfield and the Senate foreign relations committee chairman, J. W. Fulbright (Dem. Ark.), were on the record for continuing the pause. An Associated Press poll of the Senate's 100 members found that of 50 willing to say, 25 senators favored renewing the bombings at this point and 25 were against.

Jan. 27 16 Democratic senators sent the president a letter supporting earlier calls by Mansfield, Fulbright and Senator George D. Aiken (Rep. Vt), for a continuation of the bombing pause.

Johnson dismissed the senators' appeal the next day. He cited the 1964 congressional resolution giving him broad powers to repel armed aggression on U.S. soldiers in Viet Nam.

Pope Paul again entered a plea for peace when he suggested Saturday that United Nations arbitration through neutral nations could bring an end to the war.

Judge Named To End Strike

Mr. Justice V. L. Dryer of the B.C. Supreme Court was appointed today as an industrial inquiry commissioner to propose a settlement of the months-old strike at Craigmont Mines in Merritt.

The appointment was announced by Labor Minister Leslie Peterson, fulfilling an ultimatum he gave the striking Local 6523, United Steel Workers of America, and the company, to reach an agreement.

U.S. Envoy Backs Order

SANTO DOMINGO (AP) — U.S. Ambassador Ellsworth Bunker said today the three military leaders of the Dominican armed forces must heed Provisional President Garcia-Godoy's orders and leave the country, as the top rebel leaders already have done.

Bunker, American member of the Organization of American States' political committee for the Dominican Republic, warned that if the military leaders refuse to follow Garcia-Godoy's orders they only will be helping "extremists" trying to discredit the armed forces.

Total Ban On Trade

SALISBURY (Reuters)—Rhodesians tightened their belts even further today after Britain's latest move to topple the regime of Prime Minister Ian Smith—a total trade ban.

Smith's breakaway regime refused comment on the British action, which came 2½ months after this colony of white-minority rule seized independence from Britain.

The move, announced early today and scheduled to go into effect Wednesday, extended Britain's ban on export of arms and oil to Rhodesia to cover all other exports.

any in the light of the statements made and documents coming from Hanoi," Mr. Pearson said. "But there have been indications that the dialogue has not been completely cut off, and as long as there is any possibility of a further pause leading to a negotiated settlement, I hope that all concerned will take advantage of that possibility. I can't go further than that."

New Democratic Leader Doouglas asked Mr. Pearson to make a direct appeal to President Johnson to discontinue the bombings. Mr. Pearson said Washington already knew Canada's views, but he would consider Mr. Douglas' proposal in the light of any further information the government receives.

'BOOKS DISTORT INDIAN FACTS'

KINGSTON, Ont. (CP)—Fashion model Kahn-Tineta Horn says if the federal government passes a law against hate literature, she'll use it to prosecute provincial premiers and education ministers.

Miss Horn, a Mohawk Indian from the Montreal area, said Saturday night she also would use such a law to take out warrants against book publishers and promoters.

"They are contributing to the public's hatred of the Indian by printing untrue and distorted facts in school history books," she told about 75 persons at a meeting at Queen's University.

Miss Horn said of Indian education in Quebec:

"Roman Catholic education for Indians is a disaster, calamity, horror and whatever other words I can think of to describe it. It is also a violation of the Indian Act and it ruins Indians. Other than that, there's nothing wrong with it."

'MOST FAIL FRENCH'

She said many Indians in Quebec are unable to get higher education because the government insists they learn French, a language which, she says, 90 per cent of them fail.

"They talk about bilingualism. We are bilingual. We speak Iroquois and English. We also know that no Frenchman is going to hire an Indian anyway. Most of our men work in structural steel in the United States."

Miss Horn said she is opposed to assimilation of the Indian into the white man's world and would prohibit inter-marriage if she could.

"I'm in favor of reserves. The Indian is not ready to move individually into the white man's world. It is pure disaster for us."

She said she advocates removal of mission schools from reserves. "Confused Indians have had religion stuffed down their throats . . . and after 100 years we are worse off than we ever were."

to go out after the fishermen.

Newfoundland, meanwhile, was still reeling from the effects of a wind and rain storm which had battered coastal communities late Friday with 35-foot waves and 75-miles-an-hour winds.

All roads in Quebec were described as "very dangerous" by provincial police. Roads in the Eastern Townships were blocked by snowdrifts.

REPORT ROADS CLOSED

In southern Ontario provincial police reported highways between Chatham and London closed because of drifting snow.

Brockville kept about six streets clear. Three provincial police detachments in the area called all patrol cars in and were answering only emergency calls.

There were several multiple auto accidents. A 22-car pileup on the Laurentian auto route north of Montreal injured five persons and wrecked six cars.

The Prairies were getting some respite from a severe cold snap which has lasted, except for a few days, since Christmas.

But the higher temperatures —about zero in most places Sunday—were still 10 to 20 degrees colder than normal for this time of year.

tion — after consultation and agreement with the government of South Viet Nam—U.S. aircraft have resumed action in North Viet Nam.

"They struck lines of supply which support the continuing movement of men and arms against the people and the government of South Viet Nam."

As for the bombing, the president emphasized that the air strikes against North Viet Nam were aimed at military targets and controlled with care from the very onset.

"Those who direct and supply the aggression have no claim to immunity from military reply," he said.

AWAKE ALL NIGHT

Johnson said the peace efforts were well received throughout most of the world. And he said similar efforts by neutral natoins have come to nothing.

"We have sought without success to learn of any response to efforts made by the governments of eastern Europe," he said. "There has been no answer to the enlightened efforts of the Vatican. Our own direct private approaches have been in vain."

But the President said "we do not regret the pause in the bombing."

'YIELD TO NONE'

"We yield to none in our determination to seek peace," he said. "We have given a full and decent respect to the opinions of those who thought that such a pause might give new hope for peace.

"Some said 10 days might do it. Others said 20. Now we have paused for twice the time suggested by some who urged it. Now the world knows more clearly than ever who insists on aggression and who works for peace."

Tiny Tot Versus Jolly Jumper

The manufacturers of a baby exerciser known as the Jolly Jumper engaged in a legal wrangle in Victoria Law Courts Friday with the manufacturers of a baby exerciser called the Tiny Tot.

International Pediatric Prlducts Ltd. of North Vancouver, makers of the Jolly Jumper, claimed that the Tiny Tot, produced by the Lambert Brothers of California was an infringement of its patent.

The case was heard by three judges of the B.C. Appeal Court, who reserved their decision.

It originated in B.C. Supreme Court, Vancouver, last July when the makers of the Jolly Jumper sought an injunction against the sale of the Tiny Tot in Canada.

INJUNCTION DENIED

Mr. Justice F. Craig Munroe refused to grant an injunction, and International Pediatrics Products asked the Appeal Court judges to reverse his decision.

For the appellants, Brian McLoughlin said their product, the Jolly Jumper, was patented in Canada in 1959 as "a device for safely supporting or exercising a baby while suspended in the air."

Subsequently the Tiny Tot exerciser was manufactured in California by the Lambert Brothers and for sale in the United States and Canada.

Mr. McLoughlin claimed that sale of the Tiny Tot in Canada infringed the Jolly Jumper patent.

V. R. Hill, for the Lambert Brothers, argued that Mr. Justice Munroe was right in refusing an injunction against the Tiny Tot.

The judge ruled that neither firm had invented a suspended baby exerciser. He said both inventions were "improved methods of obtaining an old object," and both methods were different.

TRAIN ROBBER PAL ESCAPES U.K. PRISON

LONDON (UPI)—Two convicts—one of them a friend of Britain's famed "great train robbery" gang—used a grappling hook and a rope ladder to escape from Wandsworth Jail today.

They flung the hook, with the ladder attached, to the top of the 25-foot outer prison wall in their pre-dawn dash for freedom, police said.

A huge manhunt was organized and police squads swooped down on the men's known hangouts in South London.

Authorities identified the two as Ronald 'Dark Ronnie" Dark, 32, who made an appearance at the trial of the gang that hoisted $7.84 million from a train in Britain's most celebrated robbery of the century, and David V. Perridge, 28.

"Scalp tension, a sign of the times, is one cause of your hair loss," says trichologist M. D. Harrison to balding man. Harrison directs the famous Harrison Hair and Scalp Specialists, whose main office is in Vancouver. He is sending a specialist here to advise men how to correct hair troubles by home treatment.

How to save and improve your hair demonstrated by expert here Tuesday and Wednesday

New home treatment methods for preventing baldness — and growing thicker hair — will be demonstrated in Victoria this Tuesday and Wednesday, Feb. 1 and 2.

This news was released here today by M. D. Harrison, internationally famous director of Harrison Hair and Scalp Specialists.

In his announcement, Harrison named staff trichologist J. Arthur to conduct the Victoria clinic. Arthur will personally examine hair-worried men and women from 1 p.m. to 8 p.m. Tuesday and Wednesday at the Hotel Sussex.

EXAMINE YOU FREE

"I want to make it clear that you incur no charge or obligation by seeing Mr. Arthur", director Harrison said.

"Your only obligation is to yourself — to free your mind of worries about hair loss, dandruff, itching, or other scalp disorders, by learning how to take care of your hair. If your trouble is beyond the scope of Harrison Home treatment, we will frankly tell you so. But less than five per cent of the people we examine are 'hopeless'."

OFFERS NO CURE-ALL

"We always make a personal examination before suggesting any treatment," he pointed out. "There is no one cure-all that will correct every one of the 18 scalp disorders that cause most baldness."

Harrison said that sometimes your treatment must be changed after a few weeks to get best results. "For this reason, you mail regular reports of your hair progress to the Harrison headquarters in Vancouver.

"Also, your scalp condition is checked personally by a Harrison trichologist at regular intervals."

WHO CAN BE HELPED?

Will this new treatment cure baldness? "No", said Harrison sincerely. "We can not help men who are slick-bald after years of gradual hair loss. But where your scalp still grows hair, we can at least save and improve what you have. Usually, we can grow more hair even where you have only 'fuzz' now."

The important thing is: Don't wait until it's too late!

Best evidence of the success of Harrison treatment is the phenomenal growth behind it. Harrison and his staff trichologists do extension work in more than 100 other cities.

SATISFY 95%

"Our biggest problem is not in doing what we claim to do," declared Harrison. "We satisfy more than 95 per cent of our clients, and have records to prove it.

"But to overcome the average man's initial skepticism is sometimes difficult. He's usually quite desperate—and baldish — by the time he nerves himself to see a Harrison trichologist. He's 'tried everything.' So he starts consoling himself with one of the old superstitions about hair:

That baldness is hereditary; that men naturally lose hair as they get along in years; that nothing can be done to stop hair loss — and a lot of other notions that we know are not true today.

FREE SCALP EXAMINATION

See Mr. Arthur in person. Learn how baldness can be stopped, and new hair grown on your own scalp. The new Harrison method permits you to actually stop your baldness and regrow hair in the privacy of your own home.

For a free examination and discussion of your hair problems ask the desk clerk at the Hotel Sussex Tuesday and Wednesday between 1 p.m. and 8 p.m. for Mr. Arthur's suite number.

You don't need an appointment. You won't be embarrassed or obligated in any way. Examinations are given in private.
